By DANIEL F. GILMORE

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 4 (UPI)—Pope John XXIII, the son of an Italian farmer, was crowned 262nd Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church today in a ceremony of devout and regal splendor.

A quarter of a million persons, massed in St. Peter's Square, thundered an ovation of "Viva il Papa" when the three-tiered crown of gold, silver and diamonds was placed upon his head.

Rain and the threat of rain held down a crowd which had been expected to exceed 500,000.

Crowned on Balcony.

The crowning took place on the main balcony of St. Peter's Basilica where Cardinal Nicola Canali placed the golden tiara on the new Pope's head with these words:

"Receive this tiara adorned with three crowns and know that thou art the father of princes and kings, guide of the world, vicar upon earth of Jesus Christ our Lord to whom let there be glory and honor without end."

A tremendous roar arose from the crowd as the Pope arose and bestowed upon the people his blessing from below the red velvet and gold-rimmed canopy set up to protect him from rain or sun.

Thus began the formal pontificate of Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, 76-year-old cardinal patriarch of Venice, who was elected Pope a week ago by the College of Cardinals.

The ceremony on the balcony followed a four-hour program inside the basilica. The papal Mass, the spiritual heart of the ceremony, was celebrated at the main Altar of the Chair. The Pope, in a sermon in Latin, stressed the heavy burdens of to his predecessor, the late Pius XII.

He listed the qualities required of a good pastor and said practical abilities and diplomatic skill were not enough without Christian virtue and charity.

'Pray for Your Pontiff.'

"The main precept of divine institution is the evangelistic precept of humility," he said. ". . . All of you, in all parts of the world, who are pious and fervent, pray for your Pontiff."

He noted that his coronation "happily coincided" with the Catholic feast day of St. Charles Borromeo, a Sixteenth Century archbishop of Milan. He said he particularly invoked the protection of St. Charles in his burden of restoring the spiritual strength of the church.

The Mass ended and with the final blessing the processional began moving toward the balcony. Outside rain began falling and the multitude in the square opened their umbrellas, looking like a vast field of multi-colored mushrooms.

Thunderous applause and the waving of thousands of handkerchiefs greeted the progress of the procession down the aisle and up the long flight of marble stairs to the balcony.

Clergy Fill Roof.

There the gold and jewel encrusted throne was waiting. Priests and nuns had filled the roof of the Loggia de Dame on the right-hand colonnade outside.

The cardinals accompanied the Pope to the door of the

SPEEDING TRIAL OF POLITICIANS CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Prosecutor Says 'Pressures' Were Brought to Bear on Him for Dismissal.

By JOHN J. HYNES
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

David L. Colson, prosecuting attorney of St. Francois county, told the Post-Dispatch today "several pressures" were brought to bear on his office in an effort to obtain dismissal of speeding charges against two Jefferson county Democratic politicians. Colson declined to identify the source of the "pressure" at this time.

The defendants, charged with speeding 90 miles an hour near Bonne Terre, were Earl Blackwell, lawyer and candidate for State Senator from the Twenty-second District in today's election, and Oscar A. (Bud) Kasten, assessor of Jefferson county.

Blackwell and Kasten, on a change of venue, entered guilty pleas at Fredericktown, in Madison county, last month, following publication of the first of a series of Post-Dispatch articles about conditions in Jefferson county.

Their court appearance was 11 months after their arrest by the Highway Patrol. Punishment consisted of $5 fines and $11 court costs each.

Drivers Accused of Racing.

Blackwell and Kasten were arrested Nov. 22, 1957, on U.S. Highway 67. The trooper making the arrest reported the men were racing. Informations were issued against them in magistrate court four days later. The charges were still pending last April when the defendants obtained a change of venue to Madison county on allegations of bias and prejudice against them in St. Francois county.

Asked why it took so long to dispose of the cases, Colson told the Post-Dispatch, "We tried to get a setting agreeable to the defendants and their attorney, Jerry Nixon, and myself. We were unable to do so, and finally set the case for trial.

"When we did that Nixon filed an application for a change of venue. I was to go to Fredericktown to try the case, which I understood would be heard by Magistrate Henri Sursa. Kasten and Blackwell entered pleas of guilty, and were fined by Sursa."

Subject of Political Ads.

Newspapers in the Twenty-second senatorial district made an issue of the delay in the cases, calling on Blackwell for a statement about the long delay. Political advertisements asked how Blackwell could oppose Senator Leo J. Rozier for re-election today in view of the manner in which the traffic charge against him (Blackwell) was handled.

The Post-Dispatch has called

BOMBER CRASHES WITH NUCLEAR WEAPON ABOARD

ABILENE, Tex., Nov. 4 (UPI) — An Air Force bomber crashed near Abilene with a nuclear weapon aboard today, but there was no contamination or explosion, the Air Force announced.

One crew member was killed and three survived the crash of the B-47 Stratojet bomber by parachuting to the ground. The plane was taking off from Dyess Air Force base "on a routine training mission" when it crashed.

The Air Force said in a statement issued at Dyess and in Washington that there was a potential danger of small-scale contamination in an incident of this kind. However, there was none in this case, the statement said.

First indication that a nuclear weapon was involved came when base officials in Abilene began checking persons in the crash area for radiation after the accident.

The Abilene crash was the first time the Air Force has publicly acknowledged that a nuclear weapon has been involved in a specific plane crash.

WHOOPING CRANE POPULATION UP TO KNOWN TOTAL OF 41

AUSTWELL, Tex., Nov. 4 (AP)—The world's known population of whooping cranes rose to 41 with the birth of at least nine birds last summer, Claude F. Lard, manager of the Aransas wildlife refuge, said yesterday.

Twenty-seven whoopers, including the nine young ones, have arrived at the refuge. Eight more adults are due to return from their summer nesting places in Canada. They may bring more young with them, Lard said.

Another six whooping cranes are in captivity.

The number of whooping cranes was less than 20 some years ago. It built up to 36, including two in captivity, in the 1949-50 season, then dwindled to 26 last year.

WOMEN IN VOTING AGE GROUP LEAD MEN BY 4,800,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —Women of voting age now outnumber the men by 4,800,000.

Women 54,700,000.

Men 49,900,000.

Many of these persons, while old enough to vote, are ineligible for a variety of reasons. The total number of men and women eligible to vote this year has been estimated at 76,500,000. Of these, about 48,000,000 are expected to show up at the polls.

Two years ago, the number of voting age women outnumbered men by 4,600,000, out of a total civilian voting age population of 102,700,000. About 4,000,000 persons will be old enough to vote this November for the first time — 2,200,000 women and 1,800,000 men.

SUSPECT IS SHOT AFTER KNOCKING DETECTIVE DOWN

Ex-Convict, Hit 3 Times, Sought for Questioning in Jewelry Store Robbery.

William Arthur Ball, a former convict, was shot and seriously wounded today by a detective Ball had knocked down. The policeman had sought to arrest him in connection with a jewelry store robbery.

The detective, Lowell Powell, fired his revolver from a prone position as Ball fled at the intersection of Union boulevard and Easton avenue. Ball was struck three times, suffering wounds of the back and both legs.

Powell and Detective Elvis Ballard saw Ball as they were driving to the Commerce Jewelry Co., 5903 Easton avenue. Ball's police photograph had been identified as that of one of the two armed men who robbed the store last Thursday, obtaining more than $13,000 in jewelry and an undetermined amount of cash.

The officers stopped quickly and jumped from the police car with revolvers drawn. The surprised Ball submitted to arrest. But when Powell attempted to handcuff him, he suddenly kicked the officer in the stomach and hit him in the chin. Powell went down.

Ball ran, with Ballard close behind him. Powell fired quickly before Ball could evade pursuit in traffic. The wounded ex-convict fell. He was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

Police said Ball had $258 in his pockets and was wearing an expensive diamond ring. He refused to give his name, address or any other information about himself.

Ball, 31 years old, knocked down Detective Sgt. Thomas Hale in December, 1952, when the officer attempted to arrest him for questioning in the Stix, Baer & Fuller downtown department store. Hale, now a lieutenant, suffered a split lip. Ball was arrested after a chase.

Ball was sentenced to serve eight years in prison for robbery in 1953 and was released from the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City last April 2. He had boasted recently to acquaintances that he never would be taken alive, police said.

Another former convict, Roger Malone Jr., was arrested Sunday in the Commerce Jewelry Co. robbery. He was charged in a warrant with first-degree robbery after victims of the holdup identified him.

W. GERMAN UNION ORDERED TO PAY STRIKE LOSSES

© New York Times News Service

BONN, West Germany, Nov. 4—Workers in West Germany have been ordered to pay their bosses for money lost when they went on strike. The sum involved may run up to the equivalent of $6,000,000.

In a precedent-making decision the federal labor court in Kassel has held the huge and powerful Metal Workers Union responsible for employers' damages suffered as result of the 16-week strike from October 1956 to February 1957.

The strike closed every metal working plant in the state of Schleswig Holstein. The court gave its judgment Saturday on two individual cases claiming a total of 413,000 Deutsche marks ($98,000), but the employers' association has estimated that the strike cost its members between 24,000,000 and 26,000,000 marks.

The court ruled the union violated a contract provision that no "militant measure" could be taken by either side for five days after a breakdown of negotiations for a new pact.

PEIPING CHARGES POISON GAS WAS USED ON REDS BY CHIANG'S FORCES

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 4 (AP)—Communist China accused the Nationalists on Quemoy today of firing poison gas at the Chinese mainland.

The Nationalists denied its forces were using gas and in turn accused the Communists of laying the propaganda groundwork to use poison gas themselves.

The Communists claimed the gas attack occurred in yesterday's artillery duel in which the Reds pounded Quemoy and smaller islands nearby with 39,162 shells in 18 hours. The firing subsided at midnight and the Quemoy area was reported quiet today—an even-numbered day of the month on which the Communists are pledged not to attack landing areas.

The Peiping radio claimed 14 Communist troops were "affected" by the alleged gas attack. "Should the Kuomintang troops dare to continue to use poison gas shells," it said, "our troops will reply with severe punitive action."

Troops Reported Angry.

Quoting a spokesman of the Communist Chinese Defense Ministry, the broadcast said:

"The Chinese People's Liberation army expressed the greatest anger over this crime of the United States and of the Kuomintang (Nationalist) troops."

The broadcast in effect accused the United States of cooperating in the alleged gas attack, declaring that it had come after the meeting of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles with President Chiang Kai-shek and after "the supply of large amounts of ammunition by the United States to the Chiang troops."

R. Adm. Liu Hoh-tu, chief Nationalist defense ministry spokesman, declared, "this claim is absolutely groundless."

"We have no such inhumane weapons in hand and the Americans have not given us such weapons," he said. "We have no intention to use such weapons in any further stage of the struggle of our people."

But he added that "we'll take other measures if the Communists resort to using poison gas." He said the Peiping warning is considered "a very serious indication that the enemy may be paving the way for adopting such inhumane weapons."

Bombing Opposed by U.S.

On his counterwarning, Liu declined to elaborate. He presumably meant measures other than shelling, such as aerial bombing of the Communist mainland batteries. The United States has opposed any such bombing, fearing it would widen the offshore war.

Lieu also denied the use of gas was discussed during the Chiang-Dulles talks.

The United States Taiwan defense command's chief, V. Adm. Roland N. Smoot, said the Red Chinese charge was absolutely untrue.

"We have not furnished the Chinese Nationalists with poison gas shells," he said. "This is obviously a typical propaganda fabrication."

In Washington, the State Department called the poison gas charges "noxious lies."

Department press officer Lincoln White said it was hard to say whether the Reds' false charges were "an attempt to divert world attention" from the Communists' "promiscuous killing of civilians on Quemoy or whether the accusations are intended to justify this wanton killing."

The Chinese Communists frequently raised the poison gas charge in the Korean war. They also accused the United Nations allies in Korea of resorting to germ warfare. Both charges were strongly denied.

84 Red Ships Sighted.

By United Press International.

The defense ministry said 84 Red warships were sighted off the coast yesterday. It said 81 of the ships were in the Quemoy area and three near the Matsu outpost chain. The type of ships involved was not announced.

Meanwhile, the Nationalists reported that villagers on the coast opposite Quemoy, believing that Nationalist "liberators" had landed, rose against the Reds in an ill-fated revolt six weeks ago.

The report, said to be based on intelligence data supplemented by stories told by recent refugees in Hong Kong, said the people of the village of Wupao rebelled late in September, on a day when Nationalist counter-fire drove the Reds from gun positions on the Weitou peninsula.

The villagers, seeing the Reds falling back, set upon them with farm tools and other crude weapons, believing that the Nationalists had landed.

The Communists cut the rebels down with machine guns, killing at yeast 70 and arresting a "large number," the report said. It said the villagers inflicted fore than 150 "casualties" on the Communists.

BALLOTING LIGHT IN CITY, BUT TURNOUT IN COUNTY IS HEAVIER THAN USUAL

Some Key G.O.P. Regions Turning Out Strong — Ohio and New York Balloting May Set Record.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —Voting was reported to be moderately heavy in many areas of the country in today's off-year election of a new Congress, state and local officers. Generally, the weather was good.

In early reports there were a few straws to boost Republican hopes that their partisans were turning out in a fashion to trump advance Democratic claims of possible unprecedented gains.

Outstate Michigan, much of it traditionally Republican, reported very heavy voting while in Democratic Detroit the balloting was running behind 1954 and 1956.

Maryland's early vote was heavier than expected. In the past, a big vote has usually worked to the advantage of Republicans in that heavily Democratic state.

48,000,000 May Vote.

Pre-election estimates were that 48,000,000 voters across the country would cast ballots.

Hot fights in some states over right-to-work proposals helped draw voters to the polls. A record off-year vote appeared in prospect in Ohio. Many polling places, particularly in industrial sections, had long lines waiting when they opened.

The right-to-work proposals bar labor-management contracts which require a worker to join a union to hold his job. In addition to Ohio, such proposals were on the ballot in California, Colorado, Kansas, Idaho and Washington.

In New York, the contest between Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman and Republican Nelson Rockefeller for the Governorship was pulling out voters in apparently record or near-record numbers.

Democrats Talk of Record.

Democrats aimed at a new record in Senate races to eclipse the 12-seat gain in 1932. They forecast gains today of up to 14—the figure cited by Chairman George Smathers (Dem.), Florida, of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Republicans still talked hopefully of a last-hour rescue from what looked like a possibly devastating string of Congressional defeats from coast to coast.

Final soundings of grass root opinion appeared to point to Democratic gains of from 8 to 12 Senate seats, including that wrested from G.O.P. Senator Frederick G. Payne by Gov. Edmund S. Muskie in Maine's September election. This did not take into account Alaska's two seats, to be filled Nov. 25.

Democrats now outnumber Senate Republicans 49 to 47. With Muskie's vote they need only to hold their own in today's contests to have the required 50 majority after Alaska adds its two.

Reports from around the country showed the Democrats might pick up from 17 to 40 House seats and possibly more. That much of a gain would fall far short of the 97 seats the party took from the Republicans in 1932. Democrats now outnumber House Republicans 235-to-200. A majority in the

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE PROVIDING INFORMATION ON LOCATION OF POLLS

VOTERS may learn where their polling places are in today's election by calling the Leagues of Women Voters in St. Louis and St. Louis county.

St. Louis countians may call FO 1-4846, except residents of the following communities, who should call the numbers listed: Brentwood, WO 2-0380; Ferguson, JA 1-8184; Kirkwood, YO 5-2462; Rock Hill, WO 1-0323; University City, VO 1-6228, and Webster Groves, WO 2-5976.

The League offices will also furnish information as to what district a caller lives in, in addition to where to vote.

Voting information may also be obtained by calling the election board offices in the city or county. In the city the numbers are GA 1-5288 or MA 1-5560.

The St. Louis county election office listed the following telephone numbers for residents of the various townships to call for information: Florissant, St. Ferdinand and Airport Townships, VO 3-4341; Normandy, Washington and Midland Townships, VO 3-4506; Creve Coeur, Hadley and Clayton Townships, VO 3-4643; Lincoln, Jefferson and Gravois Townships, VO 3-4840; Concord, Lemay, Bonhomme and Meramec Townships, VO 3-4993.

PERJURY CHARGE AGAINST OREGON TEAMSTER BOSS

Clyde C. Crosby Indicted as Result of Testimony in Senate Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —Clyde C. Crosby of Portland, Teamsters Union boss in Oregon, was indicted today on a perjury charge by a federal grand jury here.

Crosby was accused of giving false testimony before the Senate committee inquiring into labor racketeering when that committee was investigating an alleged tie-in between organized labor and vice in the Portland area.

The grand jury also returned perjury indictments against Frank H. Mykalo of Chicago, international vice president of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union, and Frank D. Gardone, McKees Rocks, Pa., international organizer for that union.

Their union was expelled by the AFL-CIO last December for alleged corruption.

Mykalo and Gardone were charged with false testimony to the grand jury in its investigation of allegations against their union president.

On Oct. 6, the grand jury indicted James G. Cross of Bethesda, Md., president of the bakery union, on a perjury charge based on his testimony before the Senate committee in mid-1957.

Today's indictment was based on Crosby's testimony before the Senate committee in March 1957. Much of that testimony was a reply to James B. (Big Jim) Elkins of Portland, an admitted racketeer who had told

POLLS TO CLOSE AT 7 P.M.; THOSE IN LINE AT TIME TO BE ADMITTED

Check Shows 105,000 Had Cast Ballots in St. Louis by 3 P.M. and 99,100 Had Voted in County.

Balloting in today's general election was heavy in St. Louis county, but relatively light in St. Louis.

Voters were going to the polls to elect a United States Senator, Congressmen, and state, legislative, local and judicial officials. City and state propositions also are on the ballot.

A check of representative St. Louis county precincts showed that about 99,100 county residents had voted by 3 p.m., nine hours after the polls opened. The heavier-than-usual turnout was 36.5 per cent of the county's record off-year election registration of 271,476 voters.

A similar check of city polling places indicated that about 105,000 St. Louisans cast ballots in the same period. The estimated turnout was 33 per cent of the city's 315,437 eligible voters.

Hot Contests in County.

In St. Louis county, where the determined effort of Democrats to oust Republicans has created many hotly contested races, today's voting rate was slightly ahead of that for the comparable off-year election in 1954.

The city's voting lagged in the early hours but picked up considerably later in the day. The St. Louis voting rate was the same as it was in the 1954 off-year election. The city's registration is the smallest for a general election since 1930.

Polls in the city and county will close at 7 p.m. Persons waiting in line to cast ballots at that time will be permitted to do so, but no one arriving at a precinct polling place after 7 p.m. will be allowed to vote.

(Election returns will be broadcast at intervals throughout the evening by Post-Dispatch Radio Station KSD, starting at 7 o'clock, and by Television Station KSD-TV, starting at 8 o'clock.)

The voting got off to a smooth start at most city and county precincts. However, there were minor delays at a few polling places when precinct officials were unable to get voting machines into operation. Election officials reported the difficulties were cleared up quickly after they advised the precinct judges by telephone of the proper operating adjustments.

Clear and Mild.

Clear skies and mild temperatures were forecast for today with high temperatures in the upper 60s.

In St. Louis, election officials anticipated a relatively light vote in the off-year election, estimating about 60 per cent of the registered voters would go to the polls.

St. Louis County election officials, however, predicted a large turnout of voters as a result of lively contests for county offices and the spirited contest for United States Representative from the Second Congressional District between James L. Sullivan, Democrat, and the Republican incumbent, Congressman Thomas B. Curtis.

Joe Oxenhandler, chairman of the St. Louis County Board of Election Commissioners, estimated 75 to 80 per cent of the 271,476 registered voters in the county would ballot. This would mean a total vote of from 200,000 to 215,000.

Expects Lighter Vote.

Mrs. Lynn Wulfing, chairman of the Republican County Committee, however, estimated a considerably lighter vote, contending the Democrats have exaggerated voter interest in the election. She said she expects 140,000 to 150,000 voters to ballot.

State election officials forecast a light vote throughout Missouri, estimating a total vote of 1,250,000. Gov. James T. Blair said he thought the total number of persons who would go to the polls today would be about 1,000,000, or a little more.

Only two offices subject to state-wide vote are to be filled in the election. They are those of United States Senator from Missouri and State Auditor.

Senator Stuart Symington of Creve Coeur is considered by political observers as a sure winner over his Republican opponent, Miss Hazel Palmer, Sedalia attorney. State Auditor Haskell Holman, Democrat, is

Clerk Oversleeps, Town Loses Race to Give Vote Results First

WATERVILLE, N.H., Nov. 4 (AP)—This community in central New Hampshire was the first in the nation to report election results today.

Its tabulations were completed a few minutes after midnight after the town's 22 voters cast ballots at the home of Town Clerk Wendell Stevenson.

Right behind Waterville was Ellsworth, N.H., which had hoped to be the first in the nation—except that the ballot clerk there overslept.

The Waterville vote for Governor was 15 for Republican candidate Wesley Powell, six for his Democratic opponent, Bernard L. Boutin, and one blank.

On the rest of the ballot, the voters went solidly Republican, except for two votes cast for a Democratic candidate for the Governor's council. In 1956 all 13 ballots cast in Waterville went to Republican gubernatorial candidate Lane Dwinell and the rest of the G.O.P. ticket.

In Ellsworth this year all 12 votes went to Powell and Representative Perkins Bass, shutting out Boutin and Stuart V. Nims, the Democratic candidate for Congress.

Ellsworth usually votes straight Republican. It gave all 12 votes to President Eisenhower in 1956 and all its nine votes to him in 1952.

Elaborate plans for Ellsworth to be first in the nation to announce vote results went awry when Mrs. Richard Murphy, the ballot clerk, failed to show up at midnight, as planned.

Before the voting got under way at 12:20 a.m., she explained she had fallen asleep. The results were ready in 10 minutes, but Chief Selectman Allie Batchelder, who was to announce them, explained his glasses were broken.

He turned the warrants over to Town Clerk Ida Clark, who finally announced the results.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., Nov. 4 (AP)—A mulatto miner said yesterday he is willing to be segregated in Georgia. He and 18 fellow coaldiggers have been invited by Gov. Marvin Griffin to recuperate there from entombment in a collapsed colliery.

It will be the first time that Maurice Ruddick, his wife and 12 children, have had to live apart from white people.

His companions, trapped for days with him when No. 2 colliery was shaken by an underground upheaval, said they would accept the Governor's invitation for an expense-free holiday only if Ruddick did.

"I'll go along according to the rules and regulations," Ruddick told an interviewer.

"There is pressure in that part of the world and I wouldn't want to cause any international incident."

Gov. Griffin had said the 19 miners would be welcome as guests at the Jekyll Island park. But, Griffin said, Ruddick would have to accept segregated quarters for himself and family.

Most miners agreed that Ruddick's decision would be theirs.

Herbert Pepperdine, who survived with Ruddick in a small rock-enclosed chamber, said: "If he's good enough to work with us he's good enough to go on holidays.

"If he can't go we won't go."

RUSSIA RENEWS ITS DEMAND FOR UNCONDITIONAL ENDING OF TESTS

Soviet Delegate Proposes All-Time Bar — East, West Still Spit on Agenda for Geneva Conference.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

GENEVA, Nov. 4 (UPI) — Russia renewed its demand today for immediate unconditional ending of nuclear tests for all time.

It did so in a speech by Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin, which showed the rift between Russia and the West at the present conference remains as deep as ever.

The conference met for two hours in its third session and then adjourned until tomorrow. Apparently it was no nearer agreement on a nuclear test bar and a control system to police it than when it opened last Friday.

A brief communique disclosed that today's meeting was taken up with a speech by Tsarapkin on Russia's plan for an all-time nuclear bar, and with continued fruitless discussion of the rival conference agendas submitted by the United States and Russia.

The communique also disclosed the name of Russia's draft nuclear bar treaty — "Agreement on the Cessation of Tests of Atomic and Hydrogen Weapons."

Peaceful Purposes.

The only significance in the name appeared to be that it showed that the Russians seemingly are aiming at barring further explosions of nuclear weapons but would not rule out nuclear testing for peaceful purposes which the United States insists should be allowed to continue.

The communique showed that neither Russia nor the West so far has backed down on basic positions.

Conference sources said the discussions so far have been firm but polite. They have made it clear that both the Western and Soviet arguments are dictated largely by mutual distrust.

The West fears that once it has pledged itself to bar nuclear testing, the Russians would stall indefinitely on setting up a control system.

The Russians fear the West wants to use the one-year standstill agreement it has proposed for assessing the results of its last series of nuclear tests and then would resume them.

All indications were that the haggling over positions would be lengthy. It was reliably reported that the United Nations personnel who are helping out with the conference have been engaged until at least Dec. 12.

The talks, which opened Friday, ran into their first serious snag yesterday. Both the United States and Russia put forward rival agendas that sharply spotlighted the basic East-West difference over an atom testing bar.

The United States and Britain were firm in rejecting any unconditional nuclear bar commitments. Their objections were based largely on these arguments:

Signature of a pledge to desist from future testing would leave the way open to lengthy, perhaps unsuccessful, bargaining over the policing system.

Such a plan would not allow for the possibility of nuclear explosions by other powers, like France or Red China.

Peaceful Purposes.

It also would not allow for nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes.

It would make no provision for detecting possible violations of the East-West bar in the period before a control system could be set up.

Western diplomats here felt that the Russians are trying to force the pace, but they added there was no question of the United States and Britain yielding on what they consider a basic issue.

The United States delegation chief, Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, was in the chair at today's session.

Khrushchev Predicts West Will Resume Tests in Year.

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 (AP)— Premier Khrushchev said today if the West carries out atomic tests "let them not think that we will meanwhile doze and wait while the imperialists build up their forces against us."

He predicted that the United States and Britain would resume nuclear weapon tests within a year. That was the reason, he said, why the Western nations are negotiating at Geneva for only a year's suspension of tests.

Khrushchev's speech before a workers meeting in Leningrad was carried by Pravda. With him was visiting Polish Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz.

Pravda stressed the unity of Russian and Poland in banner headline over speeches by the two Communist leaders. The headline read "Friendship of people's socialist (Communist) countries is indestructible."

Khrushchev told the Leningrad meeting the United States and Britain need the one-year suspension "to integrate the results of the tests they have just conducted."

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 4 (AP) — President Eisenhower whisked in and out of a voting booth in 24 seconds today, capping his personal campaign for election of a Republican Congress.

The smiling President cast his ballot at 10 a.m. at the Barlow fire hall a few miles from his farm home. He was No. 86 to vote on a crisp, sunny morning.

Mr. Eisenhower flew from Washington by helicopter and was on the ground only 11 minutes. He left for the White House immediately after voting.

The flight to Gettysburg took 40 minutes and the return trip to Washington 61 minutes.

Mrs. Eisenhower traveled to Gettysburg in a White House limousine. She arrived at 11 a.m., took only 11 seconds to cast her ballot, No. 148. She chatted with women workers at the polls for a few minutes before leaving on the return trip to Washington.

Applauded by 150.

A crowd of about 150 gave Mr. Eisenhower a round of applause as he stepped from the helicopter which landed just behind the fire hall at Gettysburg. He was greeted by J. Earl Pitzer, chairman of the Adams county Republican committee, and Bernard V. Miller, judge of elections.

Mr. Eisenhower was escorted inside to a desk where minority inspector Anna K. Maring handed him a voting certificate. A clerk, Mrs. William Sentz, checked his registration card on which his occupation is listed as President of the United States.

He signed the certificate and then had to come back and fill in his farm home address.

Mrs. Lillian M. McCleaf, the majority inspector, then handed him a ballot and he ducked behind a drape into a booth at the right end of a string of five.

When he came out the President deposited his ballot quickly in a padlocked box—too quickly for photographers who persuaded him to drop another, a blank.

Accompanied by Son.

Mr. Eisenhower was accompanied into the fire hall by his son and daughter-in-law, Army Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower. Also along were his Negro valet, John Moaney, and Moaney's wife, and Rose Wood, the maid of the President's wife.

Barbara Eisenhower followed the President into the voting booth. She was inside only 15 seconds. Her husband John was out in about 25 seconds. Then the Moaneys and Rose Wood balloted.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, and Maj. Gen. Howard Synder, Mr. Eisenhower's physician, joined Secret Service agents in a Marine helicopter which followed the Army aircraft.

Just before the takeoff, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles called on Mr. Eisenhower for a half hour's discussion of the meeting of Colombo pact nations in Seattle. The President will address the meeting Monday.

The President and his son spent the afternoon golfing at Burning Tree Country Club.

EUROPEAN COAL COMBINE TO AID DISTRESSED MINES

© New York Times News Service

LUXEMBOURG, Nov. 4— The European Coal and Steel Community will aid continued production of coal even though the industry is distressed with mounting stocks. A council of ministers approved yesterday a $7,000,000 program of grants and loans to mines that have at least 35 days of production stored above ground.

The six member states are Belgium, France, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and West Germany. Belgium and West Germany are the chief sufferers. The decline in coal consumption is attributed to a switch to oil, to economies and possibly to some slowing of production. A decline in shipping rates has made United States coal cheaper than coal produced here.

SWEDEN VOICES CONCERN OVER SOVIET ATOM TESTS

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4 (UPI) — The Swedish government said today it viewed with grave concern recent Soviet nuclear weapon tests near Scandinavia.

A Foreign Office communique said Sweden had asked its Armed Forces Research Institute to forward all information available on the explosions, which occurred off the west coast of Russia's Arctic Novaya Zemlya island between Sept. 30 and Oct. 24. The spokesman said the government planned no protest at this time.

In the Russian tests which stopped two days after Scandinavian papers reported their location, Swedish institutions registered eight explosions, some of them with a power of ten megatons.

ASSERTS CHINESE REDS USE SCIENTISTS TRAINED IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (UPI) —The Chinese Communists are using the services of American-educated atomic scientists to work on projects to put a satellite into orbit and shoot a rocket to the moon, a Chinese chemist said yesterday.

Dr. Wang Chi-hsiang, who left the mainland after working with the Reds, said three of the atomic scientists were trained at the California Institute of Technology.

"They have people, very smart men, working on projects to put a satellite into orbit," Wang said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report, a weekly news magazine. "They have a project set up to fire a rocket to the moon."

NEW AIR AGENCY TAKES ITS FIRST OFFICIAL ACTION

Unit Absorbs Airways Modernization Board, Sets Its Sights on CAA.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —The new Federal Aviation Agency, created to control air traffic in the jet age, executed its first official act yesterday by absorbing the Airways Modernization Board.

It also set its sights on a unit more familiar to the public—the Civil Aeronautics Administration. The new agency plans to absorb the CAA by Jan. 1.

By that date, the FAA also plans to take over the air safety functions and some employes of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Eventually the new agency expects to supervise 15,000 personnel, both military and civilian, and own equipment and facilities worth about a billion dollars.

Under the new law, the FAA came into existence last Saturday. But no official action was taken until yesterday, when FAA administrator Elwood R. Quesada stepped behind his desk.

A former emergency hospital located near the White House will quarter 800 top employes of FAA. It has been remodeled at a cost of $800,000.

2 COUNTS FINISH WORLD TREASURE HUNT, WIN $8000

BRUSSELS, Nov. 4 (AP)— Two Belgian counts came home from an around-the-world treasure hunt yesterday with a prisoner's uniform from Alcatraz and the autographed suspenders of a Paris publisher. These items and others meant they had won an $8000 bet.

Belgian business man Dino Vanstappen mapped out the treasure hunt and promised the prize to Count Marc d' Oultremont and Count Abel Armand if they got round the course completing 30 of 33 stunts.

Trophies they had to bring back included a Tehran telephone directory, a teak wood statue from Bangkok, a crystal ball from Hong Kong and a policeman's helmet from New Delhi. They also had to produce photographs of themselves in Canadian Mounties' uniforms, riding a camel in Iran, standing with snakes coiled around their necks and lying atop a fakir's nailed plank.

They had two failures. They did not get liberation papers from Bangkok jail, and a Chinese frog they acquired in Hong Kong died on the way home. Vanstappen, director of an aperitif firm, announced at a cocktail party that he was paying up.

POST OF ATOMIC AID TO PRESIDENT SEEMS AT END

No Plans to Name Successor to Strauss — McCone Cool to Double Role.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — Without formal announcement, the White House apparently has quietly abolished the job of special assistant to the President for atomic energy affairs.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, in answer to a question by the Post-Dispatch, said no decision had been reached in the matter. He added, however, that it was "unlikely" the position would be filled again.

The only holder of the job was Lewis L. Strauss, who served both as a presidential adviser and as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission from July 1953 until he retired last June 30. He since has been appointed Secretary of Commerce.

'Two Hats' Issue.

Strauss's wearing of "two hats" was a center of controversy for much of his career as AEC chairman. Several of his fellow commissioners complained that they did not learn of important Administration policy decisions in the atomic energy field until after they were made.

It was brought out in Congressional hearings that some of the commissioners had no advance knowledge of President Eisenhower's proposals for an international atomic energy agency or for an international atomic energy conference. They said also that they were not consulted before the President's statement that the United States no longer was seeking to make bigger and bigger nuclear weapons.

The committee hearings also brought out that early negotiations in the Dixon-Yates power contract, since repudiated by the Administration, were begun without the knowledge of some of the commissioners.

McCone in Only One Role.

Strauss's successor, John A. McCone, has said twice that he sees no need to be a special assistant to the President in addition to being chairman of the AEC. He said this at his nomination hearing and again last week at his first news conference.

Strauss had a new position as special presidential assistant for atoms-for-peace matters for a few months after his term on the AEC ended.

McCone was asked at his news conference: "Are there special assistants for any amount of atomic matters, or is it the commission and the President?"

"It is solely the commission," McCone replied. "There is no special assistant to the President for atomic matter.

"It is my opinion that my relationship to the President as chairman of the commission is sufficiently close so that I can serve in any advisory capacity which he seeks. I do not think it is necessary for me to wear two hats."

Batista's Man Wins in Cuban Election Marked by Bloodshed

Rivero Aguero an Easy Victor — Hundreds of Thousands Stay Away From Polls.

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA, Nov. 4 (AP) — Former Premier Andres Rivero Aguero has been elected by a wide margin to succeed his political sponsor, President Fulgencio Batista, incomplete returns showed today.

A light turnout and bloodshed marked the heavily guarded balloting in the revolt-torn nation yesterday. Hundreds of thousands of the nation's 2,780,000 eligible voters stayed away from the polls. Government sources, however, predicted final returns would show 65 per cent voted.

Rebel leader Fidel Castro had called for a boycott. With eight candidates killed during the campaigning, Castro threatened death to all other candidates and reprisals against those who voted.

Rivero Aguero boosted his lead over his nearest opponent to 5 to 1. Army headquarters reported unofficial returns from 5032 out of 8521 precincts showed:

Rivero Aguero, 651,859 votes; Carlos Marquez Sterling, 136,674; former President Raymon Grau San Martin, 103,208, and Alberto Salas Amaro, 38,024.

Other Returns Lacking.

Returns were lacking on other races. Government quarters expressed belief that most of their candidates for the Senate, House, six governorships and 126 mayoralities were being sweps into office.

Rivero Aguero said the vote showed the Cuban people wanted an end to civil strife and peace quickly established.

Election day bloodshed included a mistaken exchange of fire between troops and a police patrol car at Mariano, the national military headquarters. Soldiers shot at the police under the impression they were rebels. One man was killed.

Two gunmen fired from a car at the home of Vice President Rafael Gaus Incian. One was captured. The Vice President was not at home.

Two soldiers guarding a polling place in western Del Rio province were wounded by gunfire. A political agent and a bus driver were shot dead.

ANDRES RIVERO AGUERO

A congressional candidate was reported to have died of a heart attack at Cienfuegos after rebels threatened to kill him.

Ballot Boxes Burned.

Rebels burned a number of ballot boxes at Bauta, 15 miles southwest of Havana.

President Batista said early today Cubans had gone to the polls enthusiastically, despite Castro's threats, and demonstrated "a fervent desire for peace and concord." He declared the people had "eloquently replied at the ballot box" to rebel terrorism and threats.

Rivero Aguero is pledged to carry on the policies of Batista, who has dominated Cuban politics off and on for a quarter century.

Batista's four-year presidential term ends next Feb. 24. He did not seek re-election.

Rivero Aguero resigned the premiership last spring to participate in the campaign with the backing of all four pro-government parties. He is a 53-year-old historian and lawyer who formerly headed education, agriculture and labor ministries.

He is a native of Oriente province, the birthplace and stronghold of Castro's rebellion. His brother Nicolas, a Santiago city councilman, was shot to death by unidentified gunmen at his home in that Oriente capital last July 1.

A GOOD TIME TO RETIRE

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 4 (AP) —It was a big day at the Topeka plant of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., but it had its embarrassing moment.

The company's directors, here for a board meeting yesterday, were touring the facility in battery-powered conveyances when plant workers and a newsman noticed the vehicles were equipped with tires made by a competing manufacturer.

GIFTS TO G.O.P. IN WEEK 7 TIMES THOSE TO RIVAL

Republican Committee Took In $166,525 Compared With $23,329 for Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —The Republican National Committee took in seven times as much in campaign contributions as its Democratic rival the final week before election, according to reports made public yesterday.

The reports filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives showed the G.O.P. National Committee received $166,525 from donations in the week ended Oct. 29. Spending was listed at $138,062.

Receipts of the Democratic National Committee were reported at $23,329 for the week and the outgo at $22,437.

The money ratio between the national committees narrowed when previous campaign gifts were taken into account, although the Republicans remained well ahead.

The Republican committee reported $410,103 in gifts since Sept. 1 while its spending totaled $352,353.

The Democratic committee's total for this period was not listed but an unofficial tabulation placed its receipts at $143,765 and spending at $138,176.

The figures filed with the House clerk by law gave only a fraction of the actual campaign spending around the country. Many other organizations are in the political fight too.

Other finances which were reported for the week ended Oct. 29 included:

National Republican Congressional Committee — received $52,555 and spent $48,064.

DEMOCRAT TAKES LEAD IN EARLY KANSAS COUNT

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 4 (AP) —The Democratic candidate for Governor forged a slim lead in Kansas on the first, trickling unofficial count of votes in today's election.

Kansas laws permit the unofficial counting of ballots during the progress of the voting. An early afternoon tabulation from 143 of the state's 2999 precincts gave Democratic Gov. George Docking 7633 votes and Republican Clyde Reed 6085.

SYMINGTON SAYS WASTEFUL DRIFT RAISES NATIONAL DEFENSE OUTLAY

3-Member G.O.P. Panel Speaks on Television for Miss Palmer at Close of Senate Campaign.

Cutting the cost of national defense affords "the one great opportunity for tremendous savings to the American taxpayer, at no sacrifice whatever to security," United States Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, said in a television speech ending his campaign for re-election last night.

Miss Hazel Palmer, Republican nominee for Symington's Senate seat, had been scheduled to deliver her final campaign speech on television station KMOX-TV, but returned to her home in Sedalia, Mo., because of the death of her father, John W. Palmer, a former member of Congress, early yesterday.

Symington Charges Drift.

Symington, speaking on television station KTVI, recalled the fight for reorganization of the Department of Defense and said:

"For many years it has been my expressed conviction that after we have organized and are operating our defenses on the basis of progress, instead of continuing to let them drift along on the wasteful sea of tradition, we automatically will save the American taxpayer billions of dollars annually."

As to United States foreign policy, the Senator said our present policy has resulted in a loss of American prestige in world affairs and "we must start establishing polices wihch create events, instead of continuing to let events create our policies."

Members of the panel which spoke for Miss Palmer were: Lon Hocker, St. Louis attorney and Republican nominee for Governor in 1956; Mrs. Lynn Wulfing, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Committee, and Wayne L. Millsap, president of the St. Louis Young Republican Club and chairman of the Republican State Finance Committee.

Her View of Defense.

"To Miss Palmer," Mrs. Wulfing said, "national defense is more than just guns, Sputniks and intercontinental ballistics missiles. It also includes economic defense—the maintenance of a sound economy; educational defense—provision of schools to keep our children intellectually strong, and social and cultural defense, so that America may keep her role of world leadership in years to come."

Hocker said Miss Palmer "does not sell America short by talking down our defense policies." In campaign speeches, Miss Palmer has criticized Symington for "praising" Russia's progress in the missile field and criticizing this country's.

Millsap, asserting the cost of living has risen only 8 per cent under the Republican Administration, said Miss Palmer, if elected, "will work to continue President Eisenhower's programs, and that is what the people want."

"Time and again I have stressed the importance to every citizen of electing a Republican Congress in order to assure America of sane, sound, progressive government," the President's telegram read. "This effort concerns every political contest from coast to coast, and indeed I wish you well in your campaign for the United States Senate."

Candidate Gives Platform.

Herbert Lasky, Republican nominee for prosecuting attorney of St. Louis county, summarized his campaign pledges at a breakfast meeting yesterday, terminating his campaign.

They include: Vigorous prosecution of child molesters; a constant educational program by members of his staff on prevenion of juvenile delinquency; full co-operation with all police agencies; vigilance to keep organized gangsters and hoodlums out of the county, and a relentless campaign against indecent literature and smut.

VENDING MACHINES SERVE HOT MEALS

Their Operation Becoming Big Business of Automatic Selling Industry.

Serving hot meals in factories and offices has become the fastest growing segment of the automatic merchandising industry, representatives of the National Automatic Merchandising Association said today at Kiel Auditorium.

William S. Fishman of Chicago, president of the association, said sales of food, beverages and services through coin-operated devices would reach $2,131,970,000 this year, an increase of more than $100,000,000 over 1957.

Since the advent of hot foods in vending machines four years ago, numerous concerns have entered the business of providing complete food service for industrial plants. Such service now is provided for plants with as many as 20,000 employes each.

Kitchens in Some Plants.

In some cases, the automatic merchandisers operate a kitchen at plants and prepare food there for vending through coin machines. In others, food is transported to plants. Plants save the expense of maintaining a cafeteria.

With his gleaming banks of machines dispensing soft drinks, milk, sandwiches, soup, trays of hot food and what not, the new type of machine-age contractor usually insists on keeping attendants on the scene, an association spokesman said.

The attendants are there not only to service the machines and make change, it was explained, but to add the human touch.

"It's just a machine, and people like to see people," the spokesman said. "That's all there is to it."

New Techniques.

Evidence of the growth of automatic merchandising in recent years is the impressive array of food and equipment concerns that have modified their products to fit the machines or have developed new vending techniques.

Both National Rejectors Inc. of St. Louis and another concern, the A.B.T. Division of Atwood Vacuum Machine Co., Rockford, Ill., are displaying at Kiel Auditorium devices which can handle paper money. This development is considered a "breakthrough" in the automatic merchandising field.

A New York firm has come out with a soft-drink machine with a built-in unit for making shaved ice. The machine drops 1¼ ounces of shaved ice into each cup of liquid, thus producing a beverage the company thinks "people will gladly pay 10 cents to buy."

The same company boasts that one of its soft-drink dispensers was first to cross under the polar ice cap, having been aboard the United States submarine Nautilus in the historic voyage last summer.

INQUEST FOR MAN FOUND DEAD IN CELL CONTINUED

An inquest will be continued tomorrow into the death of a man identified by police as John Carl Stratmann who was found dead Saturday in a cell at Police Headquarters. He was 53 years old.

The inquest, which began yesterday, was continued after Dr. John J. Connor, coroner's physician, said that death resulted from internal injuries. Police said Stratmann may have been struck by an automobile.

He was found Saturday at Tenth and Market streets. He was taken to City Hospital where a physician said he was suffering from acute alcoholism. Booked suspected of being drunk on the street, Stratmann was placed in a cell. He was found later by other prisoners, lying on the floor of the cell, and was pronounced dead at City Hospital.

WOMAN INJURED WHEN HIT, DRAGGED 160 FEET BY AUTO

Mrs. Dorothy Gray, 4049 Delmar boulevard, was injured seriously yesterday when she was struck and dragged by an automobile at Sarah street and West Belle place.

Roland Plank, 2906A Lemp avenue, told police he was unaware his machine had struck Mrs. Gray until witnesses called to him to halt. Marks in the street indicated she had been dragged more than 160 feet.

Mrs. Gray is in Homer G. Phillips Hospital with head and internal injuries. Plank was booked suspected of careless driving.

FATAL SHOOTING FOLLOWS DRINKING BOUT, QUARREL

Robert Francis, laborer, 2420 Cora avenue, was shot and killed yesterday by Wilburn E. Bean, 3411 Hickory street, during a quarrel that followed a drinking bout at the latter's home.

Bean, a Negro, told police Francis struck him several times and forced him to flee from his quarters. When Francis followed him outside, he said, he ran back into the house, obtained a revolver and fired one shot at Francis. He then called police.

Francis, a Negro, died at City Hospital.

TALK ON FRANCE THURSDAY

Ian Forbes Fraser, director of the American Library in Paris, will speak on "De Gaulle and the New Republic" at 8 p.m., Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Thomas M. Sayman, 5399 Lindell boulevard. The meeting is sponsored by the Greater St. Louis chapter of the American Association for the United Nations.

Fraser, a native of Scotland, obtained his doctorate at Columbia University in 1939. He has held the library position since 1947. In addition to that job he also is an instructor at the French Command and General Staff School.

FIREMEN RESCUE BABY BOY FROM BURNING APARTMENT

Glenn Taylor, 3-month-old son of Mrs. Virginia Taylor, 3338 Franklin avenue, was under treatment for smoke inhalation today following a fire yesterday in the Taylor apartment. The blaze apparently was started by an older sister playing with matches.

Firemen of Engine Co. 17 rescued the baby from a bed in the third floor apartment. Police said the mother reported that Betty Ann, her 2-year-old daughter, had been playing with matches.

M'KNIGHT ROAD REPAVING PROJECT STARTS TOMORROW

The east half of McKnight road between Ellsworth drive and Deer Creek Woods drive will be closed for about three weeks starting tomorrow, St. Louis County Highway Engineer John J. Leslie announced today.

Closing is required by plans to remove the existing pavement and replace it with a new eight-inch concrete slab, Leslie said.

About 621 feet of the eastern half of the road along the east side of Tilles Park is involved in the closing.

JUDGE STUDIES DR. M'CAFFERY OUSTER CASE

Defense Concludes Its Testimony — Decision to Be Given Later This Week.

A decision as to whether Dr. James J. McCaffery should be removed from the Board of Education will be given later this week. Circuit Judge David J. Murphy took the case under advisement yesterday after the conclusion of defense testimony. Dr. McCaffery is accused of improper conduct in having school board employes work at his son's home.

Dr. McCaffery, who did not testify, has readily admitted he used the maintenance workers, but has said he paid them for their time. The plaintiffs, two other board members, Louis H. Antoine and Daniel L. Schlafly, contend he had the workers at the residence not only during the periods to which he admits, but at other times as well.

The former school board president has said the work was performed during the work weeks of May 12 to 16 and May 19 to 23 and that he has canceled checks to prove he paid the men. Thus, the school board "was not deprived of a single, solitary dime," his attorney, Mortimer A. Rosecan, told the court.

Plaintiffs' Contention.

The plaintiffs argued at the trial that the workers were at the home, at 6117 McPherson avenue, before May 12 and were paid only by the school board. Even if Dr. McCaffery had paid the men for all of their time, he was still guilty of gross misconduct, they contended.

Final witness yesterday, the ninth trial day, was Joseph Eisele, a school board plumber who worked at the residence. He disputed earlier testimony by a plaintiff's witness that the plumbing work would have required 10 days. Eisele said he worked only four days.

He also said he used considerably less materials than the plaintiff's witness, Louis A. Gilmore, a plumbing contractor, had estimated after his inspection.

Eisele testified he worked at the McCaffery home as temporary employe of the McHenry & Grahn Plumbing Co., with the approval of his Board of Education foreman, John Grimes.

He said he received a check for his work at the residence from John G. McHenry, a partner in the firm, last May 15, last day of his employment there. Bank clearance date on the check was May 29. Eisele testified he had handed the check to his wife and did not know when she cashed it.

Failed to Name Helper.

Cross-examined about a deposition he gave last June 11, Eisele acknowledged he had failed to name a plumber's helper, Michael Costello, among the board employes working at the McCaffery home while he was there.

Eisele said: "Costello didn't help me with the plumbing installations. I had nothing to do with Costello whatever."

He was then shown four photographs made in front of the McCaffery home, three of which pictured Eisele and Costello together and the fourth showing Costello walking alone around the front of Eisele's automobile. In one of the pictures the two men were walking toward the car and in another they were peering into the trunk.

$984,940 BID IS LOWEST FOR KINLOCH HOMES

McCarthy Bros. Construction Co. Makes That Offer on Public Housing Project.

McCarthy Bros. Construction Co., 4903 Delmar boulevard, was low bidder for construction of a $1,500,000 100-unit, low-rent public housing project in Kinloch, Edward T. Wright, executive director of the Kinloch Housing Authority, said today.

The McCarthy firm's bid of $984,940 was lowest of three. Other bidders were Buckley Construction Co., with a bid of $998,529, and Millstone Construction, Inc., $1,037,000. Bids are subject to approval of the Federal Public Housing Administration.

The project will be on a seven-acre tract on Lix avenue near the center of Kinloch, a predominantly Negro community. Land has been acquired and cleared with a $275,000 Government advance. A federal loan to pay construction cost will be amortized from rentals over a 40-year period.

Plans call for 16 one- and two-story frame buildings with masonry firewalls between units. There will be 16 one-bedroom apartments, 44 two-bedroom, 30 three-bedroom and 10 four-bedroom units. A community center will house the housing authority offices.

The project is the first of its kind in Kinloch. Plans are under way for other projects under the urban renewal program, Wright said. About one-fourth of the homes in Kinloch are considered slum dwellings, he added.

McCarthy Bros. firm was the lowest of three bidders last week on 580 apartments to complete the Joseph M. Darst public housing project in St. Louis. It submitted a bid of $4,713,940.

TWO YOUTHS ARRESTED IN CHURCH BOWLING ALLEY

Two youths who broke into the bowling alley of Epiphany of Our Lord Catholic Church at 3164 Ivanhoe avenue were arrested early today after the Rev. Paul F. Kaletta, assistant pastor, summoned police.

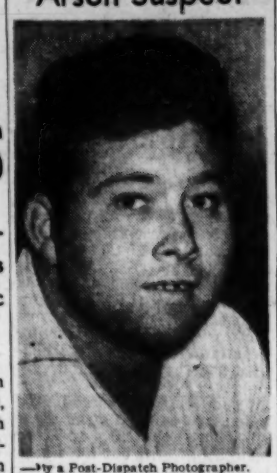

The prisoners, booked as Richard Watkins, 17 years old, and James Ashlock, 18, both of Maplewood, admitted climbing a utility pole to reach an insecure window, officers said. They used a tire tool to force a door to the bowling alley, but obtained nothing, owing to the prompt arrival of police.

Father Kaletta became suspicious when he saw an automobile parked near the bowling alley, and telephoned police.

DONALD E. COONCE

VISITOR SEEKING WALKING RECORD ACROSS THE U.S.

A Detroit reducing equipment dealer was walking east across Illinois today after footing it through St. Louis yesterday in his effort to break the 72½-day walking record from Los Angeles to New York.

The walker, 47-year-old Erwin Erkfitz, left the West Coast Sept. 16 and he said he hoped to reach New York by Nov. 22. This would put him there in 68 days, well under the mark established by a Californian in 1953, he said.

Erkfitz said he hopes to revive interest in walking. He added that he also has attractive offers from food, shoe and clothing firms in the event he breaks the record. He is accompanied by a man in a station wagon containing supplies for the trip.

In his brief stop here Erkfitz was nursing a blister and a tender sacroiliac, the result of walking on the banked curves of U. S. Highway 66 in the Missouri Ozarks, he said.

OWNER OF VENDING MACHINE FIRM CALLED BY GRAND JURY

John Gazzoli, owner of the Star Novelty Co., was served yesterday with a subpena to appear before next Thursday's session of the St. Louis county grand jury, which is investigating organized crime.

The subpena called for Gazzoli to produce records showing distribution of his vending machines and financial transactions. Gazzoli was seriously wounded in an exchange of shots with three robbers in his office at 4151 Delmar boulevard last March 21.

Scheduled to appear with Gazzoli Thursday are Jack Joseph and William Spinelli, both of whom testified previously. They are stockholders in another vending machine firm, Automatic Cigarette Sales, Inc.

ADMITS TRYING TO SET FIRE TO ROOMING HOUSE

Suspect Says He Sought Vengeance for Dead Friend Whose Wife Owns Building.

Donald E. Coonce admitted to police yesterday that he attempted to set fire to a crowded rooming house Sunday night to avenge the killing of a friend, whose wife owns the building, police reported today. The friend was Thomas M. Akiki, a delivery service operator, who was shot and killed in a struggle with his wife a year ago.

Coonce, who lives in the 1900 block of Hickory street, told police he thought the rooming house was vacant. Officers reported there are 18 occupants, including 12 children.

He was arrested when he returned to the rooming house, at 1924 Chouteau avenue, to inquire why the fire department had not arrived. He was quoted as saying he had been drinking and decided to set the place on fire to avenge Akiki. Police said he told them he obtained a can of gasoline from a filling station, poured the fuel on a hallway at the rooming house and ignited it with a cigarette lighter. He ran a short distance to await developments, he related.

Tenants saw the flames and put out the fire. Coonce, a 21-year-old laborer, was booked suspected of arson.

Mrs. Akiki was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter last February, following a trial in circuit court. She testified her husband, 35, had struck her in a quarrel at their home, 1018 Mississippi avenue. He then producer a pistol, she said, and the weapon was discharged when she grappled with Akiki, who was shot in the head.

BOY, 13, HAS REVOLVER, TELLS POLICE HE STOLE IT

A revolver was found in the waistband of a 13-year-old boy whom police stopped at Twelfth and Carr streets at 1 a.m. today.

The boy said he stole the .38-caliber revolver, a flashlight and $1 after breaking into a newspaper distribution branch at 710 North Thirteenth street last night. He was booked for juvenile authorities.

Lt. Arthur Havey and Patrolman Anthony Caruso stopped the boy to inquire why he was on the streets in violation of the curfew.

DELIVERY TRUCK DRIVERS REJECT CONTRACT OFFER

Members of Teamsters Local 709 voted today 600 to 5 against accepting contract proposals made by representatives of department and other retail stores in this area. A spokesman said following a meeting of the delivery truck drivers at Teamsters Hall, 4141 Forest Park avenue, that no further negotiating sessions are scheduled and the strike would continue.

"The companies and the union are still a little apart on fringe benefits, and the men are holding out for a contract equal to those of drivers in other comparable businesses," the spokesman said.

The strike over wages and other issues was begun yesterday by drivers serving downtown department stores, their suburban branches and other retail stores. Deliveries from the stores were halted.

The proposal considered by the members today was said to include wage increases of 35 cents an hour over a three-year period, plus a 75 per cent increase in the company contribution to the health and welfare fund. Under the old contract the drivers were paid $2.30 an hour, helpers $2.22, and warehousemen $1.94½.

About 600 to 650 men, members of Local 709, walked off the job yesterday with the dispute still in negotiation. The men are the furniture and appliance drivers and employes of the warehouses from which they work.

The biggest department stores affected are Famous-Barr, Scruggs Vandervoort Barney and Stix, Baer & Fuller. William H. Semsrott, president of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis, said that altogether about 100 downtown retailers are affected.

The strike involved the branches as well as downtown stores, since members of the same union also drive for the branches. Picket lines were established.

Representatives of Local 709 and the Associated Retailers met until late Sunday night in the presence of men of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service.

They also had met last Friday night, in what Semsrott described as a "routine bargaining session," and it was believed up to then that a walkout would be avoided.

Peter Kunkel, president of Local 709, said the dispute was over wages and other items of disagreement but declined to go into detail.

NEW PLANT NEAR CHICAGO GETS FIRST NUCLEAR FUEL

Arrival of the first nuclear fuel at Commonwealth Edison Company's Dresden Nuclear Power Station near Chicago, largest reactor under construction in this country, was announced today. Part of the fuel, worth $1,700,000, passed through St. Louis county last week in a transport truck on U.S. Highway 66, officials of Union Electric Co. said.

They added that the shipment was the first of nine needed to start the Dresden station. Union Electric is helping build the new plant.

The shipment came from the General Electric Co. nuclear fuel fabricating facility at San Jose, Calif. The fuel, enriched uranium, was refined some months ago at the Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. plant at Hematite, Mo. Union Electric officials said the nuclear fuel in its present form is harmless and does not become radioactive until after it is "triggered" inside a reactor core.

WOMAN HELD, TELLS POLICE OF EXTENSIVE SHOPLIFTING

A woman who said she was Miss Teretha Mae Robinson, 4314 Evans avenue, told police yesterday she had stolen more than $1000 worth of merchandise in recent shopliftings from St. Louis stores. She was arrested Saturday at Famous-Barr Co.'s downtown store.

At the time of her arrest, she had $119 worth of merchandise taken from Famous-Barr and $145 worth of articles stolen from Stix, Baer and Fuller. Her thefts consisted of costume jewelry, gloves, perfume and various other items.

A warrant charging her with stealing under $50 was issued yesterday by the prosecuting attorney's office. She was about to be released on bond when Special Officers James Shea Jr. and Jack Drazen began questioning her about previous thefts. She admitted she had stolen at least $800 on previous Saturdays at various stores, they reported.

NEPAL TO ACCEPT GIFT HOSPITAL FROM RUSSIANS

SEATTLE, Nov. 4. (AP)—Nepal, tiny southeast Asian kingdom lying between India and Communist China, has accepted a 50-bed hospital as a gift from the Soviet Union and will enter into an aid agreement with Russia early next year.

This was disclosed today at the Colombo plan conference by Nara Pratap Thapa, secretary of the Ministry of Foreign affairs.

"We want to live as good neighbors," he said, "but we will never subscribe to Communism."

Thapa said the hospital unit was offered to King Mehendra Bir Birkram Shahdev by Soviet Premier Khrushchev during the King's visit to the Soviet Union last June.

Election

Branch Banking Issue.

One of three propositions that are being voted on throughout the state has been reported to have created more interest in some sections of Missouri than have the contests for elective offices.

This is the initiative proposal that would permit banks in Missouri to operate branch offices within the county in which the parent bank is located, except that banks in St. Louis and Kansas City would be permitted to open branches in area 12 miles outside the city limits.

Voters in St. Louis received four ballots when they went to the polls. In addition to the regular candidates' ballot, there was a separate judicial ballot containing the names of nine of the circuit judges and one judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, who are seeking retention in office under the non-partisan court plan. Another ballot contained eight proposed amendments to the city charter. The fourth ballot contained the branch banking proposal and two proposed amendments to the Missouri Constitution.

One of the proposed constitutional amendments would eliminate the present requirement that the state auditor pre-audit state expenditures, as well as post-audit accounts. The other would permit new residents of Missouri to vote for President and Vice President after 60 days residency, instead of one year.

7 Offices in City.

Seven major offices are at stake in the city—corcuit clerk, license collector, prosecuting attorney, collector of revenue, recorder of deeds, clerk of the circuit court for criminal causes and clerk of the court of criminal correction. Incumbent officeholders, all Democrats, are seeking re-election.

Chief interest in these contests has centered during the campaign on the contest for license collector. Ancel A. Skaggs, former chairman of the Republican City Committee and the Republican nominee for the office, has bitterly attacked the incumbent, Joseph T. (Juggy) Hayden, for his administration of the office.

In addition to the seven major offices, state representatives are being elected in 18 districts in the city, state senators are being chosen in three even-numbered districts and magistrates and constables are being elected in 10 districts. An alderman is being chosen in the Sixteenth ward to fill an unexpired term.

Voting machines were used in the city in Wards One through Sixteen. They were used for the first time in the city at the August primary elections in Wards One through Eleven.

State, county and city offices were closed today, but circuit judges were available at the Civil Courts Building in the city and at the Clayton Courthouse to hear appeals of voters denied ballots.

Banks were closed, but most business offices and stores remained open. Taverns were closed and must remain closed for a half hour after the polls close.

Of the many spirited contests in St. Louis county, the race between A. Clifford Jones, Republican, and James H. J. McNary, Democrat, for county supervisor, the top administrative post in the county, has attracted most attertion and a close vote is expected.

Other offices being filled in the county are prosecuting attorney, circuit clerk, recorder of deeds, county clerk, collector of revenue, probate judge and four circuit judges. Four members of the County Council from the odd-numbered districts are being chosen, state representatives in nine districts and a state senator in the Fourteenth district are being elected. Magistrates and constables also are being named in district votes.

PRODUCER SAM ZIMBALIST DIES WHEN MAKING MOVIE

ROME, Nov. 4 (AP)—American movie producer Sam Zimbalist died in Rome late today after a sudden heart attack on the set of his latest spectacle, "Ben Hur." He was 57 years old.

The Hollywood producer of "Quo Vadis," "King Solomon's Mines," "Boom Town," and "30 Second over Tokyo" collapsed at Rome's "movie city," Cinecitta. He was rushed to his Rome villa, where he died a few hours later.

"Ben Hur," being made at Cinecitta, was to have been his greatest. It had an advance budget of $10,000,000, the biggest ever set aside for a single movie.

U.N. Park List Proposed.

HOOVER ASSERTS HE CAN'T PREDICT ELECTION RESULT

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover said as he voted today that he had no idea how the elections would turn out.

"You have to be young and vigorous if you would indulge in a political campaign," he commented. Hoover is 84 years old.

Former national Democratic chairman James A. Farley arrived at the same East Fifty-first street voting place as the Republican ex-President was about to leave. The two men exchanged greetings and shook hands.

DRINKING, EATING FIGURES FOR MUNICH OKTOBERFEST

MUNICH, Germany, Nov. 4 (UPI)—The statistics for the 16 days of Munich's riotous Oktoberfest were announced today.

the committee that Teamster officials from Seattle had attempted to muscle in on vice and gambling rackets in Portland.

Crosby denied he had met in November 1954 with Elkins and Thomas J. Sheridan, an enforcement official of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission, in Crosby's office in the Teamsters' building in Portland.

Both Elkins and Sheridan contradicted Crosby's story.

Mykalo and Gardone were charged with lying to the grand jury when they testified that their union president, Cross, was not present with them in the hotel rooms of several delegates to a union convention in San Francisco in October 1956 when several persons were assaulted.

Cross's indictment had charged that he lied in connection with the same incident. The grand jury noted the Senate committee had received testimony from others attending the convention that Cross was present when the altercation took place.

The Crosby indictment was in one count, Gardone's contained two counts, and Mykalo's three.

The federal perjury statute provides for up to five years in prison or $2000 fine or both for infractions.

National Vote

next Congress, with a new seat for Alaska, will be 219.

Governors' Contests.

In hotly contested Governors' races, Democrats were expected to eke out a net gain of one to three in what might become some spectacular trading of state control by the two parties.

Taking the spotlight was New York's battle of the millionaires, the effort of Republican Nelson Rockefeller to take the Governorship away from Democrat Averell Harriman.

Rockefeller, a potential bidder for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination if he wins, was given a slight edge over Harriman in final prevote canvasses. On the other hand, G.O.P. Representative Kenneth B. Keating appeared likely to trail Democrat Frank Hogan in the Senate race unless Rockefeller rolls up a Republican tide.

California's fueding Republicans seemed headed for a defeat that would sweep Senator William F. Knowland, the party's candidate for Governor, and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, its Senatorial nominee, out of political life. Knowland nudged Knight out of the Governor's race and they have been shooting at each other since.

Attorney General Eumund G. (Pat) Brown, the Democrat, was a long odds favorite to beat Knowland. Knight was reported trailing Democratic Representative Clair Engle in the senatorial race.

Blow to Nixon.

Loss of both the California Governorship and the senatorial seat could set back the ambitions of Vice President Nixon to become the 1960 G.O.P. presidential nominee. The ability of his home base of California to produce a majority for a Republican presidential candidate then would become suspect.

Nixon's political future could also be clouded by a new rival in Rockefeller, if the later wins. Nevertheless, Nixon went into New York in his extensive campaigning to urge the voters to back Rockefeller and Keating.

With Nixon doing most of the back-breaking campaigning for the Republicans, President Eisenhower put in selected licks at the Democrats in the final weeks before the election. He assailed what he called "harebrained spending schemes" and labeled many Democrats as "radicals" and "gloomdoggers."

Former President Truman carried the ball most of the time for the Democrats, blasting away at the Republican Administration as incompetent and inept. Adlai E. Stevenson, twice the party's presidential nominee, joined in similar cannonading.

Potential Candidates.

The Democrats also brought into action some potential candidates for their party's 1960 presidential nomination. These included several who hoped to roll up substantial re-election margins to impress party members with their vote-getting ability.

In this class are Senators John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri and Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan. Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey was a proxy entry in this class with efforts to elect Democrat Harrison A. Williams to the Senate in his state.

New Jersey's is one of the 20 Republican Senate seats at stake in the voting. The Democrats have 13 on the block, but are certain to hold those in Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Among their other seven, they expected a close contest only in Wisconsin.

Republicans, on the other hand, might lose Senate seats in California, Connecticut, Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania and two in West Virginia. They are fearful, too, of what might happen to their candidates in Arizona, Minnesota, Nevada and New York.

Unopposed Candidates.

In House contests, Democrats start with 89 seats in the South and elsewhere for which the Republicans put up no candidates. Representative William H. Bates of Massachusetts was the only unopposed Republican incumbent.

Democrats are counting heavily on House gains in such states as California, Connecticut, Indiana, Michigan, New York, Ohio and Washington.

Republicans are putting their highest hopes on Governors' races where they think they can topple Democrats in New York, Rhode Island, Iowa, Kansas and Oregon.

Democrats think they can oust Republicans from the Governor's chair in Maryland, Ohio, California and possibly in Nevada.

The outcome of Governors' races, as well as some contests for national office, could be affected in some states by local controversies over so-called right-to-work proposals.

Such proposals, which operate to bar labor-management contracts which require a worker to join a union to hold his job, are on the ballots in California, Colorado, Kansas, Ohio, Idaho and Washington.

Pope Crowned

basilica and then went to the apostolic palace by elevator. Diplomats and special representatives also went by elevator to near by galleries and windows to watch the coronation.

The Pope appeared on the central balcony at 12:53 p.m. (5:53 a.m. St. Louis time) to a massive surge of applause and the first shouts of "Viva il Papa!"

The Pope took his place on the throne, looking down on the cheering, shouting persons waving handkerchiefs and flags telling where they were from.

Noble guards flanked the throne. The ceremonial ostrich plume fans that had been used throughout the ceremony inside the basilica also appeared, held aloft, one on each side of the throne. The Pope sat motionless, his hands crossed on his chest.

Cardinal Eugene Tisserant intoned the "Our Father" and continued with other special prayers, his French accent showing through the age-old church Latin. The golden mitre was removed from the Pope's head and Cardinal Canali began the words of the coronation: "Accipe tiaram" (Receive this tiara). With the last word of the formula he placed the heavy triple crown in place.

Silence, Then Roars.

There was a moment of silence. Then the great crowd burst into roars, only to subside as the Pope rose to bestow a blessing "Urbi et Orbi" (To the city and the world).

The blessing ended at 1:03 p.m. and the Pope left the balcony two minutes later. At the moment of blessing, cardinals and bishops gathered on two adjoining balconies and took off their mitres. Those who could in the dense throng in the square, dropped to their knees on the wet cobblestones.

The Pope stood close to the balcony railing to give his blessing. Then in the familiar gesture of his predecessors he raised both hands to the heavens—an embrace to the world.

The bells of St. Peter's and the hundreds of churches of Rome pealed joyously.

25,000 Inside Basilica.

The earlier cememonies inside the basilica were held before a great gathering of 25,000 churchmen and notables, royalty and diplomats of 50 sovereign nations and many nations which are non-Christian.

Television cameras throughout the basilica and outside brought the scenes to viewers in 14 European countries.

(KSD-TV plans to carry special films of the coronation shortly after midnight tonight).

The main doors of St. Peter's had been closed at 8:05 a.m., leaving only the Arch of Bells open for invited guests.

Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani and other Italian delegates entered at 9:10 after the Pope already had mounted his papal throne. There was no explanation for their tardiness.

Invited guests had seats overlooking the main altar.

The American delegation was made up of Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, former ambassador to Italy, and Robert D. Murphy of the State Department. Others in the party were Mitchell's daughter Rosemary, Henry Luce and Mrs. Murphy.

30 of Pope's Relatives.

About 30 of the Pope's relatives were in a special tribunal. They included his three brothers, Zaverio, 75 years old, Alfredo, 69, Giuseppe, 64, and his sister Assunta, 72. Missionary Sister Anna Roncalli, daughter of the Pope's brother Giuseppe, had been flown yesterday from Asmara, Eritrea, for the occasion. The big and bewildered family had arrived last night from the Pope's birthplace, Sotto il Monte, in the foothills of the Alps.

The basilica was draped with great tapestries and sashes of crimson and gold damask. Stripped of the mourning for Pope Pius, it glittered in joyous colors for his successor.

The procession that preceded the basilica ceremonies had its start in the Vatican palace where the pontiff waited with medieval - clad soldiers. A shouted, "Extra" — Latin for "out" — from the master of ceremonies sent the 2000 marchers moving to the portico of St. Peter's. Churchmen from scores of religious orders were in the procession.

The Pope had been vested in more than 50 pounds of linen and silk robes, ermine trimmed and gold embroidered capes, with a mitre of gold and precious stones and soft red cloth slippers on his feet.

After the procession entered the basilica, the Pope descended from his "Sedia Gestatoria" and mounted a throne to the left of the sealed Holy Door to receive the obeisance of the cardinals and the 50-man clergy of St. Peter's.

Great Procession.

He then mounted his portable throne for the great processional inside the basilica. Twelve silver trumpets signaled the start. The Palatine guard band picked up the stirring triumphal march. There were shouts of "Long Live the Pope."

The Pope was then borne to the Altar of the Sacrament. There he moved to another throne and prayed before the Holy Eucharist exposed on the altar. The ceremonial dressing for the papal mass followed in the Chapel of St. Gregory.

Again he mounted his portable throne and moved toward the Altar of the Chair. Three times he was stopped by the ceremony of the flax to emphasize the passing of things worldly. Then flanked by cardinal assistants he ascended the altar steps for the recitation of his coronation Mass.

While the Mass was in progress the placing of the pallium, a major part of the coronation, took place.

The pallium is a slim band of pure white wool taken from the coats of two lambs each year. It was presented to the Pope as a symbol of his episcopal power, the Bishop of Rome.

After the ceremony a final demonstration of obeisance began with cardinals, bishops, patriarchs, abbots and prelates in turn ascending the altar to kiss the red-slippered feet of the Pontiff.

At each raising of the host at the mass, trumpeters sounded the sacred "Largo" of Longhi. Lighted torches glinted on the armor of guardsmen, their heads lowered and their swords pointed to the ground. Three times the host and chalice were raised; three times the trumpets sounded.

Three times while the ceremonies were in progress floodlamp reflectors high in the dome exploded loudly. The Pope did not budge or turn his head, even when tiny bits of flass showered down around him.

After the Mass the Pontiff again mounted the portable throne for the procession to the balcony.

The procession was stopped by Cardinal Federico Tedeschini who presented the Pope with a white silken purse containing 25 julies—the coins of Pope Julius II who died in 1513—for a Mass well sung.

Cheers and shouts followed the procession as it passed the portico of the basilica; up the royal stairs to the balcony 70 feet above St. Peter's Square, jammed with applauding humanity.

Holds Audiences.

Pope John rested in his apartments after the long ceremony, but a few hours later he held his first audience for 15,000 north Italians.

They were hometown folk—here for the coronation from Venice, where he was patriarch archbishop, and from Bergamo province, where he was born. His three brothers and a sister were in the crowd.

"It is the first time I speak to you as Pontiff," he said. "A parson, or a university professor, would talk to you . . . with the sample simple spirit; for in simplicity there is naturalness, and in the natural there is the divine."

He talked of his tasks, of "the responsibility of a poor soon of a humble land laborer who now must sustain the heavy burden of the pontificate." He was undertaking this task, he said, with "ancient faith" in the Christian life.

His Tears Flow.

Tears came as he said:

"I heard many persons speaking (this morning), and you may well understand my feelings when these voices said: 'You will not see Venice again,' and 'Do you not want to see your hamlet any more.'

"What do you want? Could I say no to the will of God expressed through the votes of the Cardinals? Could I say: No, I want to stay in Venice or Bergamo?"

Many in the royal hall of the Vatican were weeping, too, but some noted that the Pope had not specifically ruled out a tradition-breaking visit to Bergame or Venice. He had said last week that he would like to visit northern Italy again.

"This morning I looked and listened," he continued. "One tosses glances here and there. I heard the good Bergamaschi (people of Bergamo) shout 'Viva Bergamo,' rather than 'Viva Christ' or 'Viva St. Peter,' as they should have."

He wiped his eyes.

"I don not want any longer to give a spectacle here, because we no longer are children to be seen weeping . . . but in the morning when we begin our heavy tasks, we think of Bergamo, of our hamlet, of Venice."

KENNEDY IS 3 UP IN FIRST MASSACHUSETTS RETURNS

MOUNT WASHINGTON, Mass., Nov. 4 (UPI)—Senator John F. Kennedy received 15 votes for re-election today to 12 for his Republican opponent, Vincent J. Celeste, in this Berkshire Hill town, first in Massachusettes to report its returns.

Mount Washington normally is predominantly Republican.

In the race for governor, incumbent Democrat Foster Furcolo got 9 votes to 18 for his Republican opponent, Charles Gibbons. In 1956 Furcolo got 5 votes to 21 for the Republican candidate.

The island town of Gosnold gave Furcolo 7 votes and Gibbons 26. In 1956 the town gave Furcolo 11 votes and his opponent 57. Senator Kennedy received 13 votes in Gosnold today to 20 for Celeste.

Newspaper Charges Sinatra Ordered Cameraman Run Down

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—The New York Journal American said today that a car in which Frank Sinatra was riding had tried to run over one of its photographers on the singer's orders.

The cameraman, Mel Finkelstein, was struck and sent spinning by the vehicle's fender, and was taken to a hospital for leg X-rays.

The latest incident in the stormy Sinatra carrer took place last night, the newspaper said, in front of the Harwyn Club, a midtown night spot.

"Run the . . . down!" the Journal American quoted Sinatra as shouting at the limousine's chauffer. "Step on the gas. Kill the no good . . .!"

The singer-actor's outburst followed an attempt by one of the paper's reporters to speak to Sinatra as he left the club with a party including comedian Joe E. Lewis, actor David Niven, two other men and Nan Whitney, a model. Miss Whitney has been Sinatra's date about town since his return last week from London.

"Frank, what are your plans?" said the reporter, Don Vandergrift.

"When will you . . . stop calling me Frank?" the singer replied. "I am Mr. Sinatra." Then he added:

Seeing Finkelstein focusing his camera, Sinatra said:

The newspaper said Lewis attempted to calm Sinatra, but as he jumped into the car the singer shouted:

"You newspaper men are all a bunch of . . ."

As the photographers moved in front of the vehicle to take a picture, the Journal American said, Sinatra ordered the chauffeur to run him down.

The big car raced off with siren wailing—a violation of New York law which retricts such devices to emergency vehicles.

Sinatra later in the evening visited two more night clubs with Miss Whitney.

POLES' RAPACKI OFFERS MODIFIED BAR ON A-ARMS

WARSAW, Nov. 4 (UPI) — Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, at a press conference today, proposed a bar on atomic weapons for three Communist states and one Western state—Western Germany.

Rapacki, recently returned from a visit to NATO-member Norway, proposed a modification of his plan for an atom-free zone in central Europe.

The plan will be established in two stages:

1. Production of nuclear weapons would be barred in Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany — all of which have Communist governments—and in West Germany. No armies which do not already have nuclear weapons would be equipped with them. "Appropriate control measures" would be introduced at the same time.

2. "Full denuclearization" of the zone would be carried out, by withdrawal of all nuclear arms and installations, and at the same time there would be an "appropriate reduction" to conventional forces "according to previously-agreed steps." Control measures would be introduced.

BRITISH TV NETWORK PLANS SERIES ON CHURCHILL WORK

LONDON, Nov. 4 (UPI)—Britain's independent television network is planning to present a dramatic filmed series based on Sir Winston Churchill's "History of the English-Speaking Peoples," the Daily Sketch reports.

Television critic Leslie Watkins described it as "the biggest TV scoop of the year," and said it was planned to give the series "one of the biggest budgets ever devoted to any British TV production."

WOMAN, 80, HURT IN DRIVING BULL ACROSS HIGHWAY

CAMDENTON, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP) — An 80-year-old woman was hurt seriously Sunday night, the State Highway Patrol reported, as she backed into a passing car while she was driving a bull across State Highway 5.

The accident occurred about three miles north of here. The patrol said Mrs. Florence Depew was afoot, driving the bull ahead of her. Two southbound cars had stopped. Charles Carr, 50, Kansas City, was driving north.

Mrs. Depew apparently didn't notice the northbound vehicle and took a hesitant step backward into the automobile's side.

ARGENTINA GETS CARRIER

PORTSMOUTH, England, Nov. 4 (AP) — Argentina formally took possession today of its first aircraft carrier, bought from the British.

Argentine Ambassador Teodoro E. Hartung pledged its use for defense of the South Atlantic. The 14,000-ton Independencia, formerly the British Warrior, was purchased for £1,000,000 ($2,800,000).

NIXON WINDS UP 3-DAY POLITICAL TOUR IN ALASKA

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 4 (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon ended a three-day tour of Alaska yesterday in support of Republican candidates in what will soon be the forty-ninth state.

Nixon and his family left on a chartered plane last night, but Alaskans will not vote until Nov. 25. The Nixon's had a smooth flight, although a violent storm swept the Pacific Northwest shortly before they arrived at Seattle.

Nixon's trip to Alaska followed a cross-country political swing. He said a final Republican drive had reversed the apparent Democratic trend in the states and that the same thing was happening in Alaska.

In speeches yesterday Nixon again criticized former President Harry Turman's statement that the Administration was making a mess of foreign policy. He termed Truman's assertion a "wild pitch," and added:

"When Mr. Truman uses the word mess he speaks as an expert. The people have not forgotten the mess he left the country in in 1952—the mess of Korea, the mess of corruption, the mess of a discredited radical economic policy."

Dead-End Street Opens Like Magic

WICHITA, Kans. — Mrs. E. L. Radcliff, 1549 South Clara, says: "I tried many things, and Baker's Hair Tonic is the only product I could find that would clean up dandruff and itchy scalp." It's so easy and pleasant to use. Not messy or greasy like so-called dandruff remedies. Use it any time, anywhere. There is no Federal excise tax on Baker's Hair Tonic, because it's a specific for dandruff. If you have been traveling down what seemed to be a dead-end street looking for something to clean up dandruff and itchy scalp, your search will end like magic when you use Baker's Hair Tonic. That's a positive guarantee, or money back.

RUSSIA LIKELY TO RETURN TO U.N. ARMS GROUP

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 4 (AP)—Russia's return to the United Nations Disarmament Commission was assured today following approval of a compromise enlarging the group to include all 81 U.N. members for the next year.

Following United States and Russia agreement on the compromise, the U.N. Political Committee voted 78 to 0 last night to approve the omnibus commission. France and Cuba abstained, and Jordan was absent.

A plenary meeting of the assembly was called for this afternoon to give final approval.

The outcome of the long dispute was a reverse for the West and a feather in the Soviet cap. It remained to be seen whether it would bring disarmanent any closer.

Boycott by Russia.

The Russians for the last year had boycotted the commission, which the last Assembly expanded from 12 to 25 members. The Russians contended the commission makeup was weighed against them.

The United States and Britain had maintained that an 81-member commission would be too unwieldy for useful negotiations. They said it would return into another propaganda forum.

With Russia adamantly holding out and smaller nations anxious for some break in the deadlock, the western allies finally agreed to try the enlargement for a year.

There was considerable expectation that the commission eventually would set up small subcommitttes to do the actual negotiating, the plan followed in the past when only 12 nations made up the parent group.

The United States - Soviet agreement came after a day of busy bargaining over the rules under which the commission will operate. India and Yugoslavia, authors of the compromise plan, were the go-betweens.

The United States won some points in the dickering over the rules. United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's chief goal was to see that the big new group would not use the rules of the original 12-nation commission. Those allowed any individual member to call a commission mteting and also rotated the chairmanship each month.

Assembly Rules.

The Western powers and Russia finally agreed that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold would convene the commission after consulting with U.N. members. The group will operate at the beginning under General Assembly rules but can set up its own operating code at a later stage.

By United Press International.

Mexico today withdrew a resolution requesting that the General Assembly call on representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Russia to confer with Secretary Hammarskjold on means of reopening disarmament negotiations.

Russia Deputy Foreign Mintiser Valerian A. Zorin told the Political Committee last night that Russia would not participate in such talks. As a result the Mexican delegate consulted his government and then withdrew the proposal.

SUMMERFIELD TO RESIGN, REP. CLARENCE BROWN SAYS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —Clarence J. Brown (Rep.), Ohio, said yesterday: "Don't be surprised if Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield is the next of the Eisenhower Cabinet to resign."

"Summerfield, with wide automobile dealer franchises throughout Michigan, has been in poor health and is said to be growing a bit tired of government," Brown said in a newsletter to constituents.

Informed of Brown's statement, Summerfield's office said the Cabinet member has no intention of resigning. A similar denial was made two weeks ago when a Summerfield resignation was reported in prospect. Summerfield has served since the beginning of the Eisenhower Administration in 1953. Last month he said he expects to serve out the remaining two years of Mr. Eisenhower's term.

SCREAM LENDS CREDIBILITY TO HORROR SHOW IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 4 (UPI)—The audience sat tensely as the double-feature horror show unfolded.

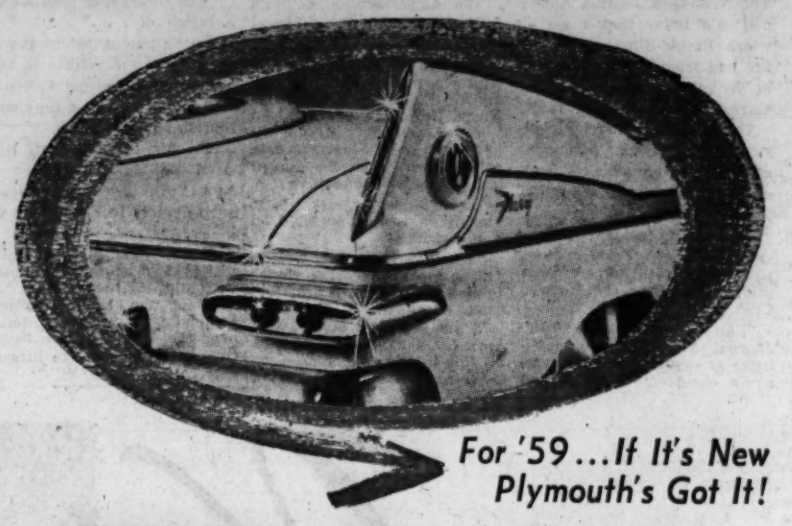

Through "The Terror From Beyond Space" and the "Curse of the Faceless Man," the only sound that could be heard was the rustle of popcorn bags.

Suddenly there was a piercing scream that did not come from the sound track. An usherette had opened a box labelled "seed" that someone had left behind on a seat. It contained a small alligator.

McCones Visit Macmillan.

LONDON, Nov. 4 (UPI) — United States Atomic Energy Commission Chairman John McCone and his wife were guests of Prime Minister Macmillan at lunch yesterday at No. 10 Downing street. McCone is visiting Britain for talks with Sir Edwin Plowden, chairman of the British Atomic Energy Authority.

MADISON, ST. CLAIR EARLY VOTING LIGHT

Early voting was light in Madison and St. Clair counties today, but increased activity was noted at polling places by mid-morning.

A sampling of polling places indicated that 35 per cent of the registered voters had cast ballots by 11 a.m. in some areas. The percentage was as low as 20 per cent in other precincts.

There are about 118,000 registered voters in each county.

Most voters were spending considerable time in voting booths, indicating there were many split ballots. The marking of state, county and municipal proposals also took time.

Election officials in St. Clair county received reports of some breakdowns in voting machines. They were being repaired as quickly as possible.

Activity in some precints indicated Democratic workers were backing one or two G.O.P. candidates for county office.

Former Sheriff Ed Lehman, Republican candidate for sheriff, was reported to be receiving some Democratic support in East St. Louis's South End and in Centreville. His opponent is Dan Ring, now clerk of the probate court, a Democrat. Lehman is chairman of the East St. Louis Republican Central Committee.

William D. Stiehl, Republican candidate for county judge, also was supported by some Democratic workers, observers noted. He is attempting to unseat County Judge William P. Fleming, a Democrat.

THIRD PARTY, WITH FAUBUS AS LEADER, IS PROPOSED

MILTON, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP)—About 70 members of the Santa Rosa County Citizens' Council signed a resolution last night urging the formation of a third party with Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus as leader.

The proposal declared that "the present Democratic party no longer represents or even countenances the philosophies of our Southern people, and Paul Butler, chairman of the present Democratic party, has made this crystal clear in numerous public statements."

About a fourth of the 200 persons present indicated that they would attend a picnic for elderly people scheduled for Crestview Saturday to sell Faubus-for-President flags. Faubus is scheduled to speak at the picnic.

U.S. STUDENTS FILL IN GAP IN MOSCOW RADIO'S MUSIC

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4 (AP)—Thanks to American history students at Roosevelt Junior High School here, Moscow radio has some new music to play.

Samuel J. Williams, their teacher, caught an announcement from the Russian station that it didn't have a recording of "America the Beautiful." He told his students, and they volunteered to rectify the situation.

Two records were sent directly to Moscow radio and a Columbus resident sent a third to the editor of Moscow radio's letters department. The station has notified the senders that the "Moscow mail bag" program will play "America the Beautiful" Nov. 15 and 16.

WEARS GLASSES—THAT'S ALL

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (AP)—Wearing a pair of glasses and nothing else, a woman boarded a bus in Toronto's east end last night, rode a dozen blocks without a word and got off.

The driver told police the woman appeared to be about 35 and completely at ease. She paid no attention to his look of surprise. Police were unable to find the woman. The temperature was 40 degrees.

W. A. M'DONNELL CALLS INFLATION MAIN PROBLEM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—The nation's principal domestic problem is inflation, William A. McDonnell, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told the forty-fifth annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association here today.

McDonnell, board chairman of First National Bank in St. Louis, listed five principal causes of inflation: economic growth, inflationary Government financing, uneconomic taxes, monopoly power of labor unions and external world pressures.

While he said that fiscal self-discipline and monetary policy were the strongest defenses against inflation, he added: "We cannot expect monetary policy to arrest inflationary excesses if Congress tears up all the tickets by granting immunities to labor monopolies and providing special treatment to those who claim to be hurt by general monetary controls."

Speeding Trial

attention to delays in handling a large number of traffic charges in the court of Magistrate H. Glenn Weber in Jefferson county. C.E.S. Truck Line, Inc., headed by Amos A. Govero, president of the Missouri State Board of Education, has benefited from the delays.

Magistrate Sursa appeared as lawyer for Dominic Castino, Crystal City gambler, who was a familiar figure on the streets of Fredericktown in 1956, when he was supposed to be serving a sentence in Madison county jail.

Campaign Mapped in May.

Approximately 60 representatives of trucking companies doing business in Missouri made plans last May 27 for a campaign to defeat two state legislators deemed inimical to the trucking industry, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

The two officials singled out for defeat at the meeting at Hotel Chase were State Senator Leo J. Rozier (Rep.), Perryville, and State Representative J. Ben Garrett (Dem.), a railroad employe, of De Soto.

At the meeting, which was called by Amos A. Govero, head of C.E.S. Truck Lines of Festus, it was decided that any money raised was to be handled by a committee of three St. Louis truck line operators, the Post-Dispatch was told. They were George Goode of the BeMac Transport Co. Inc., Guy Roper of Husmann and Roper Freight Lines Inc., and John Butler of the Anderson Truck Lines.

Those for whom the money was to be used were Earl R. Blackwell, Rozier's Democratic opponent and Hillsboro lawyer, and C. F. Hebbeler, Republican of Hematite. A participant in the meeting said $8000 was promised.

Denial of Collection.

The three reported committee members acknowledge that the meeting took place, but they insisted no campaign fund was either proposed or collected.

"This was a meeting of the type we hold several times a year to discuss problems affecting the industry," Roper told the Post-Dispatch. "There were several officers of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association and the Motor Carriers' Council present to brief us on the legislative situation and other factors affecting our business.

"We gave out full information about who had been favorable to us and who had tried to hurt us with excessive taxes, but no money was raised. I don't mind telling you that you couldn't have raised $8000 to $10,000 in that crowd after two of the worst years in the trucking industry.

"I'm sure I don't need to tell you that when we find someone working against us, we are not going to urge his re-election, but frankly I don't recall any specific names mentioned at the meeting because the affair included a banquet and lasted about two and one-half hours. I do know that no money was raised for political or other purposes.

"We naturally try to keep our employes informed about the political situation. When you know your job is at stake, you don't have to be told how to vote."

Goode told the Post-Dispatch he attended the meeting of the Motor Carriers' Council at Hotel Chase at which "truck problems were discussed but no money was raised."

Goode said truck industry leaders told of problems in Washington by use of a sound film. State problems and candidates were discussed, but no money was raised and no committee was appointed, he asserted.

"We talked about candidates," Goode said. "We naturally are interested in candidates who listen to our side of the story. Rozier filibustered in the Legislature for the railroads, although Perry county, his own county, has no railroad and depends on truck transportation."

Butler, acknowledging there was a meeting, denied that any money was collected or pledged.

"It was simply an industry meeting to discuss our problems," he said. "I don't even recall now whether any names of legislators were thrown around.

"Naturally, the industry as such would be concerned about candidates not friendly to it but I can state that no campaign funds were raised or asked for."

JUSTICES WARREN AND FRANKFURTER GUARDED BY FBI

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (UPI) —Federal Bureau of Investigation agents are guarding Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Felix Frankfurter as a result of anonymous threats against them, it was disclosed yesterday.

The threats were reported to have been made a few weeks ago at the time of the bombing of a Jewish temple in Atlanta, Ga. Official sources declined to tell the nature of the threats or to say whether they had been delivered by mail or telephone.

FBI agents now are assigned to the two jurists when they are at home and when they are moving about the capital. While at the Supreme Court building the Justices are protected by Government building police.

Justice Warren wrote the opinion in the Supreme Court's unanimous May 17, 1954, decision outlawing public school segregation. He and the eight other Justices all signed the court's recent 1958 opinion ordering integration to continue at Little Rock's embattled Central High School.

Justice Frankfurter also issued a separate strong supporting opinion on the Little Rock decision. He is the only Jewish member of the high bench.

Small Nations in the U.N. Put Pressure on U.S. and Russia to Reach Agreement in Geneva

Neutrals Making Representations Directly to Moscow in Effort to Get Soviet Union to Change Mind on Ending Nuclear Weapon Tests.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 4.

PRESSURE ON BOTH the United States and Russia was being applied by some of the smaller nations today, concerning the ending of nuclear weapons tests. It was the obvious hope of diplomats representing these smaller nations that pressure applied here in the United Nations—and in Moscow—might be reflected in negotiations now under way in Geneva.

In public, U.N. delegates including Djalal Abdoh of Iran, Sivert A. Nielsen of Norway, Ernst Christiansen of Denmark and Ali Sastroamidjojo of Indonesia indicated a belief that the compromise resolution presented by India and Yugoslavia represented the true sense of the meeting of the 81 nations here.

Privately, Abdoh was making efforts to induce the great powers to reconsider that resolution. Abdoh expressed the hope that it might be passed unanimously by the United Nations, even now, despite the failure of efforts to get such passage last week.

Meanwhile, it was learned, neutral nations are making representations directly to Moscow in an effort to get the Russians to change their attitude.

Continuing Negotiations.

The purpose of these moves was to keep before the three nuclear powers negotiating in Geneva — the United States, Britain and Russia — the evident desire of a great many people in the world that these negotiations may conclude an agreement to end nuclear tests.

The resolution which Ambassador Arthur Lall of India last week attempted to have accepted unanimously by the United Nations called upon all states to stop nuclear tests pending agreement on control, and as a first step toward other measures of disarmament. The United States accepted it. The Russians, however, insisted on an "interpretation" which American diplomats considered a nullification of the compromise resolution.

In the opinion of many diplomats here the breakdown of negotiations on this resolution was one measure of the apparently widening gap between the United States and Russia. Another measure was the failure of a resolution by Austria, Japan and Sweden to obtain unanimous consent. It merely expressed hope that the Geneva talks would reach a successful conclusion, but the Communist bloc voted against it.

In the course of last week's negotiations on the Indian-Yugoslav resolution, however, the United States took a long step away from its former position by agreeing to separate entirely the subject of nuclear tests from other disarmament measures, Abdoh pointed out. American diplomats also agreed to "discontinue" such tests, though previously they had agreed merely to "suspend" them. Finally, Abdoh said, the United States had agreed to U.N. action seeking to prevent any fourth power from conducting such tests.

Agreement Sought.

Last week's negotiations here took place during disarmament deliberations in the U.N. Political Committee, composed of representatives of all 81 nations, but sitting separately from the General Assembly itself. The General Assembly has yet to consider the issue, and Abdoh, Lall and other diplomats here hoped some further efforts to bring the major powers to agreement could be fruitful before the Assembly acts.

Such diplomats consider the passage by the Political Committee last week of an American resolution opposed by Russia merely a "propaganda victory," since disarmament obviously cannot take place except by agreement with Russia. They took some heart from the nearly-unanimous passage of a resolution, in the Political Committee yesterday, under which a disarmament commission consisting of representatives of all 81 members of the U.N. would be set up.

They pointed out, however, that this merely establishes a procedure for disarmament negotiations. No such negotiations were held in the last year because of a Soviet boycott of a commission set up under a previous American resolution. The Soviet Union agreed to the resolution setting up the new commission.

Diplomats representing the smaller powers acknowledged, of course, that the future of disarmament in any form very much depends on the Geneva negotiations.

Frank Aiken, the foreign minister of Ireland, declared yesterday at a meeting of the United Nations Correspondents Association, that "I very much fear we are all going to have to live under the shadow of nuclear weapons for some years to come.

"Only the establishment of some kind of world government, I think, will lead the great powers to give up their nuclear weapons.

"Nuclear Club."

"Meanwhile, we must try to restrict the numbers of nations possessing these weapons—and try to create political conditions which will prevent their being used," Aiken said.

Aiken invented the phrase "nuclear club"—a "club" which he wants to be limited to its present members.

The difficulty with ending nuclear tests, Aiken said, may be in getting the great powers to accept a decision by someone else that a nuclear explosion is legitimately "suspected" on their own territory. In this case, under the report of the U.N. experts committee on policing a test suspension, a team of scientists would be sent to investigate the suspected explosion. American diplomats expect the Russians to resist such a procedure.

The "draft agreement" on cessation of nuclear tests, submitted by the Soviet Union at the Geneva conference and made public here, makes no mention of this procedure. It mentions only — apparently static — "control posts" to monitor tests and ignores the suggestion that roving investigators be allowed to go anywhere at will.

One Winner Today May Be Next President

Leading Aspirants of Both Parties to Demonstrate Pulling Power.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1958.)

LOS ANGELES.

THE American people may select the next president of the United States today without realizing it. For today's balloting will demonstrate the presidential polling power of leading candidates in both parties.

Nelson Rockefeller is sailing upstream against the Democratic tide in New York, while Vice President Nixon apparently has failed to stem the Democratic tide in California. This means that, with the old Dewey machine oiled and ready to go, Rockefeller is a natural for 1960. That is why Nixon is campaigning so hard. He wants to present an image of a tough, tireless, loyal party worker to future delegates.

In California, the sweeping victory expected for Pat Brown will give him presidential stature overnight.

Symington a Prospect.

Two hot Democratic prospects, Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts and Stuart Symington of Missouri, are running for re-election to the Senate against weak Republican opposition. The politicians will inspect and compare their victories for political portents.

Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, another contender, is not on the ballot this year. But he has kept the long-distance wires humming from his Texas ranch, offering money and advice to Democratic candidates. These postdue debts could come due in 1960.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey's presidential ambitions are riding on the Minnesota election although he is not personally running. His fortunes may depend on whether he can elect Representative Gene McCarthy to the Senate.

In New Jersey, Gov. Meyner's presidential hopes may also be tied to the success of the Democratic Senatorial candidate, Harrison Williams. The Governor has placed his prestige on the line to elect Williams in a tight race.

Those are the behind-the-ballot factors the politicians will be watching as the nation goes to the polls.

Nixon-Eisenhower Row.

As the campaign ends, Vice President Nixon is barely speaking to President Eisenhower. He bitterly resents having had to carry the main load of the election campaign with only an occasional assist from his boss. He feels that if Mr. Eisenhower had started slugging earlier, the results of the election could have been very different.

What especially irks Nixon is an incident in Colorado while the President was en route to California. After campaigning for weeks, Nixon was ordered to bed by his doctor to rest for two days at Colorado Springs. Mr. Eisenhower was then visiting in Denver, yet he never bothered to telephone Nixon to ask how he was and how the campaign was progressing.

Any other President would have been eager to get Nixon's views, give his own views. They would have realized that the future of the Administration and the party is very much at stake in this election.

Nixon considers this incident proof that Mr. Eisenhower is politically unconscious and may wind up wrecking the Republican party. Nixon also believes that Harold Stassen's campaign to dump him as Vice President in 1956 had Sherman Adams's backing and probably that of Mr. Eisenhower too. He also feels the White House staff may wind up persuading Mr. Eisenhower to back some other candidate for the 1960 nomination, perhaps Nelson Rockefeller.

On top of all this, Life magazine has offered Sherman Adams $200,000 for his memoirs. The man who might suffer most from these memoirs is Nixon. Twice Adams moved to prevent Nixon from assuming increased power when the President was ill, and the inside story of these wrangles may now be told.

Right-to-Work Angle.

It is interesting that some of the wealthy Californians who contributed to Nixon's famous $18,000 personal expense fund also turned up as contributors to push the right-to-work bill, though Nixon himself took no stand on it.

Most interesting is the fact that the law firm which indorsed his personal expense fund — Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher—is one of the biggest contributors to the right-to-work bill, with $10,000 thrown into the anti-labor kitty. It was this law firm which said Nixon was within his rights in accepting the $18,000, despite United States Criminal Code, Title 18, Sec. 281, which makes it a criminal offense for a member of Congress to accept money from a party having any direct or indirect interest in any matter before the Government.

Among the people and companies which contributed to both Nixon's secret fund and the right-to-work fund are Herbert Hoover Jr., H. C. McClellan of Old Colony Paint, Frank R. Seaver of Hydril, who put up $3000 plus $5000 from Hydril to finance the right-to-work campaign.

'60 Hopefuls Ready Now to Present Case

Next Campaign, Not Eisenhower, to Dominate Political Scene.

By DORIS FLEESON
WASHINGTON

THE campaign is over, but it is generally believed that Republicans will continue to press their attacks on Democratic "radicalism." They are widely committed to it elsewhere than in New York and they have found in it the means of unlocking the pocketbooks of the business community on which they depend.

It would also dovetail with a strategy aimed at proving that "big labor"—Walter Reuther principally—dominates the Democratic party. This is the favorite thesis of the extreme right.

Democrats did not meet these issues headon in the campaign just concluded. The tide was in their favor, they thought, and they let it roll. Their oratory was mainly devoted to exploiting sources of discontent with the Eisenhower regime.

Sardonic Sam Rayburn.

Only the home stretch saw the leaders of the Democratic Congress, which has held power four of the six Eisenhower years, move forward to meet the Republican attack. Even then House Speaker Sam Rayburn contented himself with some sardonic remarks about the "rewards" for "pulling the President's chestnuts out of Republican fires."

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson went on the road, speaking with a fine show of indignation where Senate races appeared close—Indiana, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada—and where the radicalism charge was being pressed by the G.O.P. with unusual vigor.

In essence, Johnson's answer was that Democrats "say yes to the future" and produce "Twentieth Century Senators." He scoffed at Republicans as "not a party now but a long line of lonely men, wandering across a desert of personal fears, thinking the nation is lost because they are lost from it."

The fact is that Rayburn and Johnson were unable to take seriously the President in a partisan role. They did not fear him; they are much more afraid

Funds to Start Flowing Soon In Federal Scholastic Program

January or February to See Start on Student Loans, Vocational Training, Counseling, Testing, Flemming Says.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.

FUNDS SOON WILL BE AVAILABLE to states and educational institutions for most of the new programs under the Government's $800,000,000 four-year scholastic program, Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said yesterday.

By January or February, Flemming said, money will be going into loans to college students, area programs for vocational training in skills needed for national defense, state programs of guidance, counseling and testing elementary and secondary schools.

Other programs in this timetable, the Secretary said, include purchase of equipment to strengthen science, mathematics and language instruction in elementary and secondary schools, for research in the educational use of television and related media and for improving statistical services of state departments of education.

Federal funds will be made available in the spring of 1959 to begin awarding graduate fellowships and to start operation next summer of foreign language centers and institutes for training guidance personnel.

Inspired by Sputnik.

The new Federal education program was set up in the last Congress at a time when the lawmakers were reflecting national concern over Soviet gains in science and education exemplified in the launching of Sputniks. The program extends over four years with states and institutions in most instances being required to match Federal funds to some degree.

Flemming told a news conference that "in a new undertaking of this scope and magnitude, it is necessary to complete a multitude of detailed plans and arrangements before Federal funds are actually paid out to the states and educational institutions."

He said, however, that he was "pleased with the heartening progress made by the Office of Education toward putting into effect the many important programs" authorized by Congress.

Various Allotments.

Authorized funds for the loans-to-college students program are $47,500,000 for the fiscal year ending next June 30 and $75,000,000 for the ensuing 12-month period, with institutions to match $1 for every $9 of federal funds.

For the vocational education program, $15,000,000 is authorized for the current fiscal year and $15,000,000 for the following year. No state or local matching or federal funds is required.

For state programs for guidance, counseling and testing, the authorization for this year is $15,000,000 and the same for fiscal 1960. States will be required to match federal funds dollar for dollar after the first year.

Authorization for equipment purchases for mathematics, science and foreign language instruction is $70,000,000 for the current year and an equal amount for fiscal 1960, with federal funds to be matched equally by the states after the first year.

Research on Education.

The sum of $3,000,000 is authorized for fiscal 1959 and the following year for research in new educational media, with no matching of funds required.

For improvement of statistical services, $2,750,000 is authorized for this fiscal year and an equal amount the following year, with matching required.

Authorizations for guidance and counseling training institutes amount to $6,250,000 for the current fiscal year and $7,250,000 the following year, with no matching required.

For establishment of institutes in colleges and universities to improve the skills and effectiveness of elementary and secondary school teachers of foreign languages, $7,250,000 is authorized for each of fiscal years 1959 and 1960, with matching of funds after the first year.

Missouri is listed for authorizations totalling $3,598,324 in the fiscal year ending next June 30, broken down as follows: loans to students, $1,124,704; strengthening science, mathematics and foreign language instruction: $1,371,230 for acquisition of equipment and minor remodeling, $113,765 for administration and $221,131 for loans to non-profit private schools; guidance,

SUKARNO GIVES EMPHASIS TO BID FOR NEW GUINEA

© New York Times News Service

SAUMLAKI, Tanimbar Islands, Indonesia, Nov. 4—President Sukarno, on a visit here yesterday, called the attention of the United States Ambassador, who accompanied him, to a handpainted placard lettered, "We must invade Irian Barat."

Irian Barat is the Indonesian name for Western New Guinea, which is about 200 miles north of this primitive island group. It is ruled by The Netherlands but claimed by Indonesia.

The placard was held high above a shouting crowd that welcomed President Sukarno to Saumlaki, a stop on his 10-day tour of the eastern end of the Indonesian archipelago. United States Ambassador Howard P. Jones is one of 13 foreign diplomats accompanying him.

The United States has been following a neutral policy in the New Guinea dispute. President Sukarno called Ambassador Jones to his side, apparently to make sure that the envoy did not miss the placard. They looked at it for a moment as thousands of onlookers roared, "Give us Irian Barat."

Many of them shouted that they were ready to die to make that jungle territory of 150,000 square miles part of Indonesia.

NATO TO HOLD EXERCISE

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization will hold a naval and air exercise in the eastern Atlantic and Gibraltar area Monday through Nov. 28.

Britain's ministry of Defense said ships and planes from Britain, Canada, France, Holland, West Germany and Portugal will take part.

NEW MARK FOR SUEZ CANAL

CAIRO, Nov. 4 (AP) — Reports published here say October set a record for the number of ships going through the Suez canal.

The figures showed 1612 ships traveled the 103-mile waterway during the month for a daily average of 52. Authorities said the previous high mark was a 40.3 daily average.

The City-County Question

To bring the problem of city-county co-operation and consolidation down to a practical level (on which basis it must ultimately be considered), I should think that the proposed provision for a city-county traffic commission would be enough to insure the support for further co-operation by everyone who drives on Natural Bridge.

Frustration, agony, and anger beset these motorists as they squeeze into two lanes in Pine Lawn, where on-street parking is permitted during rush hours, and where the lack of lane-markers is the cause of many a curse; as they wait sometimes as long as five minutes at the Lucas-Hunt stoplight.

Support for city-county co-operation could mean support for the idea of an area-wide regulatory commission which would exercise control over traffic situations such as this and many others. The metropolitan area needs, and must have, a master traffic control plan.

For practical reasons such as concern not only traffic, but a host of other area-wide problems, it is becoming increasingly evident that St. Louis and St. Louis county must make the choice between progress and decay.

Ferguson. Harry E. Barden

In its editorial, "Re-entry Means Delay," the Post-Dispatch based its rejection of the Stolar Plan upon two highly questionable assumptions.

They were: (1) that there would be little delay in the execution of a metropolitan district plan, and (2) that "outstate's traditional hostility" toward the St. Louis area would make it extremely difficult to obtain a favorable state-wide vote on a Missouri Constitutional amendment which enabled St. Louis county to perform area-wide functions.

It is interesting to note that Freeholder Bryan Purteet's metropolitan district proposal incorporates a staggered 10-year schedule for the execution of some of its provisions, so that the transition to "metro" will not be disruptive.

Outstate Missouri's alleged hostility toward St. Louis did not prevent the state-wide adoption, in 1924, of an initiative Constitutional amendment which contained, with minor recent changes, the first three of the four alternatives for city-county co-ordination which are now available to the Metropolitan Freeholders!

Donald Dates

Creation of a Metropolitan District to solve city-county problems is not the most practical choice the Freeholders could make.

Your newspaper has pointed out that there is such a thing as "too much local control." For example, in the recently defeated City Charter, it was observed that 29 wards were detrimental to the municipal functions of St. Louis. Then there are the recent comments on the County Council regarding the proposed housing project in Jefferson Barracks. They yielded to public pressure "like scared chickens."

Finally, the Board of Freeholders should not be concerned with the task immediately at hand in solving city-county problems. The future is just as important. There is no better governmental system for this area than one that eliminates jurisdictional divisions, provides for unity, and concentrates responsibility. A municipal county is my choice.

Lighting 13 Candles

I applaud your recent editorial, "After Thirteen Years." On the same day I was privileged to observe a United Nations birthday program at the Glenridge school in Clayton.

The lighting of 13 candles on the U.N. birthday cake called to mind the precarious past and the uncertain future of this precious infant on whom so much now depends. Would that the adult members of our world community might come to realize, between this and the fourteenth anniversary, our rare opportunity to work for a stronger United Nations, our best hope for saving our world and our children.

For a Limited District

As the Metropolitan Freeholders move toward a decision on the basic method of adjusting city-county relationships that they will recommend, the choices open to them have for all practical purposes been reduced from four to two.

The Freeholders can decide to draw a plan based on merging St. Louis and the county's 97 municipalities into a single political entity. Or they can create a metropolitan district that would absorb the Sewer District and take over certain other area-wide services.

Neither of the other two constitutional options is worth further consideration. Re-entry of city into county would accomplish no metropolitan objectives without a change in the Missouri Constitution. Moreover it now appears that exercising this option would foreclose any future city-county freeholder boards. The option permitting the city to annex part of the county is a pale form of merger and has never been seriously considered.

Which of the two remaining choices would be better for the St. Louis area? In our judgment, the district plan provides the preferable machinery for tackling those specific area-wide deficiencies that have been identified by the Metropolitan St. Louis Survey.

Three points have been made against the district plan. One is that no district plan can require the reduction of taxes in individual municipalities when they have been relieved by the district of their responsibilities for providing a service that the district has taken on.

This is unfortunate, but not a fatal defect. The fact seems to be that no new form of metropolitan government, whether a district or a merger, can guarantee in advance that metropolitan services will be performed at no net increase in cost to the taxpayer. In the final analysis, reliance must be placed on public opinion. It is up to the taxpayers of each municipality to insist that when a service is reduced, by reason of its transfer to a metropolitan government, the local budget should be decreased accordingly.

A second criticism is that a metropolitan district cannot be given power to issue general obligation bonds in excess of 5 per cent of its assessed value. We do not see this as a serious objection. A district composed of city and county could, at present valuations, bond itself up to $130,000,000.

Since property assessments will rise, especially in the county, this ceiling also will rise. Even as it is, it seems sufficient to cover major metropolitan capital needs.

The third objection is legal—that there is a serious legal question whether power to develop a land-use plan could be conferred on a metropolitan district. A strong argument can be made either way. In any event, this is a question to be solved by the courts. If a district plan were adopted and approved, it is reasonable to believe that the courts might construe the planning powers broadly, especially in light of the Supreme Court's broad decision in the Sewer District case.

Even if the land-use power were held invalid, there seems to be no argument about a metropolitan district's authority in most of the other fields of area-wide service. We think it is better to start with a limited metropolitan government, even an imperfect one, than to attempt a total merger which would wipe out all the local governments which so many people for so many reasons wish to keep.

Our Federal Government did not begin by wiping out the states, but by undertaking to perform vital services which the states could not perform for themselves. The same principle holds the best answer to the metropolitan problems of today.

A Fragrantly Happy Idea

As has been said millions of times, this is a world of odd contrasts. As St. Louis faces weekly garbage collections, Levittown, L.I., learns that its cans are to be sprayed with lavender. The head of the collection service says he does not mind the extra cost "as long as it makes people happy." Indeed he is considering a poll to find whether some other perfume might be even more happy-making than lavender. It's an idea for the aldermen; not the use of lavender, but the idea of making people happy.

As the Country Votes

Missourians may well ask themselves why so many states voted for Governor in 1958, but not their state. Counting Maine, which held its final early election in September, and Alaska, which will vote three weeks from now, 34 states will have chosen Governors this year.

But not Missouri.

Maine is the latest state to establish a four-year term for Governor, running from midway through one presidential term to the next. New York made the same change several years ago. California, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Maryland, Oregon, Tennessee, Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada, Alabama, South Carolina, Oklahoma—these are some of the states that have separated their voting for Governor from their voting for President.

The states that have made this change have done so for one primary reason. That is to keep presidential elections, particularly in landslide years, from sweeping a good Governor out of office or from carrying a poorly qualified nominee into the Governor's chair.

Missouri's experience supports the argument which caused so many states to place their governorship election midway through a presidential term. Only rarely does Missouri cast its presidential vote for the nominee of one party and its vote for Governor for the other party's choice. Just three such instances have occurred since 1900:

In 1952 when the state voted for President Eisenhower, Republican, and Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, Democrat; in 1940, when it voted for President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, and Gov. Forrest C. Donnell, Republican; and in 1904, when it voted for President Theodore Roosevelt, Republican, and Gov. Joseph W. Folk, Democrat. In all other elections the party which carried Missouri for President has also elected the Governor.

This tends to depreciate state issues at the very time when they should receive widespread attention—in the campaign for Governor. If a President is being elected, the national campaign attracts major attention and successful nominees for Governor often ride the national winner's coattails.

The people of Missouri and Illinois—for our neighbor to the east is also one of the declining number of states which holds a four-year election for Governor in the presidential year—ought to ask themselves whether they want to go on confusing national and state issues through an outmoded election schedule. We hope to see this question, along with an amendment to allow the Governor of Missouri to succeed himself, taken up in the 1959 legislative session at Jefferson City, thoroughly discussed and then submitted to the voters for their judgment at the polls.

The Anger of the Blind

The aggressive threat of an ideological despotism against a whole nation sometimes appears as just another political problem—serious, no doubt, but a matter for the head rather than a pang in the heart. How much more deeply we feel a tyrannical blow against a single man!

Thus to the heart, the fanatical outcry in Russia against Boris Pasternak seems more outrageous than the coercion of a whole province in Middle Asia. We cringe under the calumniation of a man whom we instinctively recognize as honest and good. We see only one more blow in the Kremlin's announcement that he is free to leave Russia—and to stay out of Russia.

This blow is heavy because the 68-year-old man is sick and because he might have to abandon his wife and his three sons. But it is tragic because, as he told Khrushchev, he is "tied to Russia by birth, by life and by work." He said that leaving his motherland would be death for him. Would it be death for a Communist politician fallen from power? Can any man in the Kremlin love his native land as this poet loves it?

The embarrassment of Soviet diplomats at the United Nations almost answers this question. For all their toughness, they are smitten by shame. It is significant, too, that the disgraceful protest against Pasternak was not started by the regime, as Joseph Alsop points out, but by the regime's well-kept literary hacks. They envy Pasternak his Nobel Prize as no free writer could, since they really cannot hide from themselves the disgrace of having prostituted their own talent. They know they are worse than the tinkling cymbals.

Their fate is one of the saddest fruits of totalitarian ideology. The ideologist insulates himself from facts since they would make it impossible to bend everything to preconceived theory. Thus he denies life as the true poet cannot and will not. It is just this self-imposed blindness which can make totalitarians so dangerous. They refuse to see things as they are. They refuse to contemplate the real consequences of their own acts.

This is why the Pasternaks are so important. They cry out the truth which the ideologist must sometime hear. They, too, are men. Yet the touching tragedy is the suffering of the man who speaks out for man. One man's fate touches the heart—perhaps because in that one man every other man not hopelessly blind may see himself. And the hope of the world must be that no man really is hopelessly blind.

In Memory of the Advocate

The Belleville Daily Advocate, which has merged with the Belleville News Democrat, was one of the oldest afternoon dailies in the Middle West. Founded in 1833 as the St. Clair Gazette, it was once owned by Jehu Baker, a leading civic figure of the Civil War and Reconstruction era, and an outstanding member of the House of Representatives in Washington. Records show that Mark Twain was a writer for the Advocate in the 1870s.

For years the Belleville newspaper situation defied the trend of the times. In a community of 35,000 to 40,000 population, two newspapers competed successfully in the afternoon field, each with a circulation of approximately 13,000. This was only 20 miles from St. Louis, where rising costs of publication already had reduced the number of dailies to two, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Now the trend that Belleville resisted so long has had its effect and this week there is an enlarged News Democrat but no Daily Advocate. May the News Democrat serve its area in St. Clair county better than ever before in a resolution of respect for the long history of the Advocate, which could count Abraham Lincoln as one of its readers.

Careless of the Ballot

One of the inalienable rights of the American heritage, it is commonly assumed, is the right to vote. It might also be assumed that Americans exercise that right eagerly—but neither assumption is correct.

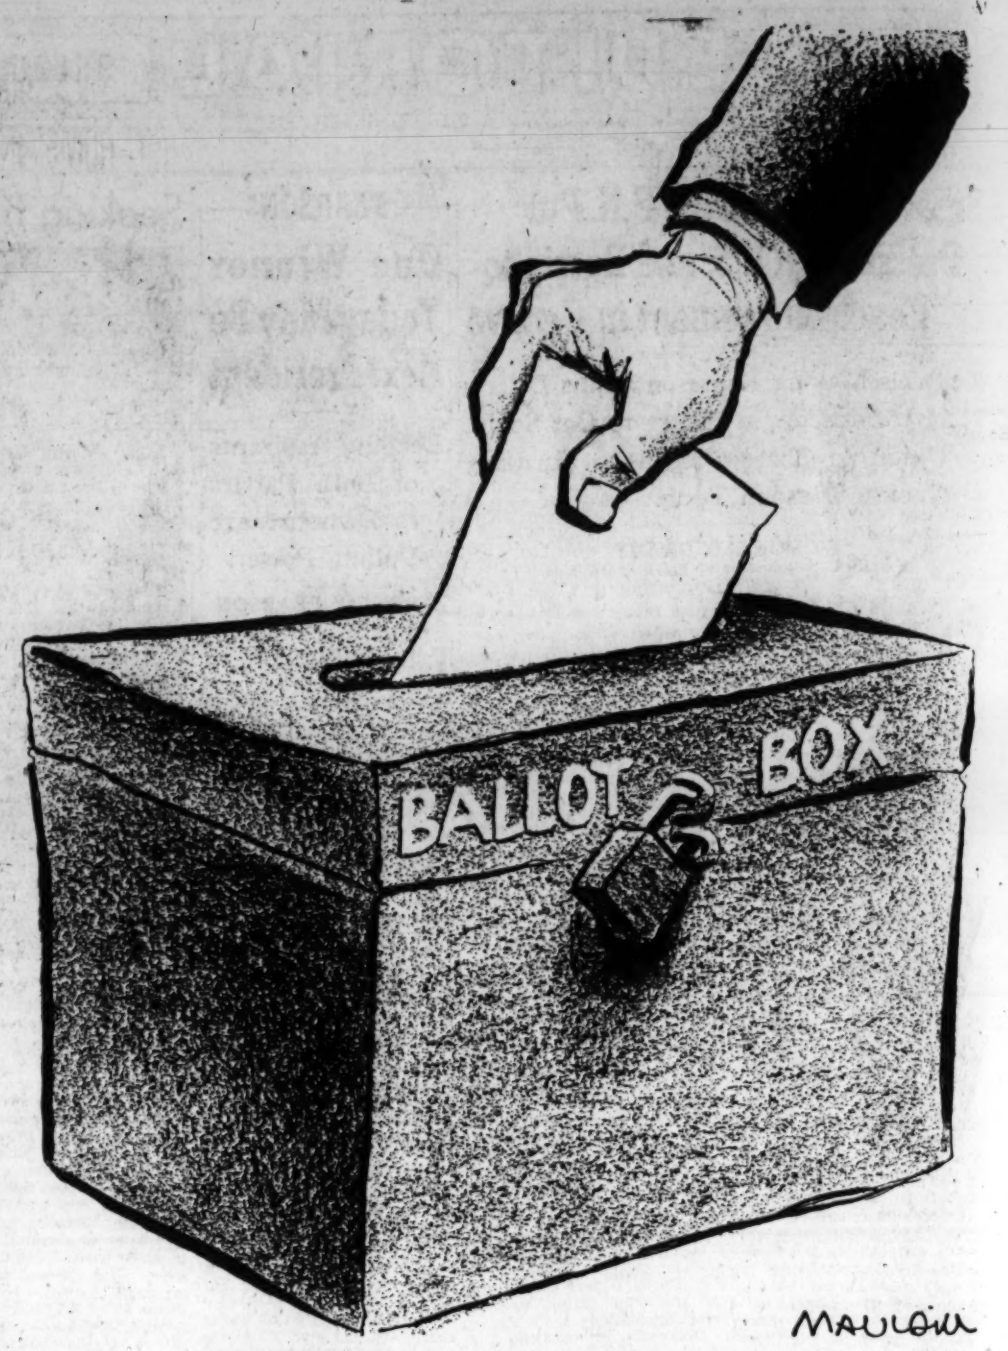

From the first day of the Republic, there have been many restrictions on the voting privilege. In the 1824 presidential election, for example, some 262,000 ballots were cast though the nation's population of voting age was 7,000,000. But slaves could not vote, and there were numerous restrictions involving property and even religion. And even nowadays, several million Americans are disfranchised by state residence requirements. These citizens lose the ballot simply by moving from one state to another.

As to the exercise of the ballot privilege, Americans have a poor record. Their best endeavor brought 63 per cent of the qualified voters to the polls in 1952. Russia claims that 99 per cent of her qualified citizens vote, and Argentina (which penalizes non-voters) reports 95 per cent. Three of the largest nations which have no compulsory voting laws — Japan, Britain and France — report voting percentages ranging from 76 to 85.

Missourians have an opportunity today to extend the voting privilege, by adopting constitutional Amendment No. 2. It would allow newcomers, who have lived in the state more than 60 days and were eligible to vote before coming to Missouri, to vote for President and Vice President. But there is no law to make Americans exercise the basic privilege of representative government. That responsibility is up to each citizen, on election day.

Bird Bills and Milady's Foot

The architects for milady's footwear have got around to letting their fateful decisions on styles for next spring leak out. Apparently the elongated last capped with needle point toe has not caused enough suffering to overcome the dictates of fashion. The only softening in observance of the strictures is the word that the foremost contender to the stiletto will be the duckbill. This means a slightly ovalized end that will be more round than conical although the profile remains delicately arrowed. If the shoe stylists are going to be ornithologically influenced, why can they not take a lesson from the shovel-billed duck, the spoon-billed sandpiper or the shoebilled stork?

in The New York Post

ROME.

Pope John XXIII, the heir of Peter the Fisherman, chosen after 11 painful ballots by the Sacred College, is Angelo Roncalli, 76, the son of peasants and the farthest Left of all the Italian cardinals. His ascension to the Pontificate is a serious defeat for the conservative Curia which controlled the pre-conclave machinery and is a notable victory for the French, those perennial rebels.

Roncalli's victory is that opening to the Left for which the French have been pressing for years. He won their confidence first at a low point in the affairs of French Catholicism in 1944, when Gen. De Gaulle stubbornly refused to deal with Cardinal Valeri who had been Papal Nuncio to the Vichy government of Gen. Petain and Pierre Laval. Roncalli was sent as the peacemaker and made the transition with grace and decision.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

As Patriarch of Venice he shocked the Roman Curia by sending his blessing to the Italian Socialist party, then a firm ally of the Communists, at its 1957 convention. That message, in its gentle detachment from sin and love for the sinner, is a fair sample of Pope John's style and spirit.

"A convention will gather in the next few days in Venice, with representation from all regions of the Peninsula, the Congress of the Italian Socialist party. From the fact that I allow myself to speak to it the Venetian motto, "Respectful and Serene"—since I too am a good citizen of Venice, which holds hospitality in great honor, and, as besides, the precept of Paul is becoming which holds that a bishop ought to be hospitable and kind—you will understand how I appreciate the exceptional importance of the event which appears of great consequence for the immediate direction of our country. It is certainly inspired, I hope it is well understood, by an effort for mutual understanding of that which is worth most in the aspiration for better conditions of life and of social prosperity."

This was the statement of a man who has been known as a reconciler and whom the Venetian priests call the "peace-after-the-storm." He is certainly the most socially conscious Pope since the great Leo XIII and if he is granted a long tenure his papacy may bring as extraordinary changes in the Roman Church. His very election marks, at a minimum, an historic shift in its direction.

Pope John XXIII is, it should be said, a Latin cardinal and, as such, of orthodox and old-fashioned theology. He has said on occasion that the five sores of the Cross are freemasonry, liberalism, anti-clericalism, progressive democracy and Marxism. You could not in his nation and vocation expect him to believe anything else.

What sets him apart from most of his generation in the Italian Church is not his theology but his attitude which is that the Church is being tested in this century as it has not been since the Reformation and that it must, if it is to survive, be the church of the poor.

His longest work of scholarship is a five-volume biography of Saint Carlo Borromeo, the Bishop of Bergamo, who was one of the beacons in the darkness of the early Sixteen Century and whose name is reputed to be still revered among the poor of his city as their shield against the barons.

The new Pope is a squat man, thick of lip and fleshy at the nape of the neck, proud of his taste in food and wine, still thickly-muscled with an appearance which belies both his age and his dedication.

Pope John

It seems as safe as anything else to say that a majority of the Italian cardinals voted against him until very near the end. It would be a surprise if the American cardinals supported him; they are counted firmly with the Right. To elect him the French, who were his open supporters at the very outset, must have needed the assistance of the Latin American cardinals, along with the Spanish, the Portuguese, the Belgian, the Chinese, the Indian and Cardinal Wyszynski, the only Iron Curtain delegate.

His election with such a muster may be accounted a defeat, if not for the United States, at least for the shadow of the United States. The Latin American cardinals surprised Vatican circles almost from the time they showed up with their outspoken anti-Washington attitude. The aim of the insurgents was to have a Pope who if he could not be neutral in the cold war—what Catholic could be—would be at least more open to co-existence than Pius XII had been. And Roncalli is as close to such a Pope as could be found among the Italians.

Reuther Nonsense on Warren From The Washington Post

Walter Reuther has done no service to Chief Justice Warren by suggesting that labor might be willing to support him as a presidential candidate. The canard that Mr. Warren might be pressed into resumption of a political career ought to be demolished here and now.

Mr. Reuther may have intended his remarks on a television program as a compliment reflecting the admiration and affection in which the Chief Justice is held generally except among diehards in the South; or he may have been trying to create an impression of evenhandedness by implying that his United Auto Workers might indorse a Republican under certain conditions. But Mr. Reuther's suggestion nevertheless shows a curious insensitivity to the damage that would be done to the Supreme Court if anyone thought that it had been used as a political stepping stone.

Chief Justice Warren burned his political bridges when he accepted appointment five years ago. At the time that his name was brought up as a possible Republican nominee before the 1956 conventions, he said with firm dignity that his decision renouncing all political connections or ambitions was "irrevocable" and would not be changed "under any circumstances or conditions." That unequivocal disavowal ought to cover any latter-day attempt to revive the pressure.

Between Book Ends Hero Knaves

"We live by selected fictions," says a Lawrence Durrell character in "Balthazar." "Everything is true of everybody." For Durrell, there are many sorts of truth and fiction, all virtuous "thrown down one upon the other, the obliterating or perhaps supplementing another."

Last year Durrell projected one version of a truth-fiction in a novel called "Justine," the first of a projected four-novel galaxy. "Justine" was an immediate success, at least among the critics, though some, including this one, were baffled by what seemed an undue obscurity of story.

Lawrence Durrell

"Balthazar" retells the same story as "Justine," yet it is not the same story, for it is seen through different eyes and narrated with different accents. "Balthazar" is not offered as a sequel to "Justine," but rather as a "sibling." It is more accurately an interlinear, a between-the-lines. The two novels are like halves of a card deck shuffled out of each other. Each is supposed to support an independent reading, but "Balthazar" more nearly approaches this virtue than its predecessor, for the involved density of "Justine" is here somewhat relieved.

Time is stayed in both novels. The various parts are not linked in serial form, but in purely a spatial one.

There is one basic extractable story in both, but it alternates so many characters that it is most nearly the story of a city, Alexandria. It considers an infinity of human emotions, all related to "love and unlove."

Central amid a boil of circumstance, is Justine, a passionate Jewess, hungry for love in all its forms. Around her, are deployed an engaging collection of scoundrels, fools and lost geniuses, including her husband, Nessim, a Copt financier with a jealous heart. Her beloved is Pursewarden, a great writer but a casual lover.

Then there is Darley, an itinerant Irish schoolteacher with a feverish love for Justine. Darley is loved by Melissa, a frail Greek cabaret dancer, who is pregnant by Nessim, whose brother, Narouz, loves Clea, the painter who . . . Finally somebody's hatpin is plunged into somebody's brain. This measure of violence gathers and rearranges these many hero-knaves like bits in a kaleidoscope.

The early core of the book is a sand-framed reverie of desert-life involving Nessim and Narouz. The late core is a wi'd masquerade, both amusing and sinister, a maelstrom of dominoes and false-faces.

To charges of "obscurity" in "Justine," Durrell replies through Pursewarden, "In questions of art, great secrecy must be observed . . . every reader ultimately belongs . . . back upon his own resources."

"Balthazar" probably contains more life than any novel since "Zorba, the Greek" by Kazantzakis 1953). Durrell has fashioned a heavily-tenacled, sensuous, deeply-dimensioned work of art, probably the greatest novel on the scene at this time.

'ROMANOFF, JULIET' OPENS AT AMERICAN

Peter Ustinov Stars in Own Fluffy, Disarming Play.

By MYLES STANDISH

Right at the start of "Romanoff and Juliet" at the American Theater last night, Peter Ustinov walked out and stood there blinking owlishly at the audience. He was black-bearded, bespectacled and paunchy. He was wearing a gaudy, bemedaled uniform of blue coat with golden frogs, flaming red pants with golden braid, black boots and tall black and red cap with a crimson plume.

Rocking back on his heels with a few tentative knee bends, tugging down a front that kept creeping up, wiggling his fingers to express the ineffable when his voice languished off as he congratulated himself on being the president longest in office (nine hours) of the smallest mythical country in Europe, he was a picture of amiable, dignified ludicrousness.

You could see then you were in for an evening of gentle drollery. The British actor set the key for a play, written by himself, which kidded American and Soviet rival diplomacy, the romantic Balkan kingdom, the great love tragedy, and even a doddering patriarch of "the Holy Unorthodox church" who whistled between his teeth when he talked. This lemon meringue of a play was fluffy, nonsensical, utterly disarming and completely delightful.

The country was renowned as the one which did NOT stop the Turks in 1400 or thereabouts. Its soldiers used blanks because the country didn't make ammunition and didn't want to get involved with either the East or the West to borrow some. There was once a foul unwritten agreement between the Lithuanians and Albanians to divide the land; unwritten, because at that time the Lithuanians and Albanians had not learned . . . (a waving of the hands).

When the American ambassador scraped an exploratory foot on the ground and suggested the country must be rich in oil, the general-president covered up the imaginary hole indignantly and protested: "Never! Discover oil today. Tomorrow we're invaded."

The feuding Montagues and Capulets were transferred into the families of the Soviet and American ambassadors, and the high-flown romantic outpourings of the sighing, frustrated lovers, young Romanoff and Juliet Moulsworth, were adroitly mixed with some sly and pertinent satire on political systems, diplomatic fencing, espionage and counter-espionage. It was fluff, but charming, whimsical fluff which was often very funny.

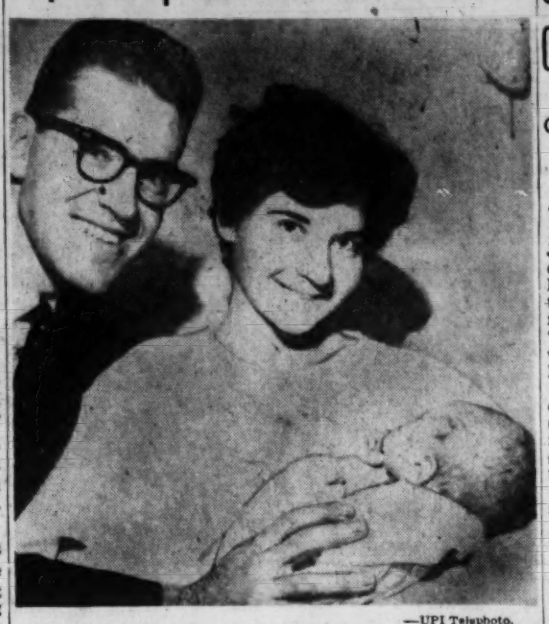

George S. Kaufman had directed this with just the right frivolous and irreverent approach, utilizing a deft and talented cast. Mr. Ustinov was a show in himself, a gifted comedian with the happy faculty of hamming subtly.

Henry Lascoe and Humphrey Davis as the rival truculent ambassadors, Carl Don as a caricature of an OGPU spy, and Edward Atienza in a hilarious straight-faced burlesque as the archbishop, all contributed handsomely. Alexander Davion and Louise Collins played the lovers with fervor.

Denis Malcles' setting ingeniously combined the town square with two turn-around houses which were rotated for interior or exterior scenes.

Last night's performance was the opening of a run which will extend through Saturday.

SAULNIER URGES U.S. CUT HOME FINANCING

Chief Economic Adviser Favors More Private Credit.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—Raymond J. Saulnier, chairman of President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, urged yesterday that the federal home financing laws be made more "flexible" to attract more private credit and to stop "needless federal spending."

Saulnier told the convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America that private funds would be encouraged if government-backed home loan rates and prices had more freedom to move with the money market.

In the last 10 years, Saulnier noted, conventional mortgage financing in which government plays no direct part, has remained "remarkably stable," with between 600,000 and 650,000 new construction starts a year. In that same period, he said, the volume of homes started under federal programs has varied from 297,000 to 675,000 a year.

To facilitate a steadier flow of private credit, Saulnier advocated:

"The housing and home financing laws . . . should be reviewed from top to bottom with the object of eliminating or correcting provisions, particularly those that effect the flexibility of interest rates, that tend to impede the flow of private funds into home financing, and to cause public funds to be substituted in their place."

He urged that rigid federal purchase requirements be kept out of home financing markets; that legal limitations should "never again" be placed on the ability of government-backed mortgages to adjust prices and that direct federal loans should not be more attractive than open-market terms.

The benefits, he said, would include a more stable home building business, steadier employment and lower housing costs.

"Finally, we can stop one of the principal sources of needless federal spending, thus helping to avoid federal budget deficits," he said.

G.O.P. HAS GOVERNED CONGRESS 25 TIMES

Democrats Have Won Control on 17 Occasions—9 Elections Divided.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Whatever the voters do today, the Republicans will still be well ahead of the Democrats in the number of times they have won control of Congress.

In the century since the present system of two major parties developed fully, Republicans have controlled 25 Congresses to 17 for the Democrats. Nine elections have left the control divided, one party holding a majority in the Senate, the other in the House.

The biggest proportionate margin either party has had since 1912, when the House membership was fixed at 435, came to the Democrats in 1936. The voters, re-electing Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt President by a landslide over Republican Alfred M. Landon, gave Roosevelt a Congress in which Democrats outnumbered Republicans 333 to 89 in the House, 75 to 17 in the Senate. Minor parties accounted for the other seats.

In the election of 1868, when Congress was smaller, Republicans won 170 seats to the Democrats' 73. The Senate, then elected by state legislatures, was divided 61-11.

The biggest gain any party has achieved from one election to the next, since Congress has had its present form, was chalked up by the Democrats in 1932, the year of Roosevelt's first victory. The party picked up 97 seats in the House and 12 in the Senate.

In the 1948 election, remembered mainly for President Harry S. Truman's surprise defeat of Republican Thomas E. Dewey, the Democrats picked up 75 House seats and nine Senate posts to gain control of both chambers.

EARTHA KITT AND OTHERS IN VARIETY SHOW FOR QUEEN

LONDON, Nov. 4 (UPI)—The Royal family clapped out rhythm and sang last night to accompany Eartha Kitt, Pat Boone and a long list of British entertainers in the royal variety show.

The show wound up after midnight with Rex Harrison in an excerpt from "My Fair Lady." Then Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip, Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth went backstage to meet the stars.

Miss Kitt said she felt "like Alice stepping through the looking glass" when she met the Queen. Of the Duke she said: "He's not like a duke at all. He's all man. A very nice man, and so witty, too."

Princess Margaret told Boone, "I hope you'll come back and sing for us again."

The show ran 3½ hours, an hour longer than scheduled. The Queen said afterward that "it has not seemed a bit too long."

LITTLE SINGERS OF PARIS GIVE SPIRITED CONCERT

The Little Singers of Paris, 27 children ranging from 11 to 15 years old, sang at Kiel Auditorium yesterday afternoon, under the direction of Msgr. Fernand Maillet. They presented a widely varied program,, including Mozart's "Ave Verum," Vittoria's "Ave Marie," folk songs of several nations, spirituals and a French Christmas carol.

The singers demonstrated considerable spirit and responsiveness. Their pitch was not always true, and, periodically, balances were precarious, but youth, particularly en masse, is largely incapable of sustained technical precision. Their oversights were, for the most part, trivial.

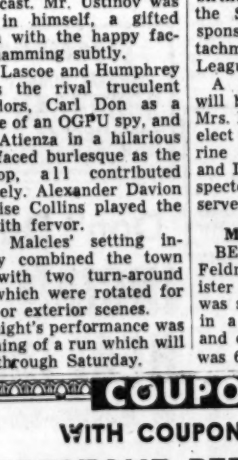

High points of the concert were the Vittoria, in which the ensemble revealed a profoundly devotional sense; and the Canadian folk song, "Alouette," delivered in a rousing, nearly bacchanalian manner, sufficiently infectious to elicit an encore. A large audience, itself primarily youthful, responded with unreserved enthusiasm. —M.S.

Hands Up!

At the old West Pine gymnasium of St. Louis University the varsity basketball squad of 16 was on the floor en masse. The players were in motion, shifting this way and that, as they followed a leader in a footwork drill.

First the right hand was up and the right foot forward as the athletes moved in the sliding style that maintains position and balance. Then as the leader changed, each left hand went up and the left foot went forward, and up and down the court the young men moved, not running, but sliding, forward, backward, left and right.

Morrison

John Benington, the new Billiken coach who succeeded Eddie Hickey, calls it his "hands up" drill. On this day, almost two weeks after pre-season practice had begun, the athletes could keep it up for 10 minutes or more.

The drill represented one of the differences St. Louis U. basketball players have discovered in the approach to the game by Benington and Hickey.

"He's sure strong on conditioning," said Bob Ferry, veteran Billiken, when asked to comment on the new procedures he had found under Benington.

Stress on Individual

A little while later, Freshman Coach Fred Kovar had finished with his chores and was sitting up in the stands while his boss, Benington, started the varsity on a fast-break exercise, with three breaking down the court against two guards.

Kovar played and coached under Hickey but remained as assistant coach under Benington when the switch was made last spring. He could note another essential difference in coaching philosophy and mechanics.

"John stresses individual ability," said Kovar. "For instance, if Ferry has the ability to beat one man, the patterns will be based primarily to get the edge through that advantage. If that isn't accomplished the pattern calls for the next man-against-man situation giving the best edge."

This one-against-one approach to basketball offense tends to give each player more confidence, continued Kovar.

"He knows he should have the ability to take that one man and beat him," Fred said. "And it's particularly good for us because of the great boys we have had for basketball at St. Louis U. In an offense calling for many passes, a player is apt to try to force a shot, but when one plays against one he knows when he has a shot. His own confidence isn't hurt when reliance is placed on someone else to do the scoring."

The difference in this and Hickey's approach was that Hickey strove to get that shot opportunity through the maneuvering of five men against five.

Young and Eager

There were other differences. Hickey dwelled much on blackboard work and theory, less on actual floor work than Benington does. Some of the boys like the new method because floor work enables them to grasp the mechanics quicker.

The daily workouts themselves, it was noted, are a half-hour shorter than before. But because more is done on the floor rather than in the lecture room, the players are worked harder under Benington than they were under Hickey.

On this day the head coach himself kept the athletes steadily working.

A player at San Francisco under Pete Newell, an assistant coach at one time under Forddy Anderson at Michigan State, and a head coach the last two seasons at Drake, Benington is regarded as one of the more promising mentors in the college game.

He has let it be known that he won't have as much fast-break as Hickey sought with St. Louis teams, a search that was brilliantly successful a decade ago.

Half-Court Work

"We'll do a lot less full court scrimmage work than St. Louis U. teams used to do under Hickey," Benington commented. "We'll spend a lot more time on half-court work."

Basketball, Benington reflected, is a game of spurts. The idea is to spurt more often, or at least at the advantageous moment.

Heralded for some of his Drake team's defensive accomplishments last season—notably against Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson, and also against St. Louis U. at Des Moines — Benington hasn't emphasized defense yet.

"I don't want the defense ahead of the offense because we want to develop confidence in the offense at this time," he said.

When the Billikens do play defense, it will be mainly in the man-to-man style. Hickey almost invariably played a switching defense which called for much anticipation and working together.

N.C.A.A. Sanction Unlikely

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4 (UPI)—A basketball association composed of teams from California, UCLA, Stanford, Southern California and Washington is expected to be formed this month for the 1959-60 campaign.

"There is nothing definite about it," said Coach Pete Newell of California, "but I understand that the athletic directors of the schools want us to get together on such an organization.

"The proposal now looks as though we would play three games against each opponent each year—a total of 12 league games."

"If such a group is formed, we still wouldn't be considered a league under the N.C.A.A. rules and our champion would not get a play-off berth. We would be considered an independent group and would have to play off with some other independent for the right to compete in the play-offs. Under N.C.A.A. rules it takes six teams to make on official conference."

It was only a few years ago that such strong independents as University of San Francisco, Loyola, Santa Clara and St. Mary's were in the some position—that of having to play off to get into the play-offs. Today these teams are part of a seven-team conference, with the champion automatically invited to compete in the big tournament.

"Such is the power of unity," declared Newell, who used to coach at U.S.F. when that school, with championship timber, usually didn't go to the bother of even attempting to qualify to play in the N.C.A.A.

"If we form a five-chool loop," said Newell, "we would have to sign a two-year contract because, playing each school three games a year, would mean that California, for instance, would play USC two games there the first year and one at home. The following year it would be just the opposite.

"That's the only way we could balance things out."

Meanwhile, from the far north there was a report that Washington might join a Northwest conference.

And nobody knows for sure, yet, whether Stanford would even consider joining the other four schools in the proposed new loop.

Grand Slam Homer Hit Off Blaylock As Cards Lose, 9-2

OSAKA, Japan, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Japan All-Stars, with Pacific League slugger Futoshi Nakanishi driving in six runs, battered Bob Blaylock and Jim Brosnan for nine hits today and a 9-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was the All-Stars' second victory in eight games against the big leaguers. Eight games remain in the Japan tour.

Nakanishi hit a grand slam homer to chase Blaylock in the fourth inning and doubled to drive in two runs off Brosnan in the sixth. The Cards, held to six hits by Tadashi Sugiura, a 22-year-old right-hander with a submarine delivery, scored both their runs in the eighth on a walk, a single by Alex Grammas, Don Blasingame's sacrifice fly, and Stan Musial's second double.

Musial, only a so-so hitter on the tour so far, settled for two hits in four at-bats.

Blaylock, a rookie right-hander, blanked the All-Stars on one hit over the first three innings before running into trouble in the fourth. Two singles and a walk preceded Nakanishi's grand slam, a 370-foot drive into the right field stands.

The All-Stars scored one run off Brosnan in the fifth on two singles and two St. Louis errors and made it a rout with four runs in the sixth. Nakanishi drove in the first two with a line double to right center and scored on a homer by Isami Okamoto.

Some 25,000 fans watched the game, ending a two-day stop at Osaka Stadium. The teams play their next game Thursday in Hiroshima.

The score by innings:

St. Louis	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	2	4

Normandy Archer Kills 9-Point Deer

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 4 (UPI)—Five buck deer, with weights ranging from 150 to 220 pounds, were killed by weekend archers, the State Conservation Commission reported.

B. A. Mantle, 22, Linn, and Larry Inchriostro, 16, Normandy, scored kills Saturday. It was Mantle's second kill in four seasons of deer hunting. Young Inchriostro got a nine-point buck that weighed 220 pounds while hunting four miles south of Mineola in Montgomery County. It was his first time to score in three seasons.

Three deer kills were reported Sunday. William H. Wilson, 34, of Independence, was in a tree when he shot a buck. Henry Hughes, Richmond, and James Shannon, Phillipsburg, also killed bucks.

The commission said the five kills boosted the number of deer slain since the season opened Oct. 1 to 44.

Illinois Hunters Bag 1260 Deer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP)—Illinois hunters bagged at least 1260 deer in 22 counties during the state's second annual three-day season which ended Sunday.

No sportsmen were reported hurt, the State Conservation Department said.

Buffa Quits As Coach at Chaminade

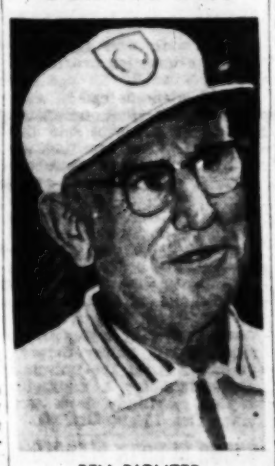

"I will miss the brothers and the boys here at Chaminade," Henry Buffa said today after announcing he has decided to resign as athletic coach at the end of the current school year.

"I'm proud of the record I've had here the past six years, and I hope to stay in coaching in the future," Buffa said.

Buffa's Chaminade teams won three baseball crowns and one basketball title and never finished below second place in those sports in the Catholic League. He won the first all-sports trophy in the history of the school, in 1953-54.

He has been director of physical education and head football coach at the school also. He coached basketball at Chaminade until last year. Before coaching at Chaminade he was at Ferguson High for two years.

Golf Pro Dies

BEN RICHTER

Ben Richter, veteran St. Louis golf professional of playing, teaching and club-making distinction over the years, died yesterday of a heart ailment.

Richter, who was 63, was head professional at Bellerive Country Club where he had served for 18 years. Prior to that time he held the same position at Triple A Club for almost 20 years.

A left-handed golfer, Richter was prominent as a player in earlier years and his tournament victories included the National Left-handed golfers championship, a St. Louis Victory Open in 1944, the sectional Professional Golfers Association championship in 1941 and 1942, and various senior events for professionals in recent times.

He was one of the few remaining professionals of the area who continued in the club-making business. An expert pattern and die maker, he produced a mallet-type putter currently on the market.

Richter once commented that as a left-handed pro he had an advantage in teaching right-handers who form the majority of golf learners. He could show them the swing in mirror form by demonstrating from the left side, he said.

"He was one of our finest members," commented Jack Burns, head of the Eastern Missouri P.G.A. section to which Richter belonged.

Surviving are his widow, the former Melicent Endicott; his son, Bob, a leading amateur golfer; a daughter, Mrs. Carol Slack of Wichita, and a sister, Mrs. Addie Brockmeier of St. Louis. The funeral will be from Drehmann-Harral Funeral Home, 1905 Union boulevard, at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Snyder-Small Bout On Amateur Card

Leroy Snyder of Pal A.C. will meet Winifred Small of the Auto Workers A.C. in a 135-pound bout on Friday's amateur boxing program at Community Hall in Berkeley. Snyder won the 126-poupd novice championship in the Golden Gloves show here last winter.

It's a Hitter's World, Professor Brosnan Muses

By Jim Brosnan
Cardinals' Pitcher

OSAKA, Japan, Nov. 4 — Sweet, just retribution is ours. In a vain attempt to go somewhere on schedule, the Cardinals left Sapporo for the airport two and a half hours early. Could it happen? Would we check out as programmed? It actually seemed possible, until the Army showed up.

"You boys want to go to the P-X?," asked the lieutenant, knowing full well that our throats ached for American cigarettes. Thirty minutes remained before departure so off went a group of Cardinals, yen glittering in their moist palms.

Half an hour later the steward cried, "Board!," and a file of athletes clambered into the DC-4. Japanese players, Japanese managers, Japanese sports writers, American players, but no American manager.

A.W.O.L.

"Where is Solly Hemus? His coaches? Ah, so! And Bing Devine? And Joe Garagiola? And Fred Fleig (Commissioner Ford Frick's representative)? Where is the brass?"

Traveling Secretary Leo Ward fumed. "How will I ever get the players to be on time next season after this lousy example?"

Catcher-Coach Ray Katt said, "I've looked many a bus in the rear end. Let 'em catch a cab." The Nagoya-Osaka leg of our trip represented a four-and-a-half-hour plane ride south.

Stan Musial quietly decided, saying: "There must be an assessment made. What shall the fine be?"

And so it came to pass. The silkworm turned. The players have fined the management. Imagine the holy gee if each mistake they made was criticized as ours are. True democracy!

The neat, compact countryside of Japan rolled away behind us as we flew from Hokkaido to Nagoya, spanning the two largest islands of Nippon. An amazingly industrious people, the Japanese, handicapped by lack of land but utilizing every foot-acre, each tillable clod of black earth. In the bottom-lands the rice is planted, the garden-plots are stuffed with huge cabbages and turnips, the slopes sport timber and orchards. Even the mountains look hand-formed. On each peak is packed a little white snow so the tourists will have something to snap their cameras at.

A conclave of pitchers gathered around the breakfast table in Nagoya, discussing gloomily the news about the Glo-Bal. Bing Devine, J. G. Taylor Spink and other long-ball lovers have seen fit to propose that a new type of baseball be manufactured for the players (hitters!) The Glo-Bal is orange-colored and much easier to see; ergo, easier to hit out of the park. Devine agreed, at 3:30 a.m. in Tokyo the previous week to "premiere the glittering orange ball in one of the Cardinal games played in Japan." When, pray tell, is someone going to do something for the pitchers?

At Chunichi Stadium in Nagoya the Japanese proved they can hit a hanging curve ball as far as anyone. I threw one in the ninth, and this fellow Yomauchi parked it in the centerfield seats, 410 feet away. And they want to help the hitters still more! B. G. Smith hit a homer himself and also had three other hits so they gave him a motor scooter. Why not?

Small World.

We carried here memories of Sapporo, just seven minutes by jet from Russia. They say it goes to 35 below at Sapporo in December. At the Sapporo Grand Hotel, a grand hotel, under a sheet, two blankets and a quilt three inches thick I burrowed in for the winter. Which lasted for nine hours; then we suited up for another game.

In the Grand Hotel lobby, two Air Force men dashed about yelling, "We're from St. Louis," to be identified by us. They are stationed just north of Sapporo at a radar base. One of them, Warrant Officer James Pagones, was looking for Garagiola to tell Joe about the local pizzeria. Pagones, a resident of the O'Fallon Park area, has not yet seen his child, born in July, and won't see his family for four more months. But he looks fine, Mrs. P., and sends his love.

Colorado Looks For 'Balance'

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 4 (AP)—Tailback Howard Cook, the Big Eight's leading ball carrier until last Saturday, was shifted to the second team yesterday as Colorado girded for its next conference football opponent Missouri.

He said that move and others he contemplates are designed to establish better balance among the first and second teams. That was a big factor in the Buffs' 23-7 loss to Oklahoma, last week, said Ward.

The Buffs were told by line coach Will Walls that Missouri is the best team he has scouted this year. He watched the Tigers shell Nebraska, 31-0, last Saturday.

Light Tiger Work.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP)—The University of Missouri No. 1 and No. 2 units worked lightly and looked at movies yesterday as the Tigers started preparations for their game with the University of Colorado next Saturday.

The injury-beset Tigers were obviously improving but Coach Dan Devine was still uncertain as to whether his ace quarterback, Phil Snowden, will be able to play against the Buffaloes.

Basketball Headgear For 'Battling Bob'

By Harold Flachsbart

Helmets usually are associated with football, but Concordia Seminary athlete Bob Tewes has adapted one for basketball. He needs it.

The five-foot-eight Tewes is a fireball whose determination and drive to make the Preacher squad knows no bounds. But he has been strictly a hard-luck guy.

It all started two winters back in a Concordia game at Jefferson City with Lincoln University. Tewes—his name is pronounced "Tayvess"—plowed right through the middle of a pile of players for a lay-up and he also rammed his head into a wall behind the basket.

No Damage Done.

Suffering head injuries, he was taken to a Jefferson City hospital and kept under observation for a few days. "He was brought home, examined by doctors here and X-rays showed no damage," Concordia Coach Pete Pederson said.

After a layoff from basketball, Tewes, who wouldn't let a little thing like a bump on the head stop him, was jostled again on the hardwood. He was knocked unconscious and that time, said Pederson, "we made him lay off the sport. We experimented with a helmet as a safeguard against further injury."

Last year battling Bob was sidelined with other ailments, such as a sprained ankle and a siege of pneumonia, but not before he also blacked out a couple of times when bumped on the head while playing without a helmet.

"We dropped our bouncing Bob off the squad," the coach went on. "We had Tewes examined by a neurologist, and after Bob got a clear bill, we insisted he wear a protective helmet on the basketball floor."

Last spring in baseball his hard luck followed Tewes and after one or two games, he was forced to the sidelines with other injuries.

BOB TEWES

"He's a good floor man, fast and deceptive, and he doesn't let anything stand in his way when he's driving," Pete added. "He's the kind of competitor a coach likes to have and one who's good for the other men on the squad."

Tewes's home is Addison, Ill., and he prepped at Winfield, Kan.

The coach, prior to the day's practice, couldn't find the helmet to show the reporter. "But Bob'll be here any minute," Pete said. "He's the assistant custodian of the field house and his janitor duties include the cleaning of the locker room. That helmet's probably locked up."

Bowling

By John J. Archibald

Team Meet Coming

Archibald

The first of the nationally recognized bowling tournaments, literally the bread and butter events for such professionals as the St. Louis Falstaffs and Budweisers and some of the pros from other cities, will get under way in Detroit in less than three weeks. The national team match game meet will be held Nov. 22-25.

An entirely new method of determining the team champion will be used at Detroit. For better or worse, the plan of having thetop two finishers in a brief qualifying test go on to meet each other in a home-and-home series has been abandoned. This time the whole affair will be held in Detroit.

Here is the new plan: Approximately 48 teams from many parts of the nation will roll 12 games across 24 lanes in an establishment in the Detroit suburb of Birmingham. This will occur Saturday and Sunday. On Monday and Tuesday the four highest finishers will then engage each other in three-game matches, with a position round making a total of four such matches.

A simplified point system will be used in the match play. One point will be given for each game won and one point will be given to the team with the higher pin total for the three games.

The team with the most points afer the two days of match play will be the national Bowling Proprietors Association champion for the 1958-59 season.

Better Than Before

How much of an improvement the new tournament will be is a question. There was considerable criticism of the old method. Under that plan all the teams in the nation that could afford the entry fee and make the trip were tossed into a 12-game qualifying round and the two that finished highest then battled it out later for the national title. Under such a system a fine team could be virtually eliminated by one poor three-game series.

The Budweisers, who had won the titles the two previous years by runaway margins, suffered such a series on opening day at Kansas City and there wasn't time during the remaining nine games to make it up. There was no question as to who was the class of the qualifying event, as the Falstaffs bowled far better than their competitors throughout, but it was a toss-up for the No. 2 spot and a rather ordinary Chicago team, the Reserves, fell into it.

When the Reserves took advantage of peculiar alley conditions in Chicago and rolled up a lead of several hundred pins, there was a chance that a very inferior team would bear the national championship title. As it turned out, the Falstaffs resumed their stride in the St. Louis portion of the match and scored an impressive victory.

Perhaps the greatest improvement of this year's tournament method over that used in the past is the inclusion of four teams instead of two in the finals. The qualifying is still just 12 games, which doesn't permit much of a slump by even the greatest outfit, but there is at least twice as great a chance of having the cream of the nation's tenpin teams competing for the title.

Scoring Too Simple?

While the new scoring system for the finals undoubtedly is more simple, it is hardly fair to the better bowlers. The tremendous emphasis is not on scoring well but in winning. A team that wins three games but shoots a lowly 2500 to its opponents' 2400 would get four points. While a team that might total 3000 but win only one game while outtotaling its foe in the match would get merely two points.

The chances of a mediocre team somehow lucking through to the title are still far from remote. This seems to be a tendency of the people who map out the B.P.A.A. team tournaments. In the national individual meet—the "All-Star"—and in the revamped national doubles event the emphasis is as much on scoring as winning games.

When it comes to the team title, however, there appears to be a secret hope that "the little guy" will somehow triumph. In baseball it would be similar for arranging the World Series so that with a little luck at the right time the Kansas City Athletics could win all the loot.

There was some talk of holding this new style tournament in a series of medium-small cities where bowling interest is high but where there usually are no teams capable of bidding for the national title.

The object of this plan would be to eliminate the home-alley advantage of any strong teams, but somewhere along the line this idea was dropped. The handful of powerhouse teams which reside in Detroit will be able to work out all they want at the site of the team event up until two days prior to the meet.

Ole Miss, Pitt Out Of Top Ten

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (UPI)—The Iowa Hawkeyes retained a slender grip on first place today in the United Press International major college football ratings while the undefeated-untied Louisiana State University Tigers moved into the runner-up spot.

Defeats suffered Saturday by several of last week's highly-ranked teams enabled Northwestern and Notre Dame to climb back into the top 10 and produce several position changes among those that remained in the select group. Mississippi, shut out by Louisiana State in their "meetin' of the unbeaten," and Pittsburg, upset by Syracuse, dropped out of the top 10.

(L.S.U., Iowa and Army remained 1-2-3 in the Associated Press poll. L.S.U. was first, Army second, Wisconsin third and Iowa fourth in the E. E. Litkenhous rankings).

Iowa, which collected one of its Christmas presents early when it defeated Michigan for the first time in 34 years, received 13 first-place votes and a total of 305 points from the 35 leading coaches who rate the teams for UPI.

Big Vote for L.S.U.

Lousiana State, bracketed with Rutgers as the nation's only undefeated-untied major college teams, advanced from fifth to second with 299 points. The Tigers received 17 first-place votes, four more than Iowa, but the Big Ten team remained first because it received 15 second-place votes to the southern team's three.

Each coach selects 10 teams in the order he rates them nationally. Points are awarded on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first through tenth place. Iowa thus led Louisiana State by six points after leading Army by nine last week.

Army slipped from second to third with three first-place votes and 250 points. Auburn was next with a first-place vote and 186 points and Oklahoma was close behind in fifth place with the other first-place vote and 185 points. Then came Northwestern, 181 points; Wisconsin, 153; Purdue, 133; Ohio State, 36; and Notre Dame, 34.

Mississippi Now 11th.

Ohio State took the biggest drop among the teams that remained in the select group. The defending Big Ten champions slipped from third to ninth after suffering their first 1958 defeat, 21-0 to Northwestern. Northwestern advanced from twelfth to sixth and Notre Dame moved from fifteenth to tenth by walloping Navy, 40-20.

Mississippi dropped from sixth to eleventh with 31 points. Syracuse, Texas Christian, Air Force Academy, Rice, North Carolina, Southern Methodist, Clemson and Georgia Tech followed in that order. Colorado, knocked out of the unbeaten-untied ranks by Oklahoma, was tied for twentieth with Texas A. and M., Oregon State, Pittsburg and Virginia Military Institute.

Twenty-six schools received votes this week. Navy and Southern California were the other two mentioned on the ballots.

Six of the 10 top-rated teams, including five Big Ten outfits, are from the Midwest. Two southern, an eastern and a midlands schools round out the group.

McKinley's Good as Gold-Bugs

Winner at McKinley Old Story to Coach, Player on '32 Team

By John J. Archibald

Dust laid thickly over the rock-hard corner lot at Allen and Missouri avenues as McKinley High football players pounded each other. There was no grass to absorb the shock of the body slams of the scrimmage, but seldom did anyone stop to rub bruises.

Coach Julius Blanke watched his players quietly, a little proudly.

"I worked out on this same field when I played on McKinley's varsity team in 1932," said Blanke, of the fenced-in half-acre a block from the old school on Russell avenue. A boy has to really want to play football here or he doesn't stick around long."

That 1932 team and the one of the following season took some drubbings. Those were the first years after McKinley resumed status of a full four-year school and Public High League foes showed the Goldbug newcomers little mercy. Blanke—called "Jules" by virtually everyone—was a regular lineman as a freshman and each year afterward.

Eventually the hard-learned lessons had their effect and vengeful Blanke and his mates tied for the league title in 1934 and won it outright in 1935. From there Blanke went on to Warrensburg College football, military service, a year as head grid coach at Cleveland, a year as assistant at McKinley, and for the last 13 seasons he has been head man among Goldbug footballers.

Five Straight Wins.

There have been more ups than downs during the Blanke regime. This season apparently will be one of the ups, although there are three Public High opponents—Sumner, Soldan and O'Fallon—who could still alter that outlook.

McKinley opened its season with an 18-0 loss to C.B.C. in a non-league match, but had the next three weeks clear to rectify its mistakes, and since then the Goldbugs have whipped five straight league opponents. The 32-6 victory Saturday over Cleveland, coupled with the tie between Soldan and previously unscathed Southwest, gave McKinley a little breathing space in first place.

"We have a good, tough line," Blanke said. "We've only allowed two touchdowns in our five league games. You have to give a lot of the credit to those seven scrapping kids up front and the man who coaches them, Leroy Glore."

End Is Heaviest.

"John Reinhold and Jerry Buchek give us a fine pair of ends." said Blanke. At 190 pounds, Reinhold is the heaviest man on the McKinley team. Buchek is the baseball shortstop who won most valuable player honors in American Legion junior ball last summer.

The belief that tackles must be bulky to be effective is disproved by the two 175-pounders who do the job for McKinley, Charles Pilz and Ron Jakovac. Ron Trail, 160, is the center, and the guards are John Burian, 175, and John Rappe, a 180-pound freshman.

McKinley's capable backfield is manned by Quarterback Joe Minton, Ed Harrold, Tom Swyres and Gerry Germain. Minton has been a regular for three seasons, the others for two campaigns each. Two frequently used reserves are Tackle Jim Phelps and Halfback Willie Hampton.

"The season has been a surprise so far," said Blanke. "Some boys have turned out far better than we figured. Pilz didn't even get into a game last year. Buchek was a back, but he is a much stronger end. And Rappe—well, naturally we didn't even know he was in school.

"Imagine that, a freshman making regular in this league," Jules said. And then he grinned as he recalled another first-year man who had played the line for McKinley and got along all right . . . back in 1932.

Martinez Signed

NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 4 (UPI)—Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., has signed to meet Stefan Redl, formerly of Germany but currently living in Passaic, N.J., in a 10-round bout at the Newark Armory, Dec. 6. Martinez was stopped by Virgil Akins in the fourth round at St. Louis last June 6 in his bid to win the vacant welterweight title.

Fred Digby, Sugar Bowl Head, Dies

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4 (AP)—Fred Digby, who guided the Sugar Bowl from an idea to a week-long sports carnival climaxed by one of the nation's top New Year's day football games, died yesterday of cancer.

The 65-year-old general manager of the Mid-Winter Sports Association, sponsor of the Sugar Bowl, had been in a hospital for several months. He underwent surgery several weeks ago.

Digby, a New Orleans native who started out with a desire to be a coach but wound up a sports writer, developed the Sugar Bowl along with a group of 38 sports-minded business men.

When Tulane defeated Temple in the first Sugar Bowl game Jan. 1, 1935, Digby was sports editor of the old New Orleans Item. He resigned his job with the Item in 1947 to take over the leadership of the Mid-Winter Sports Association.

Digby's fondness for sports and his ability as an organizer became evident early in his life. He was a long-distance runner and helped organize neighborhood youth athletic clubs.

He took a leave of absence from the Item in 1933-34 to serve as a steward at Sportsman's Park thoroughbred race track in Chicago.

Survivors include his widow; two sons, Fr. Fred Digby, New Orleans, and Noel Digby, Kirkwood, Mo.; two daughters, Mrs. Thomas McNulty, New Orleans, and Mrs. James E. Faler, Monroe, La., and a brother, Martin Digby, New Orleans.

Semi-Pro Football Game Slated Here

The McCrary Raiders, a semi-pro football team organized from two top teams in the disbanded Muny League, have scheduled a game with the Kansas City Buffaloes at Public Schools Stadium for 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 16.

The St. Louis team is made up of players from the St. Louis Raiders, Muny winner the past three seasons, and the McCrary Porkers, second place team last year.

Willens, Falstaffs In League Match

The Willens, who won as many games last week (three) as they had won throughout the earlier part of the season, will face the Falstaffs in a B.P.A. Champions League bowling match tonight. Sweeney's Lanes, at 720 Washington, will be the scene of the action, which will start at 8 o'clock. There is no charge for admission.

The Budweisers, who share first place with the Falstaffs, will face the Benders. In other matches, Authorized will oppose the Antons and the Rabens will take on the Leonards.

Injuries Cripple Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP) — Illinois might have to face Michigan without the services of Quarterback Bob Hickey and Right Halfback Dick McDade.

Hickey's passing hand was injured against Purdue and McDade suffered a severe hip bruise. McDade's loss severely weakens the right halfback post since Doug Wallace has a pulled leg muscle and L. T. Bonner has an injured shoulder.

Top Sophomore Award Voted To Dick Hyde

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 4 (AP) — "I'm thrilled and surprised," said the Washington Senators' relief pitching ace, Dick Hyde. "It will be a good bargaining point when contract-signing time comes around."

He received 46 of 96 votes by members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the Associated Press poll.

St. Louisan Norm Siebern, who batted .300 in 134 games for the New York Yankees, was runner-up in the voting, having been named on 22 ballots.

Hawk Ace Sets Pace With 29.2

Yardley has collected 170 points in seven games. He has led the league every week since Dec. 31, 1957.

Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks ranks second with 146 points in five games, league figures disclosed today. Pettit, loop scoring leader in 1955-56, boasts the best average, 29.2 points a game. Pettit also has the season's single game high of 37.

Gene Shue of Detroit is third in scoring with 124 points, followed by teammate Phil Jordon with 122. Both have played seven games.

Boston's Tom Heinsohn has been the most accurate marksman from the field, hitting on 17 of 33 shots for a .515 average. Jack George of Philadelphia and Sam Jones of Boston have perfect free throw records. George has connected on 11 and Jones on 10.

Pettit is the rebound leader with 99. Bill Russell of Boston, holder of league rebound records for both game and season, is sixth, but he has played only two games. His average 27.5 rebounds a game is tops.

Dick McGuire of Detroit, who last won the assists title in 1950, has been the leading play-maker with 55 feeds in seven games.

Hunter Fined $300; Got Two Deer Illegally

CAMDENTON, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP)—Bill W. Dugan of Sedalia yesterday pleaded guilty in Camden county magistrate court to three counts of violating Missouri's wildlife code. He was ordered to pay $300 in fines and $33 in costs for illegal deer hunting.

Dugan admitted he shot one deer during the archery season with a rifle, another with a cross-bow and was hunting a third deer when he was apprehended. The gun season, six days long doesn't begin until Nov. 17.

Dugan told conservation agents this story:

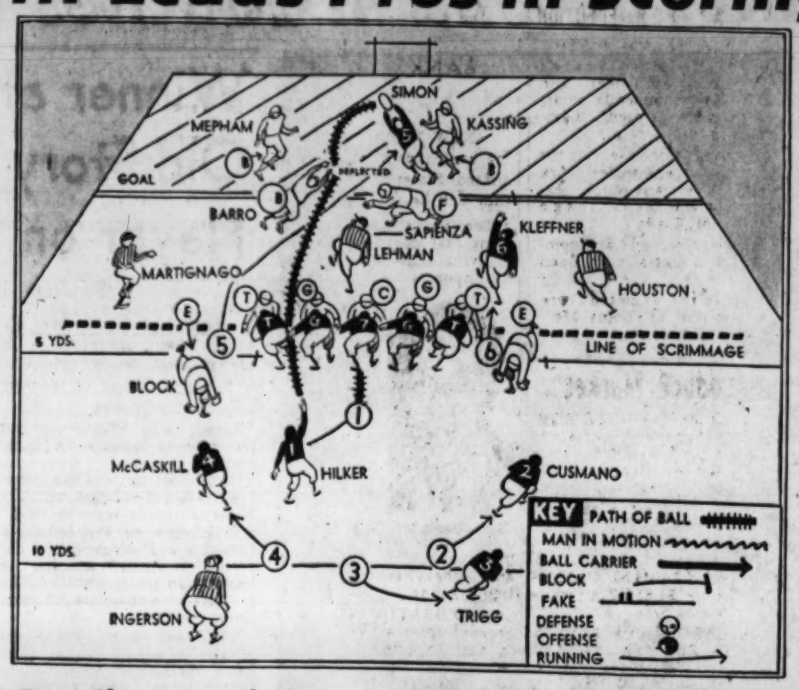

He bought special archery season tags for himself and for his wife, Mrs. Joan R. Dugan, but she did not hunt.

First, he said, he shot a doe with a 30-30 caliber rifle. He decided he didn't want the female deer and gave it away. He went hunting with a cross-bow, the powerful cousin to the bow and arrow. The cross-bow is illegal in Missouri's archery season. He killed a buck and put his wife's tag on it.

Then he went back to the Camden county woods for a third deer. But conservation agents checked up on him and found a bloody quarrel, the missile used in the cross-bow, in his car. He told all after that.

Lincoln Game on Air

Radio Station KXLW will broadcast Lincoln University's homecoming game against Central State of Ohio Saturday at Jefferson City. The play-by-play account will be by John B. Buckner, executive secretary of the Tandy Athletic Association. The broadcast is to start at 1:55 p.m.

Deflected Pass Wins

By Dukes Duford and Amadee

St. Louis U. High was trailing C.B.C., 9-7, with seven minutes to play in the fourth quarter of their football game. The Junior Billikens lined up in a split-T formation while C.B.C. used a tight seven-man line with four backers-up. Quarterback Greg Hilker (1) took the ball from center and tossed a five-yard looping jump pass which deflected off the finger tips of a C.B.C. backer-up into the arms of left end John Simon (5), who was standing in the end zone, for the winning score. Larry Albus kicked the extra point as St. Louis won, 14-9.

Popular Torres Is Winner

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (UPI)—Middleweight Jose Torres, New York's new "Golden Boy," will fight again Nov. 24 at little St. Nicholas Arena, where last night he had a turnaway crowd and a technical knockout over Canadian Burke Emery.

The largest St. Nick's crowd in 20 years—4116—saw Puerto Rican-born Torres register his eighth straight professional victory and his sixth knockout when he stopped Emery at 2:07 of the fifth round. Referee Harry Ebbets halted the bout. Emery of Sherbrooke, Ont., was floored once in the fifth and was bleeding from cuts beneath both eyes. The defeat snapped Emery's winning streak at seven straight.

For this non-televised bout the gate was $10,048. In two previous scraps at St. Nick's, the 22-year-old stablemate of heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson drew gates of $7174 and $5630.

Rangy Torres, who came to New York from Puerto Rico two years ago and now lives in Brooklyn, weighed 164 pounds—the heaviest of his career because he was fighting a light heavyweight.

Rangy, brown-haired Emery, top contender for Yvon Durelle's Canadian light-heavy crown, scaled an unexpectedly low 163½, having pared off more than he figured in order to come in at less than his agreed limit of 166.

Emery, 24, tried gamely to make a fight of it, but he lacked the weapons to compete with Jose's solid left jabs, rocking left hooks and smashing rights. It was the Canadian's eighth defeat and first official kayo in 42 bouts.

Opponent Not Set.

Promoter Teddy Brenner said today, "Jose will fight at St. Nick's on Nov. 24. I don't know yet who the opponent will be."

Manager Cus D'Amato, crusading for independent promoters of the Brenner type, said, "If some other promoter will open a small club—not on Monday night—I'll let him use Torres in one or two bouts to get him started."

NEW SLEEKNESS, NEW ELEGANCE, NEW ROADABILITY FOR AMERICA'S ONLY SPORTS CAR

Take a great basic design. Give its creators time to polish and refine every facet of its behavior—and you can come up with a classic road machine like the new Corvette.

Every change made for 1959 contributes new precision, new performance, new pleasure to what is admittedly the greatest driver's car produced in this country. Everything, from the superior traction of the new parallelogram rear suspension to the deeper "bucket" contour of the seats to the cooling air slots in the wheel discs, is designed from the pilot's point of view. Even the smallest details—the anti-glare lenses on the instruments, the angle of the armrest, the handy position of the door handle—are keyed solely to the driver's ideal.

Corvette, quite literally, offers a completely different feel in road travel. If you haven't driven any Corvette yet, we can promise you a genuinely astonishing afternoon. But, even if you have tested earlier versions, we urge this: Try the '59 edition—you, too, can be profoundly impressed!

Unitas Hurt; May Miss Five Games

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4 (AP)—Johnny Unitas, Baltimore Colts quarterback, will miss the next four or five games because of fractured ribs, Colts General Manager Don Kellett announced today.

The Colts' leading aerial strategist was two games shy of the record of touchdown passes in 23 consecutive games set by Cecil Isbell while he played for the Green Bay Packers.

Unitas and Halfback L. G. Dupre were injured during last Sunday's rain-soaked 56-0 win over the Packers here. Dupre will be out of action for one week or two with a dislocated shoulder.

Kellett said Unitas was suffering from penumothorax due to fractured ribs, meaning he has air in the chest cavity.

Coach Weeb Ewbank said he would use George Shaw in place of Unitas.

U.S. ASKS EGYPT AND ISRAEL NOT TO STIR UPRISING

By LARRY COLLINS

BEIRUT, Nov. 4 (UPI)—United States diplomats warned both Israel and Egypt four days ago not to take any rash action in the current atmosphere of Arab-Israeli tension, it was reported today

The admonition indicated United States concern over the revival of animosity in the Middle East fed by charges in the Cairo press and by the speeches of Israeli Premier Ben-Gurion.

Each side accuses the other of designs against Jordan, and Ben-Gurion's speeches have been interpreted to mean that Israel will seize Jordanian-held eastern Palestine if King Hussein is overthrown by revolution or invasion.

Threat From Baghdad.

One of the latest threats came last night from the Baghdad radio saying that "Israel is preparing for a second round (of the Palestine war) and we are returning to Palestine."

The Baghdad broadcast hinted that the Arabs mean to seize "Haifa, where Iraqi oil pipelines terminate," historic Beersheba in southern Palestine and "Nazareth where Christ lived."

The Jordanian situation may come to a head in mid-November, when Hussein leaves — against the protests of Premier Samir Rifai—on a "European vacation" which may prove to be permanent.

The young king plans to leave Monday by private plane with his Uncle Nasser, the only other member of the Jordanian royal family now in the country. He will travel by a roundabout route, through Iran and Turkey, to avoid passing over Israel or the United Arab Republic.

Survival Uncertain.

Observers here believe the Jordanian regime has been kept in power by a mixture of Hussein's popularity and Rifai's ruthless efficiency. It is not certain whether it can survive if either of these elements is withdrawn.

Although there is no love lost between Israel and Jordan, it may be that Ben-Gurion's veiled threats will tip the balance in Hussein's favor.

The Jordanian "pocket" in eastern Palestine is the only sizable portion of territory assigned to the Arabs by the United Nations which remains under undisputed Arab control. It includes most of Old Jerusalem and a number of other historic cities, including Jericho and Bethlehem.

No Evidence That Israel Plans to Invade Jordan.

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—The State Department has uncovered no evidence that Israel is preparing an invasion of Jordan or other aggressive action. State Department officials said United States diplomatis in Israel had checked all available sources of information following allegations made by the United Arab Republic that Israel was planning to attack.

FIRM TO STOP CLAIMING INDIANS MAKE ITS GOODS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) Guild Moccasin Corp., Los Angeles, has agreed to stop advertising that Indians make the moccasins and handbags it sells.

The Federal Trade Commission, announcing its approval of a consent order, also told the company to stop using the word "guild" so prominently in advertising. The FTC said it wanted the public to know the company was a profit-making enterprise and not a guild of Indians.

Official Defends Early Release Of Job Data for Campaign Use

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—A Commerce Department spokesman said yesterday the Eisenhower Administration acted "in the public interest" in rushing out part of the October job report before election day.

"There's nothing slanted or phony about the figures," Albert Leman, director of information, told a reporter. Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks had a "special reason" that warranted premature release of the report, Leman said.

He refused to spell out the "special reason," but other Administration officials said it was hoped that an announcement of a favorable employment trend would spark a last-minute shift of votes to Republican candidates.

President Eisenhower disclosed Friday night that unemployment fell 300,000 to a total of 3,800,000 in October and Weeks announced Saturday that employment went up 700,000 to 65,300,000. Both movements were in line with the normal October job trend.

The Commerce Department customarily follows a policy of holding its job report for simultaneous release with a parallel Labor Department survey. The schedule this month called for publication of the October report next Friday—three days after the election.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, urged early last April that the Commerce Department's March job figures be made public as soon as they were obtained "in view of the national importance" of the unemployment report. Weeks refused and reminded Meany that it was customary to announce the Commerce and Labor Department figures simultaneously.

Leman recalled yesterday that the early release of the October report followed a precedent the Administration set by prematurely disclosing favorable September and October job reports before the 1956 election.

He took sharp issue with professional government economists who have voiced fears that the political use of official reports would lead people to question the integrity of government statistics. He said:

"Decisions are being made by people who have a wider interest than the specialists. The political system is a part of our system."

Dr. Robert W. Burgess, director of the Census Bureau, said the agency was able to obtain the October job figures in time for Mr. Eisenhower's Friday night announcement by detaching people from other assignments. The Census Bureau was informed Thursday that the President would like to have the figures for his Friday night speech, Dr. Burgess said.

BRITISH SPOTLIGHT ON MILLIONAIRES' RACE IN NEW YORK

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP) — Americans are electing Representatives, Senators and Governors today. But as far as the press is concerned, this year's election is a fight between two millionaires in New York State.

For weeks British papers have published minute details of the campaign for the New York Govenorship between Gov. Averell Harriman and Republican challenger Nelson Rockefeller.

They even have gone into detail on both candidates' eating habits, pointing out that Harriman has put away pizza pie and hot dogs within a couple of hours in one New York City appearance. Rockefeller, the papers say, has pleased other voters by consuming fish and hot dogs.

One newspaper started off its story today with more details from "the millionaires' battle for New York" then got around to the fact Congress and Governorships are being elected, too.

STRIKING MECHANICS VOTING ON CAPITAL AIRLINES OFFER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) —Amid union predictions of a unanimous rejection, striking mechanics begin voting today on a company offer aimed at settling a 19-day-old walkout against Capital Airlines.

The International Association of Machinists scheduled balloting on the Capital offer for today in Washington and Pittsburgh and tomorrow in Chicago and Detroit. The union recommended rejection.

Capital, whose entire operations have been halted by the walkout, is offering a 30-cent an hour pay increase, plus fringe benefits and an additional eight cents an hour next Oct. 1. Before the strike Capital mechanics averaged $2.54 an hour.

Capital spokesmen said the offer matches one made a week ago by Northwest Airlines and exceeds an offer by Eastern and TWA. Balloting also is underway on the offers by Eastern, Northwest and TWA. After scheduling strikes against Eastern and TWA, the union postponed walkouts indefinitely.

PIECEMEAL ORDER REJECTED IN DU PONT AND G.M. CASE

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (AP) — United States District Judge Walter J. La Buy yesterday overruled a Government motion for a temporary injunction in the Du Pont-General Motors anti-trust case.

He declined to make what he termed a piecemeal determination of the case. Final hearings have been scheduled for Jan. 26.

The Government petition asked the court to restrain Du Pont and two of its holding companies from exercising voting rights in the 63,000,000 shares of G.M. stock they hold; restrain Du Pont from obtaining any additional G.M. stock; restrain Du Pont officers and directors from holding positions on the G.M. board, and vice-versa.

Du Pont attorneys insisted at earlier hearings that Du Pont has purchased no G.M. stock since 1931 and plans no further purchases. The original anti-trust action was dismissed by Judge La Buy in 1956 when he ruled there was no evidence of monopoly. The United States Supreme Court reversed the ruling and ordered the case reopened.

FIGURING TO WIN ECONOMIC RACE, KHRUSHCHEV SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 4 (UP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said yesterday that Russian economists "with pencils in their hands" are estimating when Communism will make an economic triumph over the capitalist West.

Khrushchev, in a Leningrad speech broadcast by the Moscow radio, said "it is becoming increasingly clear that the rule of capitalism is coming to an end." He said the time is approaching when the Communist countries will say, "Make way, we are advancing to the first place, and you go to the end of the queue, behind us.

"Our economists, with pencils in their hands, are already estimating when this will be. Our estimates are very accurate and rarely deceive us."

TURKISH PAPER SHUT DOWN

ANKARA, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Turkish newspaper Ulus, convicted by a special press court of publishing an insulting article about a former cabinet minister, was ordered to cease publication today for one month. Editor Ulku Arman was sentenced to a year's imprisonment.

The author of the article, an opposition deputy, was protected by parliamentary immunity.

of a developing weakness in the presidency itself, which they do not want to see happen. They realize, too, they have to deal with Mr. Eisenhower during the next two years. Their warm feelings toward him have cooled, but they have no desire to envenom their personal relations.

Not Like Crusader.

The President can be expected to chart his own future course at an early press conference. His new speech writers have been represented as reflecting his deep convictions, but he did not speak like a crusader nor did he kindle in his audiences the kind of response a genuine depth of feeling usually evokes.

Whatever he does or refrains from doing, he cannot set the tone of the next two years, which will be dominated in a political sense by the upcoming presidential election. It seems evident that all the candidates for President are now upon the scene as a result of the Tuesday balloting. In their separate ways they will seek to impress their parties and the voters with the their qualifications.

The 1960 campaign will start, in fact, when the new Congress is called to order in January and the state Governors, so potent at national conventions, dispatch their programs to their Legislatures.

Funds Still To Be Voted.

Only a fraction of these amounts actually in included in a stop-gap appropriation, however. Additional funds will be forthcoming in a supplemental appropriation by the new Congress meeting in January.

In a new branch of the Office of Education set up to aid state and local school systems under the program, Lloyd W. King, until recently executive secretary of the American Textbook Publishers Institute and former State Commissioner of Education in Missouri, will be in charge of reviewing state plans for improvement of instruction in science and languages and for guidance and testing.

One of a series of regional conferences on policies affecting programs in which state plans must be developed and approved by the office of Education will be held at Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 24 and 25 and at Kansas City Dec. 2, Fleming said.

TOBACCO MEN VEXED BY 'HEALTH SCARES'

Addressing the National Automatic Merchandising Association at Kiel Auditorium, Richards called on vending machine makers and operators to help "keep the record straight."

He pointed out that cigarettes and other tobacco products accounted for 41 per cent of the value of all merchandise sold by automatic merchandising—that is, in vending machines—last year.

Cigarette consumption increased nearly 18 per cent from 1950 through 1957, and should go up another 3.5 per cent this year, Richards reported. Last year, he said, the public bought and consumed almost "half a trillion" cigarettes.

Nevertheless, Richards told his audience, the tobacco industry is "embattled as it has never been before" and is the victim of anti-tobacco campaigns and of tax discrimination.

Richards said "anti-tobacco fanatics" had found a powerful weapon in the fact that several years ago "a small group of statisticians came up with a statistical association between cigarette smoking and an increasing incidence of lung cancer."

Richards said the tobacco industry, in an effort to get the facts, had created the Tobacco Industry Research Committee and had paid out thus far some $3,000,000 in grants for scientific research.

© New York Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 4—Ferhat Abbas, the premier of the provisional Algerian government, may arrive here about Nov. 15 to help plead the rebel cause before the United Nations.

According to sources close to the Algerian government, Abbas will come unless the "political climate" here is unfriendly. Observers saw the plans to have him come as an indication that the insurgent government sees little hope of settling its dispute with France through bilateral talks.

The French, who have consistently refused the official participation of a third party in the affair, invited the Algerians to come to Paris to discuss a cease-fire. The Algerians have made the counter-offer to meet on neutral grounds to discuss a cease-fire and everything else concerning Algeria. The French have not responded to this, and it would appear that an impasse has been reached.

RALSTON PURINA CO. BUYS 4 BEAN CRUSHING PLANTS

Ralston Purina Co. of St. Louis has bought four soybean crushing plants from the Buckeye Cellulose Corp. of Cincinnati, it was announced today by Donald Danforth, board chairman of the St. Louis concern.

The paints are at New Madrid, Mo.; Raleigh, N.C.; Louisville, Ky., and Memphis, Tenn. Walter L. Lingle Jr., president of the selling company, a subsidiary of Procter and Gamble Co., said the sale was a logical step because of the increasing importance of soybean meal for animal feeds.

HIGH RATE OF ABSENTEE BALLOTS FROM EUROPE

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 4 (UPI) — United States soldiers and airmen in Europe made good use of their chance to vote by absentee ballot in the American elections.

A spokesman at Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden estimated that out of 90,000 to 100,000 eligible voters in the command, including dependents, at least 80,000 cast absentee ballots.

In Heidelberg, spokesmen for the United States Army said approximately 76 per cent of some 200,000 eligible voters in the European command requested ballot forms.

TEANECK, N.J., Nov. 4 (AP) — Comedienne Martha Raye and her former bodyguard, Robert O'Shea, applied for a marriage license yesterday.

It will be the sixth marriage for the 42-year-old singer. O'Shea, 31, has been married once before. His wife obtained a divorce Oct. 14 on grounds of cruelty. Nick Condos, a former husband of Miss Raye and now her manager, said he does not know when the marriage will take place.

BANKS IN TREASURY FINANCING

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Commercial banks are fighting back today at the widespread charge that by helping the United States Treasury finance its 12 billion dollar deficit they will be feeding the fires of future monetary inflation.

The banks know that anything that might send the cost of living higher later on would be unpopular with the public.

Sam Dawson

They want to correct the notion they're a part of the act. Actually, they can't afford under today's credit policies to hold these short-term government securities. So these bills and certificates are rapidly passing into the hands of corporations and others seeking to hold liquid funds.

CORPORATIONS favor them because rates are high enough to date to bring in attractive returns on idle funds, and the securities can be sold quickly when needed to pay taxes or other expenses. The banks base their case on a United States Treasury survey of the ownership as of July 31 of the $67,800,000,000 of marketable Government securities due within one year. Federal Reserve banks and United States Government trust funds held $22,900,000,000 of them. Less than a third of the remainder were held by commercial banks.

THE CHARGE IS OFTEN made that recent short-term Treasury financing will be inflationary because these securities are likely to be purchased by commercial banks with effects of increasing deposits and thus the money supply. But the Federal Reserve's restrictive credit policy — higher charges that banks must pay if they borrow from it, and keeping down the free reserves of banks—has worked against this. First, it squeezed the banks ability to buy and hold the securities. Second, it produced higher interest rates which attracted outsiders.

THE FIRST NATIONAL City Bank says: "What happened was that the banks initially took on the bulk of the new securities as underwriters. Pressures on their reserves forced them to sell of the securities as quickly as buyers could be found. Then the New York City Bank, after noting the Treasury's technical success so far in getting its deficit financing redistributed outside the banks, warns that short-term financing still involves an inflationary process.

THE CASH THE TREASURY got is being spent, thus increasing active money circulation, and the corporations and others have "an undeniable claim upon the Treasury for future money." Whether the Treasury can do some of its future deficit financing in the long-term bond market is yet to be seen. If it can get its bonds into the hands of investors who will hold onto them for a long time, the inflationary effect is minimized.

BANKERS ARE ALMOST unanimous in citing the Government's spending policies as the real culprit in arousing fears of more inflation. "The trouble is with the size of Federal spending and the deficit, which has sent the national debt into new high ground beyond the peaks of World War I and is frightening many potential buyers (of bonds) into inflation hedges," the New York bank's economists say. They think that has had as much as the business recovery to do with exciting the stock market.

LONDON LIST SHOWS RENEWED FIRMNESS

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The stock market showed renewed firmness today and considerable business was transacted.

Helping sentiment were encouraging statements from government leaders on the economic outlook. Just before the close came news of the rise in gold reserves during October. This helped also.

Most business was centered in industrial stocks. Gains were rather numerous and in some instances substantial. Steel and engineering shares generally were firm while electrical equipments responded to the government's announcement of increased state investment.

Government bonds were quiet and narrowly irregular. Dollar stocks were firm in response to Wall Street's advance yesterday.

Toronto Stocks Higher.

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (AP) — Industrials led the stock market higher today with shares of pipeline companies setting the pace.

In light morning trading, industrials pushed their index over the 500 mark with a gain of more than a point. The market showed lack of buying from the United States.

NEW YORK STATE VOTING IS HEAVY, MAY SET RECORD

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (UPI)—Large numbers of New York State citizens voted today in mild, sunny weather which presaged a record turnout for the gubernatorial contest between incumbent Democrat Averell Harriman and Republican Nelson A. Rockfeller.

More than 5,500,000 voters were expected to settle the battle of the millionaires for the $50,000-a-year New York governorship. A total of 6,787,266 voters was eligible to ballot.

The previous high vote came in 1950 when 5,473,048 cast ballots in the New York gubernatorial contest. Four years ago an upstate snowstorm kept the vote down to 5,241,177 and was blamed by Republicans for Harriman's 11,125-vote victory over Senator Irving M. Ives.

Newspaper's Action.

In one explosive last-minute development, the New York Post late yesterday withdrew its indorsement of Harriman on the ground, publisher Dorothy Schiff wrote, that he had made a "snide insinuation that Nelson Rockefeller is pro-Arab and anti-Israel."

Harriman denied he had made such a charge but acknowledged that he had linked Rockefeller, then a presidential assistant, with the Eisenhower Administration's "first appeasement of Nasser" and its switch from President Truman's pro-Israel policy to one of neutrality in the Middle East.

The newspaper did not indorse Rockefeller, but he sent Mrs. Schiff his appreciation.

State Democratic Chairman Michael H. Prendergast asked Mrs Schiff to tell her readers whether the last minute shift was "planned for effect" and whether it was related to the activities of the publisher's husband, Rudolf G. Sonneborn, co-chairman of a Democrats for Rockefeller committee.

U.S. Senate Contest.

The struggle between the Governor, running with Democratic and Liberal party backing, and his Republican opponent has almost overshadowed the contest for United States Senator between Manhattan District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, the Democratic-Liberal nominee, and Representative Kenneth B. Keating of Rochester, the Republican. The vote spread between the candidates for Governor probably will determine the senatorial race. A number of newspaper surveys have shown Hogan running ahead of Harriman and likely to win short of a Rockefeller landslide.

No two men have campaigned harder to become Governor. Rockefeller and Harriman began their drives well in advance of the nominating conventions two months ago and maintained a steady pace until a few hours before the polls opened.

No single major issue emerged. It was a contest of organization and personalities.

Only a landslide victory for either Harriman or Rockefeller could produce a change in the present political lineup of New York's delegation in the House of Representatives, which has 26 Republicans and 17 Democrats.

Republicans are almost certain to retain the control of the Legislature they have had for more than 20 years.

ARMS ABOARD YEMEN PLANE WHICH CRASHES IN ITALY

POGGIODOMO, Italy, Nov. 4 (UPI)—Police searching the wreckage of a Yemenite plane which crashed last night near here, said today they found 200 pistols and a quantity of ammunition. Eight persons were killed including Sayed Mohamed Ashani, director general of foreign affairs, and Foreign Ministry Under Secretary Mohammed Nouraly.

The twin-engined DC-3 crashed in darkness and rain into 3500-foot Mount Riva, 70 miles northeast of Rome. The Yemeni legation in Rome confirmed that the plane was flying from Rome to Belgrade, but refused other details. Others aboard included two Romanian dentists en route home after attending a high Yemeni official in Sana. The other victims were crewmen.

EX-PREMIER OF TUNISIA SENTENCED TO 10 YEARS

TUNIS, Nov. 4 (AP)—Salah Eddine Mohammed Baccouche, former premier of Tunisia, was sentenced yesterday to 10 years at hard labor by the Tunisian high court of justice.

He had served as premier from 1952-1954 when Tunisia was a French protectorate. Four ministers in the Baccouche government were sentenced to five years at hard labor and a fifth—tried in absentia—was sentenced to death.

All were accused of "attacks on the superior interest of the country." The prosecution charged they had worked with French authorities against the Tunisian nationalist movement. It had asked the death penalty for all the defendants.

GREECE'S QUEEN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (AP) — Throngs turned out early today to greet Queen Frederika of Greece and her daughter, Princess Sophia, as they arrived in Chicago for a two-day visit.

Greek-American groups attired in colorful dress reminiscent of the Queen's homeland formed a guard of honor as the royal party arrived at Union Station.

WORKERS BEGIN REMODELING EAST FRONT OF CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (UPI) — Workmen began tearing down part of the Capitol's historic but crumbling east front today.

They will spend most of the week tearing out 150-year-old balustrades on top of the original House and Senate wings. The entire 80-foot high portico will be removed to make room for the new $10,000,000 east front. Each of the portico's 32-foot high pillars weighs about 10 tons.

The new east front will be an exact copy of the old except that it will be marble instead of sandstone. It will be 32½ feet out from the old east front, making room for offices, restaurants and private passageways.

Stafford Kelly, chief project engineer, said each stone in the portico is being carefully numbered and registered and is being stored. He said his workmen will be able to rebuild it to the last piece of scroll work anytime anyone should want to. The Smithsonian Institution has expressed some interest in obtaining part of it—but not all.

STATE WILL SEEK BIDS ON NEW EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

Bids for construction of a $1,450,000 building to house the St. Louis office of the State Division of Employment Security will be advertised Friday, Gov. James T. Blair announced yesterday at Jefferson City.

The building will be three stories and will be on the northwest corner of Broadway and Washington avenue. It will be of masonry and glass and will have more than 76,000 square feet of office space.

Gov. Blair expressed hope construction could be started this year. Cost of the building will be paid from a surplus of employment levies collected by the Federal Government and returned to the state. The building must be completed by Dec. 24, 1959.

AWARD TO RUSSIANS UPHELD BY FRENCH NUCLEAR OFFICIAL

PARIS, Nov. 4 (UPI)—French Atomic Energy Commissioner Francis Perrin said yesterday that a Frenchman discovered the "blue light" effect, but that the 1958 Nobel prize was rightly awarded to three Russians for discovering what it meant.

Perrin, at the request of scientist Lucien Mallet, testified before the French Academy of Scientists, which promptly pigeonholed Mallet's claim. He said "it is undeniable that the phenomenon (the luminescence of radium under water) was discovered for the first time in 1926 by Mallet."

But, he added, it was the Russians Pavel Cherenkov and his two associates who discovered its significance—the detection of the speed and energy of highly-energized particles through matter.

COLORED SLIDES OF FATAL ACCIDENTS SHOWN IN COURT

Colored slides of persons fatally injured in automobile accidents were shown in Crestwood city court last night. About 80 persons in court to answer traffic charges saw the photographs.

The idea of showing the slides was that of City Marshal Al Steimel, who said, "We're trying to reduce the number of indifferent and inexperienced motorists who use Crestwood streets, particularly U.S. Highway 66."

Those in the court were arrested for various traffic violations in the past two weeks. Some of them were charged with speeding "up to 80 and 90 miles an hour," Steimel said. The slides were shown by Dr. Eugene Tucker, pathologist for the St. Louis county coroner's office and director of health for Crestwood.

U.S. AIRMAN IN BRITAIN MISSING WITH $4000, PISTOL

LONDON, Nov. 4 (UPI)—British and United States Air Force police searched today for an American airman who disappeared from his base with about $4000 and his service pistol.

VALUE OF BONDS TO BE VOTED ON THIS MONTH IS NEAR PEAK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Dollar volume of municipal bonds to be voted on in elections this month will approach the record of $2,800,000,000 established in November 1956, the Investment Bankers Association of American reported yesterday.

It said the preliminary figure in mid-October was $2,300,000,000, compared with October estimates of $70,000,000 last year and $2,600,000,000 in 1956.

School bonds constitute the largest single classification, running to $428,000,000.

Two Get Death in Cyprus.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Nov. 4 (AP) — A special court sentenced two young Greek Cypriots to death today for murdering a compatriot last July on orders of the Eoka underground. The men, Costaas Constantinides and Yannakis Anthanasiou, both denied guilt.

PROBLEM IN SOUTH ON SCHOOL BONDS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 4 (UPI) — Southern School News reported today that bond dealers have encountered "some reluctance" in the East to buy Southern school bonds.

In its November issue, Southern School News said people who buy and sell bonds believe that if more schools are closed, as in Little Rock and Virginia, interest rates may rise even higher.

Bond men interviewed by the News viewed rising costs of school bonds largely as a result of "the general state of the economy" so far. Although they found some reluctance in the East to buy such bonds, this has been offset by increasing bond purchases throughout the South.

Southern School News is the monthly publication of the Southern Education Reporting Service.

The publication also reported that a total of 796 of the South's 2986 biracial districts have desegregated schools, an increase of six resulting from new Kentucky figures which show 123 of the state's biracial districts with mixed schools.

Virginia Suit to Be Heard by 3-Judge U.S. Court.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 4 (AP)—United States District Judge Walter E. Hoffman said yesterday that a suit challenging Virginia's anti-integration laws would be heard Nov. 19 by a three-judge federal court.

Hoffman denied a motion that the hearing be postponed pending results of a test case on the same laws before the Virginia Supreme Court.

Under the laws in question nine public schools — six in Norfolk, two in Charlottesville and one in Warren county — have been closed to avert race mixing.

The suit was filed Oct. 27 by a group of white parents whose children attended five of the six closed schools here. Defendants include Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr., the state's Attorney General and the Norfolk School Board.

Claiming the laws constitute an "evasive scheme designed to nullify lawful orders" of the federal courts, the plaintiffs ask for a preliminary injunction restraining the Governor from controlling the schools and ordering him to return control to the Norfolk board.

AIR FORCE CAN'T IDENTIFY 2 OF 6 MEN KILLED IN RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (UPI)—The Air Force said today it has not been able to identify two of six United States airmen killed in Russia and will bury them as unknowns.

Six bodies were delivered to United States authorities Sept. 24 after the crash of an American cargo plane in Soviet Armenia Sept. 2. The other four bodies have been identified. Besides the six, there were 11 crew members whose fate never has been learned. Russian authorities disclaimed knowledge of them.

LEBANESE CABINET VOTES ITSELF SWEEPING POWERS

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

BEIRUT, Nov. 4—Lebanon's cabinet approved yesterday a special bill giving it sweeping legislative powers in several fields, including disarming the civil population.

The four-man cabinet, headed by Premier Karami, has made the special powers bill a matter of a confidence vote and is expected to get a heavy majority from deputies reluctant to see the government resign and plunge the nation into another cabinet crisis.

Warming Trend to Continue

—Associated Press Wirephoto.
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

The warming trend in Missouri and Illinois is expected to continue. Most of the two states will receive generous amounts of sunshine today, the Weather Bureau said.

Stormy weather which lashed Pacific coastal areas headed eastward today, losing some of its fury as it moved inland. Generally clear skies, with cool weather in the Northeast, prevailed in broad areas of the nation, while rain continued in sections of the South.

The Pacific storm center moved into Washington with gusty winds as high as 66 miles an hour at Pendleton, Ore. The rain belt expanded eastward during the night into central Montana and southward into the northern California coastal sections. Heaviest rainfall was confined to Washington.

The country's other wet belt was in the west Gulf Coast region. Moist air brought rain to southern Texas and the Mississippi delta. Rainfall in most areas was light and the wet weather was expected to expand to all of the Gulf Coast.

Snow and rain which hit the northeast ended and clearing skies brought lower temperatures to many areas. Readings in the 20s were indicated through New England and westward across northern regions to the Dakotas. Scattered frost also was expected southward to Tennessee and North Carolina.

The man who plays F.D.R.

It was an amazing challenge for an actor! Not only did he have the job of making up to look like the late President, but he had to solve the problem of how a man stricken with polio acts, walks and thinks.

Now, in this week's Saturday Evening Post, read the story of one of the most unusual acting jobs ever to hit Broadway — Ralph Bellamy's portrayal of President Roosevelt in the smash, standing-room-only hit "Sunrise at Campobello."

And you'll read about Bellamy himself—and his controversial personality on and off stage—all in "The Man Who Plays F.D.R."

DIVORCE — Prize-winning writer John Bartlow Martin reveals the startling facts and figures about divorce in the United States—and tells about a revolutionary new "idea" for helping correct this social calamity!

NEW U.S. UNIT URGED TO TRAIN DISABLED

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—A new federal agency for training the severely handicapped for independent living was urged by rehabilitation representatives at a conference called yesterday by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Arthur S. Flemming.

"There is now no nationwide program for serving people when it is not feasible to get them back on the jobs," said E. B. Whitten, of the National Rehabilitation Association. "They are pushed aside."

He urged that a supplemental program for this group be set up in the office of Vocational Rehabilitation, in close co-ordination with the Public Health Service.

Dr. Frank Krusen, representing the American Medical Association, said that physicians had "come late" into the field. He requested Flemming to set up a series of conferences all over the country "somewhat similar to this one" so that medical men everywhere could learn to co-operate in restoring the disabled to useful living.

Other proposals included:

The Federal Government should set up a private program in rehabilitating the 500,000 to 750,000 jobless because of alcoholism.

Workmen's compensation boards in every state should be instructed to rehabilitate the disabled, not just pay them compensation.

The means test recently put by regulation on readers for the blind to help them through college should be taken off. It penalizes students not poverty-stricken but unable to afford readers.

The deaf should have access to rehabilitation centers—they now have none.

Coronation of Pope John XXIII

Pope John XXIII being carried through St. Peter's Basilica on his portable chair (above) at start of today's ceremonies in the Vatican marking his coronation as the 262nd Supreme Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church. At right, the Pope kneels in prayer in the Chapel of the Most Holy Sacrament. In background are members of the Swiss Guard. Thousands of persons who had lined up early in a heavy rain, jammed their way into the Basilica, glittering with red damask and gold, for the colorful, centuries-old ceremonies.

A heavy loss of lives among civilians caught in the fields was feared.

Ready for Winter

It's a beautiful day in Chicago but it won't be too long before the howling gales of winter come shrieking in to dump tons of snow on the area and the Windy City is preparing for the expected onslaught. Daytime Fun With Peter Lind Hayes

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.

THE AMERICAN BROADCASTING CO. has gone into daytime television, offering a whole roster of personalities starting at 8:30 a.m. (St. Louis time) and the big hit of the schedule is "The Peter Lind Hayes Show." This is a very curious phenomenon indeed since Hayes is offering entertainment which for a long time has been an oddity on the daytime air. For quite a while, it had been believed that if it weren't a parlor game or misery as expressed in the soap opera or in the agony shows like "Queen for a Day," it wouldn't do in the daytime, wouldn't do at all.

PETER LIND HAYES

But the Hayes show opens with Hayes singing a song, sometimes with his lovely wife, Mary Healy. He tells jokes. He may do a bit from his night club routine. He trades repartee with the other entertainers on his show including John Bubbles, a real great oldtime vaudeville star who can do anything well from hoofing to singing to telling jokes; Don Cherry, and the Four Voices. Whoever they are, there is a general air of professional competence about them because Hayes is a veteran entertainer himself with a liking for the pros in his business.

As a matter of fact, when he isn't presenting them, he is likely to be talking about them—telling stories or making observations about show business, many of which are very shrewd and perceptive. (Hayes would have made an excellent critic if he had not fortunately been channeled into more lucrative pastures.) Anyhow, the fact that professional conmpetence should catch the fancy of the public in the daytime has come as a stunning surprise. Who would have thought such a thing?

Hayes was the summer and sometimes winter replacement for Arthur Godfrey on his morning show for four years and he has taken over some of the more durable elements from that show. Like Godfrey, he lines up the rest of the cast in a single group and just trades conversation with them, all of it informal and unrehearsed, and this frequently is one of the best parts of the show. There used to be a lot of unrehearsed talk on the air but nowadays even the exchanges between emcees and quiz contestants sound like they'd been rehearsed all week.

But not on the Hayes show. As a conversationalist, Hayes is a counter-puncher of great quickness of mind and charm and he is at his best ad libbing. Unlike the Godfrey show, there will be no regulars except Mrs. Hayes. Some of the very strong personalities like Bubbles will be invited back often but they won't be there every day. This is a wise move for a number of reasons. For one thing, the regulars get a little too well entrenched and lazy. But more importantly it will give a chance to other entertainers to show their stuff and there are more of them than you might think.

Hayes is very good at digging them up, too. He discovered Genevieve who was on his Godfrey-replacement show long before she became a regular on the Jack Paar show, and he found Bubbles and he'll find others. I've got two criticisms of the Hayes show. Firstly, there are far too many commercials. It sometimes seems as if there is a commercial every 12 seconds, something which is increasingly wrecking all of daytime television.

Secondly—And you might put this under the heading of constructive criticism, something we critics do sparingly—I would like to see five or seven minutes of intelligent conversation each day with somebody who is preferably not an entertainer—an author, a playwright, a movie director, maybe Nelson Rockefeller, or just possibly an ax murderess, provided she has something to say. An interview a day, I think, would add substance to the program which would both stimulate and gratify the housewife who could thereby feel she is doing something about keeping up with the latest book or play or political candidate or ax murder.

There used to be a lot of intelligent talk in the daytime. Arlene Francis on "Home" would have a daily talk with authors or people of some intellectual pretensions; Tex and Jinx McCrary used to provide the same service (except those interviews were, I thought too long). Today there's almost no talk of any sort longer than a wisecrack and, as a matter of fact, it's getting to be increasingly hard to find five minutes of time uninterrupted by a commercial where you can stage anything resembling a conversation in all of daytime TV.

Etiquette Problems

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Will you please tell me if it is ever correct to eat with gloves on, at noon or in the evening? A.B.E."

Never eat with gloves on no matter what the time of day. It looks affected.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Recently my friends and I went to New York for a day. We went to a French restaurant for dinner and after having a cocktail we were served a salad. We were hesitant as to when to eat the salad. Is it proper to eat a salad before dinner or together with the main course?—W.R.M., Philadelphia."

You may start eating a salad any time that it is before you. If it is on the table when you sit down and you want to eat it while you are waiting for the first course to be served, you may do so.

Try and Stop Me

IGNORING the red light, a Manhattan jaywalker ran smack into an oncoming automobile. A cop helped him to his feet, admonishing him, "Didn't you see that big sign 'Don't Walk'?" "I did," groaned the pedestrian, "but I thought it was just an advertisement for a taxicab company."

A WOMAN had just taken over her car from a parking attendant, but paused at the gate to call out a last query to him. "Tell me," she urged. "Just what do you fellows use to clean the grease off your hands when you run out of steering wheels?"

A MOVIE THEATER MANAGER had this phone conversation the other day: A girl called up and demanded, "What have you got on today?" He answered, "A charcoal gray suit."

"Who's in it?" she persisted. "I am," said the manager. "Oh, shucks," said the girl. "I've seen that already" —and hung up.

On My Own At Japanese Palace

By Eleanor Roosevelt

Ninth of a series based on the book "On My Own—The Years Since the White House" by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. (Harper & Brothers, New York.)

WHEN I RECEIVED word that my request for an interview had been granted I was told that both the Emperor and Empress would see me on the day of my departure from Japan.

I was also informed that I must wear a long-sleeved dress or, if I did not have one, I could wear long gloves and a dress with three-quarter length sleeves. As it happened, I had only one dress and one pair of gloves that met these specifications—a little flowered print dress—so I planned to wear that.

Our ambassador, John M. Allison, in frock coat and striped trousers, called for me at the Imperial hotel at exactly 15 minutes after 10 on the morning of June 24 and we drove to the Imperial Palace.

The Empress, as well as the other ladies, wore a kimono. The one worn by the Empress was light in color and flowered. On her feet the Empress wore the usual white cotton slippers with a slit at the big toe for the sandal thong and, of course, she wore sandals. Her hair was done almost in Western fashion and her make-up was hardly noticeable, which is customary with Japanese women of high social status.

As I looked at the Empress sitting calmly with her hands in her lap, with her face unlined and impassive, I could not help wondering what lay behind that placid surface. She must be, I thought, a woman of extensive education. Her husband is a student of the sciences and has written several books. The Empress had always taken an interest, I had been told, in child education.

An Oriental woman in the position of royalty, I thought, must have a kind of severe discipline and must suppress many of the natural emotions. Perhaps it leads to the look of calm that was on the face of the Empress, but I wondered, too, if that calm could be attained without missing something in life.

Once we were seated, the Emperor began a conversation, saying he feared I was very tired since I had gone to so many places and seen so much in a comparatively short time. "But," he said, "I am very grateful for your visit." The Empress added that I must be worn out.

"Oh, I am not a bit tired," I assured them. "I have found my visit most interesting. I am grateful for the opportunity to get to know something of Japan."

We talked about conditions generally and at one point the Emperor said he had always regretted that we had gone to war in spite of his vigorous efforts to prevent it. Now, he said, he hoped we were embarked on an era of friendship and peace.

I had been studying the Emperor and had thought at first that he did not have a strong or impressive personality; yet, as he spoke about the war and the future, he showed both strength and courage. He has the appearance of a student and it occurred to me that perhaps this was inevitable for a man in his position. As a godlike Emperor before the war, he was permitted very little outside or creative activity in which he might express himself. But he could study the sciences.

I am afraid that during this interview I did not observe the rule that one should speak only when spoken to. I asked a few questions myself, or rather I made some remarks intended to draw out the ideas of the Empress.

"When I visited Pakistan and India," I said, "many changes were taking place, particularly in the status and activities of women. It seemed to me that women of all classes were drawing closer together and gaining in strength because of their greater knowledge of each other."

I paused and looked at the calm face of the Empress, waiting for her to comment. She said nothing for a few moments and then replied: "We need more education."

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

The Emperor broke in with some comment and I thought perhaps that would be all the response I would get from the Empress, but she seemed to be thinking over my remarks for a few minutes and then said to me:

"There are great changes coming about in the life of our women. We have always been trained in the past to a life of service and I am afraid that as these new changes come about there may be a loss of real values. What is your impression, Mrs. Roosevelt?"

"In all eras of change," I said, "there is a real danger that the old values will be lost. But it seems to me much less dangerous when the intelligent and broadminded women who have had an opportunity to become educated take the lead to bring about the necessary changes."

"Our customs are different, Mrs. Roosevelt," the Emperor broke in. "We have government bureaus to lead in our reforms. We serve as an example to our people in the way we live and it is our lives that have influence over them."

And that seemed to be the final word on how far the Imperial family, or at least the distaff side of it, might go in assuming leadership in the new era in Japan.

The Emperor talked of other matters and after about an hour, their Imperial Majesties arose, wished me a very happy and safe journey and, after saying good-by to Mr. Allison, left us, bowing again as they went out. We, of course, returned their bows.

As I look back on my visit to Japan, I see more clearly the difficulties created by an army of occupation or even by the presence of many American boys stationed at military bases in Japan. Unfortunately, we do not train our youngsters carefully enough before sending them throughout the world. They do not always remember that they are not merely soldiers but ambassadors, representing all that their own country stands for and all that democracy means to the rest of the world.

Living Day by Day

Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: From reading your columns I know how much importance you place upon a person's mental attitudes. I'd like to know what a person can do to stop thinking about an unhappy past which caused much mental anguish.

I feel that I no longer have the problems that I had before my marriage (which is a very happy one); but I am either thinking of the painful past, or worrying whether I might have these problems again in the future. Therefore, I cannot fully enjoy the present.

Being shy (which has caused much of my troubles) I find it very difficult to talk this over with anyone. Therefore, I keep it bottled up inside of me, making matters worse. If I could only learn the secret of living from day to day and forgetting the past, I would be very happy. I'll appreciate any advice from you. Mrs. H. W.

ANSWER: It was the great Dr. William Osler who said that we should learn to live our lives in "daily compartments." In other words, not to have any regrets for the past or any fears for the future. To live from sunrise to sunset only, and to consider each day a brand new life.

And it was Epictetus, I think, who said that so many of us throw away our happiness by living as if we were allotted 1000 years on earth instead of three or four-score years. We kill off the potential pleasures of so many of our days and years by needless worrying.

I wish, Mrs. H. W., that I knew of a specific antidote to the poison of worry. But I don't; nor does anybody else. You can't turn off worry like you do water with a spigot. But you can learn to worry less. In your case, releasing the bottled up tensions is of great importance.

You say that you are shy and can't discuss your innermost secrets with anyone. But doctors aren't "just anyone" in the sense that a great part of their job is to listen sympathetically; and dispense advice — free from holier-than-thou moralizing.

Find such a doctor and you will be a less anxious person.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

HOWARD P. FEINBERG, New York attorney, sends us today's hand as an illustration of the difference between a good duplicate player and one of championship caliber. When it came up at a recent New Haven team-of-four match, both declarers reached six spades, and both saw that their only chance to make the slam was to find an opponent with a doubleton diamond honor.

They realized that this would give them a chance to avoid two diamond losers by endplaying their opponent. They would draw trumps, eliminate the clubs by trumping the third round and eliminate the hearts by cashing three rounds. Now on the second round of diamonds, West thrown in with the king, would have to return a heart or a club, permitting declarer to ruff in the closed hand and discard dummy's remaining diamond loser. Thus, six spades would be made with the loss of only one diamond trick.

Neither Side Vulnerable

	♠KJ87 ♥AQ9 ♦A86 ♣K65
	♠AQ1096 ♥K8 ♦10972 ♣A4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♦	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♣	Pass
5♣	Pass	6♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The difference between the two players was in executing the endplay; the first player gave West a chance to duck out of the endplay, but the second player got his man.

At the first table, South took the trump opening, drew trumps and then, without touching diamonds, stripped the North-South hands of hearts and clubs, leaving this situation:

	♠J8 ♥— ♦A86 ♣—
♠— ♥107 ♦K4 ♣Q	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠— ♥— ♦QJ53 ♣J
	♠Q10 ♥— ♦1097 ♣—

Now declarer led a diamond to dummy's ace, intending next to throw West in with the king. But West by this time knew what was about to befall him, and he escaped by throwing his king under the ace. East now took the second diamond with the jack and continued the queen for down one.

When the hand was replayed at the second table, declarer took the trump opening in the closed hand and immediately led a diamond to the ace. This West defender, unable to see at this early stage of the play what was coming, played small and was later end-played.

"At the post-mortem after the match," writes Feinberg, "West's partner at table two jumped on him for not dropping the king of diamonds under the ace at trick two, but after a long discussion all were agreed that the real villain was declarer at table one, who postponed the winning play until it was too late."

It was an important hand because our contributor's team, which won the slam, won the match by only 250 points.

Fix It Yourself

PEOPLE who sail in ships know that it's best if the ship is 100 per cent watertight. If it's only 85 or 90 per cent tight, someone is going to get wet.

Now, if the insulation in your home is not 100 per cent effective, you won't get wet but you can waste a good deal of heat and as you paid good money for the insulation to begin with, you might as well take a few minutes and maybe a few dollars to make it as effective as you can.

SOME TYPES of insulation used on attic floors will compress over a period of years so that what was once four inches or so of insulation is now only two or so inches deep. Where you find spots of this sort, add insulation over the old to build it up to four inches thick.

In many homes the insulation is applied to the attic floor or roof and then holes are cut through it for pipes, wiring, etc. These uninsulated spots can allow a lot of heat to escape but most of them can be easily filled in with bits and pieces of insulation.

IN MANY HOMES the insulation on the attic floor does not extend all the way over to the eaves and unless there are vents in the eaves it's a good idea to add insulation so that the entire attic floor is covered. In unfinished attics you'll often find that the cracks and crevices where windows join the framework are left uninsulated. Take strips of insulation and pack these areas so that they are airtight.

For some repair jobs you'll find the loose fill insulation that comes in bags and can be poured where necessary is the best type to use. On other jobs you may find the roll or batt type insulation the most suitable.

Clarissa Start

It's Tough to Get Up in the Morning

MORNING MUTTERINGS, or what might be heard if a tape recorder were hidden in our household:

Monday: Ooh, what is that noise? Crackle, sputter, pop. Wish we could ge around to getting that clock radio fixed. It used to be nice to wake up to music. Even to "Hang Down Your Head, Tom Dooley, Poor Boy, You're Gonna Die."

CLARISSA START

It can't be 10 minutes to 7. Not already. It seems like only yesterday that it was 10:30 p.m. It's worse on Mondays because Saturday is so far off. Beautiful, beautiful Saturday, the day when you can sleep all morning. Last Saturday I didn't but so help me, come this Saturday, I'm going to sleep until noon.

Now to set off a small charge of dynamite in the hall and try to wake the rest of the family.

Tuesday: Crackle, sputter, pop. It can't be 10 to 7. It's so dark. That's because daylight savings is off now so that means it's really 10 to 6. Or does it mean that it's really 10 to 8. Let's see now, we moved the clock ahead an hour so when we moved it back . . . that way lies madness. Better save my strength to dislodge that boy from bed.

WEDNESDAY: Crackle, sputter, pop. Wish we could remember to get that clock radio fixed. Must do that. After "Tom Dooley" has died down a little.

If I can just make it through to Saturday morning. Saturday morning I'm going to sleep until 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

It's so quiet. Maybe if I turn this static up good and loud.

Thursday: Ooh. It can't be 10 minutes to 7 already. Wonder how to get that child up this morning. We've used the string of firecrackers once this week. And the police whistle got lost—wonder if I really could have swallowed it. Maybe a lure. That might work.

"It's morning, dear. Now is that any way to talk to your mother? How would you like some ham and eggs? Pork sausage? Rice nibbles? Oak crunches? Wheat widgets? Dorothy Brainerd says the school age child should eat a hearty breakfast in order to do his best work. Wonder how many school age children Dorothy Brainerd tries to give a hearty breakfast.

"How about apple pie? How about pancakes? Sound good? What am I saying?"

FRIDAY: T.g.i.f. Tomorrow is Saturday. Tomorrow I sleep, sleep, sleep, sleep, sleep. Wild horses can't drag me up. Oh happy, happy Friday. Must get that clock radio fixed tomorrow. Maybe about 4 o'clock in the afternoon when I wake up.

Saturday: Ooh, what time is it? Ten to 6? What woke me up? That shrill scream. That happy childish laughter. "Yes, dear, it's morning, isn't it, but mother's going to sleep a little while. Why don't you go have breakfast? Oh you've had breakfast. Three helpings of cereal, two bananas, and all the leftover brownies.

"When am I going to get up? Well I guess I might as well. Since I'm awake anyway. No point in sleeping your life away."

Hollywood Sidelights

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.

THE FIGHT IS ON between Dawn Addams and her estranged husband, Prince Massimo, for the custody of their 3-year-old son. Massimo is suing to keep the boy with him on his estate in Italy, accusing Dawn of leading a "vagrant existance, in view of her being a film actress." . . . Lauren Bacall writes from Paris that she is having a wonderful time and will be back in Hollywood in time for Thanksgiving with her two children. . . . Clark Gable wanted too much money to star in "The Image Makers," so Kim Novak is not as interested as she was.

Moira Shearer, who was so wonderful in "The Red Shoes," is willing to come out of retirement to be Gene's leading lady. . . . Eddie Albert's new record album is called "The Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria." It's about Columbus, and it's high time the old boy was put on a record—Chris, not Eddie.

Hearts are diamonds for June Allyson. For her birthday, husband Dick Powell gifted her with two diamond hearts on a platinum ring. . . . It was supposed to be a new Milton Berle, although I hear it's the old Uncle Miltie, bossing everyone around backstage. . . . Who says the movie industry is tottering? Columbia will spend $6,000,000 on Carl Foreman's production, "Guns of Navarone," to be made near the Mediterranean and around London. You can bet that William Holden will be in this one, possibly Sophia Loren and Cary Grant.

George Glass, just back from his picture chores in Ireland for "Shake Hands with the Devil," called to tell me that he and partner Walter Seltzer discovered a new fascinating actress for the movie starring Jimmy Cagney. "Her name is Marianne Benet and she's better than Bardot." Glass and Seltzer are producing this picture in partnership with Marlon Brando's Pennybaker Productions.

NEW YORK'S FIRE CHIEF is appalled by the number of fires that break out because women let the pot boil over while they are watching television. Something must be done, and the women of America are ready to do it—stop cooking.

Ironically, it is only in the last few years that motorcars have been equipped with fins. They could have used them back in the old days of muddy roads.

It's a matter of preference whether you go to the big football game and have your view of the touchdown play obliterated by a large drunk in the row ahead, or stay home by the TV and have it blocked out by a commercial.

One drink per customer, the rule Khrushchev establishes in Russian restaurants, will lead to universal sobriety—or very big jiggers.

Talk of abandoning passenger travel on the railroads is saddening to many a small-town boy whose only contact with words of more than one syllable was reading the names of the Pullman cars as they went by.

We worry about a man who refuses to eat, but regard him as entirely normal if he refuses to think.

Down Memory Lane With Nelson Eddy

Reporter Who First Interviewed Him 23 Years Ago Finds He's Happy, Still in Fine Voice

By Dickson Terry
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

A FEW WEEKS AGO some television enterpreneur whose name I don't know but whose perception I admire, had a moment of astuteness rare in this medium. Realizing, perhaps, that there are other people in what is described as the great television audience than teenage rock 'n' roll addicts, he brought forth the team of Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald.

Looking not too unlike they did in the days when they were perhaps the greatest romantic combination of the twentieth century, they sang again the songs that set millions of pulses throbbing; songs from "Naughty Marietta," "May Time," "Rose Marie" and others.

My wife and I, whose courtship coincided with the Eddy-MacDonald era, sat and watched and listened with what is usually described as mixed emotions. As the last lingering notes of "Sweet Mystery of Life" faded away, our nostalgia was broken by one of six children who have arrived since those days.

A very good question indeed. By coincidence, it was a question I had asked myself some 23 years ago (23!) when, as a fairly young feature writer I was assigned to interview a fairly young concert singer named Nelson Eddy. The reason for the interview, the concert singer had just finished a movie in Hollywood called "Naughty Marietta" and was being hailed as the discovery of the decade.

He was blond and handsome and a little puzzled by his new fame. As a matter of fact, he hadn't even seen the movie which was to make him famous. He had to dash out to fill his concert engagements and was looking forward to seeing it for the first time in the whole.

I don't remember what we talked about 23 years ago, but we got along very well. I read a few years later where the Hollywood correspondents had named him the "least liked" actor, which struck me as strange, because I had liked him fine. Except, a funny thing did happen.

By coincidence, Nelson Eddy came back to my home town of Springfield, Mo., a year and a half later. This time there was no question about his fame. He was without doubt the greatest thing since Valentino, and again I was assigned to interview him. We had rather a difficult time getting together because the hotel lobby was packed with girls and women, autograph books clutched in their hands and the look of the huntress in their eyes. Poor Nelson Eddy couldn't even get down to the coffee shop for a bite to eat, and I had to fight my way through to the elevator to get to his suite.

He had the air of a hunted man. Even worse, a trapped man. From what I saw of Nelson Eddy during the interview and later at the concert, I felt that he was a man who was never meant for such close contact with his audience, but who, at the same time, realized it was the price of fame and was determined to put the best face on it. Which was probably what led up to what happened.

Eddy seemed compelled to convince me that fame hadn't changed him and that he genuinely liked people. "I never forget anyone I've known," he said. "For instance, I was interviewed here a year or two ago by a newspaper man, and if that man walked in this door this minute, I would know him."

"Well," I said, as I laid down my pencil, "are you sure you would?" He gave me the level gaze well known to movie fans and said, "I'm positive. Know him anywhere, in fact."

There was a moment of silence while I made a decision. A kinder man probably would have said, "That's nice" and gone on with the interview. I said, "I hate to break your spell, but he's here now. You're talking to him."

There was another silence while he stared at me. This, I thought, is probably the end of this interview. To refresh his memory I recalled the place, the time and some of the things he had said.

Then, to his everlasting credit, he burst out laughing, at himself. "Okay," he said, "I guess I was being a little pompous. You caught me. But I have to say in my behalf that I've been thinking all along that I had met you somewhere before." Once again, we got along very well.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

NELSON EDDY . . . the years haven't changed him much.

That night, at the concert, the hall was jammed and when it was over the women and girls were all over him like a cold sweat. They pulled at him, pushed him, tried to get his necktie, and two teen-age girls won local fame of a sort by fainting dead away when they got his autograph. Every town he went to had at least one swooner in those days.

Then Nelson Eddy went his way and I went mine and the first thing I knew nearly a quarter of a century had gone by. These memories came back when I noticed the other day that Nelson Eddy was opening at the Boulevard Room of the Sheraton-Jefferson, so for old time's sake, I went over to see him.

He received me in his suite. He was wearing a gray tweed jacket with gray flannel slacks. The years hadn't changed him much. The same thick, wavy blond hair, the same wide-mouthed smile, the mild blue-gray eyes behind pale lashes and the same somewhat formal air. A little thinner, perhaps, and a few wrinkles.

We sat down and he took a meerschaum pipe out of his pocket. He started filling it, handling it with the air of a man who finds pleasure in small things. As he lighted it, he looked over the match and smiled. "I took this up a few years ago," he said, "and I found I'd been missing something." He reflected a moment.

"Well," he said, with a rueful smile, "I've no great message to give the world. No snappy bon mots. What I'm doing now is entertainment. Nothing else. This is no concert or recital. I say this for the benefit of any husbands who might think their wives are dragging them out to be fed up to the neck with songs from 'The Student Prince.'

"Our night club show has everything from light opera to skits and even a little burlesque. Theodore Paxson, who has been with me for 30 years now, is still with me leading the band—"

At this point the telephone started ringing. Eddy ignored it. I said I'd be happy to wait while he answered it. "Well, maybe I'd better," he said, "it might be one of the troupe." It was.

"Women call up," he said matter-of-factly, after he had hung up. "I get so I don't hear the phone. There are still a lot of gals who remember me from the movies and still think I'm romantic. I am; but I'm not on the loose.

"Oh, I enjoy talking to some of them. Some of them, wives and mothers now, are pretty nice. But then there are others on the screwball side. But if people who remember me pleasantly call up and don't want to be silly, then I enjoy talking to them. After all, I've been working for people all my life.

"I've been very happily married for 20 years now, come January." (He was married in 1939 to Ann Franklin who had been the wife of Sidney Franklin, the producer. They have no children.) "I was hoping my wife could be with me, but I'll be home for the month of December. I'm out about 35 weeks of the year. We live in a modest home in the suburbs of Los Angeles. Used to have the usual things, a swimming pool and five or six servants, but not any more. I like it this way."

His years of movie fame Eddy now looks upon as more or less an interlude in his real career, that of concert singer. That's what he set out to be, that's what he still considered himself when he was at the heights of movie fame, and that was what he still considered himself after the movie years. As a matter of fact, he points out, his contracts in the movies always stipulated that he could carry on his concert work, and between pictures he was out filling his engagements.

"I was big on radio until it began to die, and then when television came along something started happening to the concert business," he said. "People started staying home to see a free show. I made two investments. One was in television, the other in a night club show. I figured one of them would pay off. This one came through, the other didn't. I'm glad now. I'm afraid if it had been TV, I'd have been washed up by now.

"I started this five and a half years ago, and we've been working steadily. It's been very successful, and it's a lot of fun after so many years of formal music to do something informal. When I look around and see my friends retiring, and some of them really cracking up, I'm going to fight it off. I am where I am, and I'm going to make the best of it."

A lot of crazy stuff was written about Nelson Eddy during the 1930s. One story had it that he learned to sing by playing phonograph records of the great singers and singing with them. This story still irritates him.

"What a lot of boloney!" he said. "How can anyone learn to sing by records? I had a lot of teachers. Good teachers and bad teachers. I learned the hard way. I was in concert work for years before I was in the movies. I was doing a concert in Los Angeles when a talent scout heard me. If I hadn't been ready, through years of hard work, when the opportunity came, it wouldn't have happened. I've been slugging away at it since I was a teen-ager. Not many people know that I did 28 operatic roles in Philadelphia and literally hundreds of recitals and concerts before Hollywood. I had a lot of experience under my belt."

If Nelson Eddy misses the kind of fame he had, he doesn't show it. "We made some nice musicals. Jeanette MacDonald and I. I made eight with her, and then I made eight with other leading women. My career in the movies wasn't a big one, but it was a snappy one. I only made 16 pictures, but most of them happened to be pretty darn good pictures.

"Miss MacDonald and I had offers later to make budget pictures. People interested in using our names to make a fast buck. But we talked it over and decided, let's not spoil it. Let's not dwindle off with a lot of class B pictures. I don't like second-class anything."

In his night club act, Nelson Eddy still looks like a matinee idol, wears full dress as few men have ever been able to, and his voice is as powerful and melodious as ever.

"My audience," he said, "is the same audience I always had. But they're married and have children now. That's the way I like it. I have nothing to offer the teen-agers. Most of them don't even know who I am."

The thing that moves Nelson Eddy is the desire to keep working. "I want to work—a long time—according to my capabilities.

"No," he said, again smiling above the meerschaum pipe, "Nelson Eddy isn't rich. He has a modest home and a modest way of living. He owns his home, he has a lot of insurance all paid up, a wonderful wife and good health. And he likes his work. I guess, come to think of it, he's one of richest guys in the world."

Well, as a man who has known him off and on for a good many years now, I'd say he was, too.

They'll Do It Every Time

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Sylvanus and Evelyn Duvall

"Delinquents are all the same!"

True. False.

ALTHOUGH most people would say false, they often imply that delinquents are all alike by the way they cite cases. Here, they will say, is a sneaky little rat who got worse and worse because he always posed as a poor, abused child who had never had a chance. When a hard boiled judge jolted him with a stiff sentence, he saw that he couldn't get away with it and began to improve. You get the idea that all delinquents are like that, and should be treated severely. A recent study of children's thefts in India turned up nine different reasons for their delinquencies. Delinquents are different—and need different kinds of treatment.

Brother - sister rivalry is healthy!

Right. Wrong.

Right. Dr. Helen L. Koch and her colleagues intensively studied 384 5- and 6-year-old boys and girls from two-child families. One of their findings is that children with a brother or sister of "different sex from themselves seemed more self-confident, more cheerful, active, healthy, less vacillating, and more inclined to recover poise readily than children whose sibling was like them in sex. Apparently sex rivalry is stimulating."

Decorated Fabrics

Elaborately decorated fabrics are being used extensively for the new winter resort fashions. Linens and cottons that are embroidered in an all-over pattern are typical of the trend. The use of applique also is apparent while beading and braid trimming also are noteworthy. Many of the dresses that are elaborately trimmed are cut with simple silhouettes. The Empire dress with low neckline, short sleeves and a sash belt placed high is a favorite mode. The sleeveless bloused dress with slim skirt is another.

More, New York; Mrs. Shove Palmer, Princeton, N.J.; Mrs. Stamps Farrar, New Orleans, and Mrs. Thomas Stone Howell, Alexandria, La., all of whom will be accompanied to St. Louis by their husbands.

A feature of the evening will be the presentation of Crosses of Military Service to descendants of Confederate veterans. The crosses will be presented by Mrs. Murray Forbes Wittichen, Coral Gables, Fla., president general of the U.D.C., and Mrs. J. Frost Walker, recorder general. The crosses will be bestowed on the following: Isaac Adelbert Long, private in the Army in World War I, grandson of Col. Elijah V. White, Thirty-fifth Battalion Virginia Regiment, C.S.A.; Walter William Dalton, lieutenant colonel, Army Air Corps World War II, grandson of Cpl. George Washington Poage, Company 1, Nineteenth Virginia Cavalry; Comdr. Douglas Lamkin Carlisle Jones, U.S.N.R., instructor officers school, St. Louis, World War II, great-grandson of Capt. John Smead Lamkin, Company E, Mississippi Regiment, C.S.A., and Lt. Richard Lea Dameron, Medical Service Corps, in Korea, U.S.A.R., grandson of John Thomas Dameron, C.S.A., Company F, Fifth Missouri Infantry Regiment.

Miss Blanche Williams of Knoxville, Tenn., will receive a posthumous award to her great-nephew, Lt. Clayton Porter Wood, killed in action at Luzon in World War II. He was the great-grandson of Samuel Jackson Williams, Company K, Fifth Virginia Cavalry, C.S.A

A complete framed and mounted set of Crosses of Military Service will be placed in the museum at the Jefferson Davis Shrine, Beauvoir, Biloxi, Miss., by the Beauvoir Chapter U.D.C. of Biloxi. The crosses for the shrine will be received by Tom White Crigler, national president of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Dr. Strode to Speak at Dinner.

DR. HUDSON STRODE, author of "Jefferson Davis Patriot," will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be Dr. Delyte Morris, president of Southern Illinois University, and Prof. George Adams, head of the university's history department.

There will be a three-tier table for special guests. The president general and recorder general, the recipients of the crosses, the speakers, Mrs. Elmer A. Deiss, historian general, and descendants of Jefferson Davis will occupy places at the top tier. Also seated with special guests will be Lee Merriwether, 95-year-old St. Louisan, said to be the only living person who knew Jefferson Davis. At the second tier will be all division historians; Charles Van Raavensway, director of Missouri Historical Society, and Dr. Floyd Shoemaker, Columbia, Mo., secretary of the State Historical Society of Missouri. Former presidents general, honorary presidents and all past general officers will be at the floor level table.

All the tables in the Khorassan room will be covered with gold cloth and the tier tables will be decorated with gold and white chrysanthemums, gilded ivy and gold candelabra holding lighted ivory tapers. Tables, each seating eight, will be centered with large anniversary candles set in the gold-sprayed ivy, and at each place there will be a small votive light. Mrs. Dickmann will be assisted by Mrs. Carl Stockstrom, Mrs. Walter T. Tariton and Mrs. George Shelton.

Mrs. Henry Frost Chadeayne, former president of the Missouri Division of the U.D.C., is convention chairman; Mrs. Howard I. Young is program chairman, and Mrs. Lennis Everett Young is president of the Missouri division. More than 600 delegates to the convention will be guests at the Chase Hotel, convention headquarters, and at the Park Plaza.

Martha Carr's
OPINION

A Two-Girl Problem

Dear Martha:

I CAME to this country three years ago and I love it very much. All my friends here from the old country are still close to each other and don't mix with others. But I like all the people and want to be a real American. I have kept company for the past year with a fine girl who has a fine family. On my vacation I went home and during the first few weeks everything was fine. My girl friend and I wrote to each other. My sisters and mother made arrangements for me to see old friends, though, and before long I was in constant company with a girl friend from years back. I did not write any more to my American girl friend and when I came back I didn't call her. Now I am so mixed up. The girl at home is writing to me. My sisters and my parents would be pleased if we married, but I am afraid I have hurt my American girl and her parents. I would like to telephone her and explain it all but I do not know if it would be proper. I know she is proud and so am I. But I cannot forget her. I know in my heart she would be right for me. My parents would prefer the other but they would want my happiness first. I am old enough to know my own mind but would like some advice, please.

You're the one to make the decision, not your mother and sisters. I agree that you owe this girl here an explanation and an apology. There would be nothing improper in your calling her for a date and talking out the entire problem. After all, she doesn't want to marry you if you're still interested in someone from your own country. However, I don't believe at this point that you're ready to marry either. Keep on dating American girls if you wish, but don't lead one toward the altar until you're sure you've forgotten the girl you left behind you. And, in fairness to her, don't keep her on the string if you have no intention of marrying her.

Dear Martha:

PERHAPS this will help the reader who signed herself Marie R., who wondered if she should re-marry the man who drank and cursed and beat her up. My former husband told me he joined Alcoholics Anonymous and had reformed. We dated for six months and during this time I saw that he was sincere. We remarried and have been happier than ever before. I thank God and all the wonderful friends in Alcoholics Anonymous that he hasn't had another drink to this day. By all means, Marie should give him another chance. However, he should prove he has reformed. Don't take his word for it. If he loves her enough, he will prove it.

J.M.D.

Dear Martha:

MY PARENTS are divorced. I am to be married soon. Please tell me where my mother and father are to be seated in the church. Both have remarried.

READER.

Your mother's second husband sits with her in the first pew on the left and your father sits behind them with his wife in the second or third pew. If your mother gives the reception, her husband stands with her to receive guests. Your father, if he attends, does so as a guest rather than a host.

Are you lonely and seeking new friends? Martha Carr's two new leaflets will direct you to organizations where you can meet congenial people. If you would enjoy belonging to a hobby club where you can sing or write or hike or talk gardening with others, send for the free "Hobby Club" leaflet. If you are a senior citizen, seeking to meet both men and women of your own age group, send for the new "Senior Citizens Club" leaflet. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Democratic Party Battle

HYDE PARK, Nov. 4.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY is a place where, if you are interested in politics and in free and open discussion, you find not only guidance but inspiration.

So the Harvard Young Democratic Club got out a paper describing its purposes. Starting with a short look into the past, it said:

"We of the Democratic party are on the eve of a great victory. The astounding triumphs of Senator Proxmire last summer, of Gov. Meyner last fall, and of Senator-elect Muskie last week will corroborate this fact.

"But for those Democrats who are striving for a liberal democracy in the United States, and an enlightened foreign policy towards the uncommitted nations of the world, November will be only a partial victory. In point of fact, many of the really crucial political battles have already been fought long before election day.

"When candidates and platforms were selected in state conventions and primaries earlier in the year, then the real decisions were beneficial. The selection of Senator Holland over former Senator Pepper in Florida, and that of District Attorney Hogan over former Air Force Secretary Finletter in New York are but two examples.

"The struggle within the Democratic party which is being fought out in nearly every state of the Union has tremendous historical significance. For it is evident that all of the great battles of ideas within the United States have been decided within the Democratic party (except once: the Civil War)."

"Battles within the Democratic party are decisive ones, usually determining national policy for a generation. When mediocre leaders and drab policies are chosen by Democrats, the nation succumbs to the doldrums (witness the '20s). But when great leaders with bold programs are selected the country moves forward, e.g., the New Deal. Hence the current struggle within the Democratic party is crucial.

"The Harvard Young Democratic Club is pledged to forward the cause of liberal government at all levels. The continual advocacy of the progress and humanitarian concept of the Government voiced by Woodrow Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Adlai Stevenson is the duty of a college Democratic group no less than the national Democratic party."

I think this statement should be brought to the attention of all voters, since it gives the real reasons for voting the Democratic ticket even if some particular candidates are not the candidates of your choice. One can only hope that, once in power, the Democratic sense of responsibility will keep the party liberal and forward looking.

BEFORE I left Toronto last week I had the pleasure of breakfasting with Julien Bryan and hearing about his trip to Russia the past summer and the new color film which he has made for distribution to high schools, colleges and libraries.

He has included in this film pictures going back to the days of the czars and taken by an unknown Pathe News photographer from 1905 to 1910. Then he has used shots of atomic energy and jet planes by Soviet photographers and, finally, his own photographs on his extended trips to Russia. Throughout he has used authentic Russian music.

Mr. Bryan is executive director of the International Film Foundation, Inc., and he narrates the script himself. The film is 24 minutes long. Because of the present interest in learning more about the Soviet Union, it is a most valuable one to have for the nation's education.

Solidarity Makes a Family

By Adele Starbird

DEAN STARBIRD

MY MOTHER often starts talking suddenly on a topic that she has been turning over in silence, like a subterranean stream which emerges at the surface. I have noticed that most people who are both elderly and deaf have that tendency.

The last time I saw her she patted my hand and said, apropos of nothing, "Well, I have never let you down and you have never let me down; our family has had its trials, and we weathered them because we held together. That's what makes a family."

I'm always afraid when I write of the past that I may paint our family life as more idyllic than it was. We had conflicts of will, flashes of temper, and hurt feelings. We had black disasters and windfalls of good fortune—so much so that I often thought our history sounded just like a soap opera. We also made mistakes of judgment which we can look back upon and recognize as mistakes.

But as my mother said, we never let one another down. There was no extravagance of which we were not capable, no sacrifice of comfort or convenience which was not made joyfully when we recognized a need. I have a letter written to me by my 12-year-old brother when I was in deep trouble; it is very touching. How he tried to plan for me! What offers of help he extended.

However, we were not a clannish family, and our solidarity was not a defensive thing. We were never taught that our ways were superior. Persons not related to us entered our circle. When a member of the family married, the others were concerned that he should fulfil all his obligations; and in every case, he met the same concern in his new family, so that we were in no sense unique.

Unfortunately there are families whose solidarity is exclusive and guarded; they stand together against their in-laws and against the world. I have heard women say of their husbands, "Well, blood is thicker than water, and he's no blood kin of mine." And I have seen husbands who could not grow up enough to transfer their supreme loyalty to the new home they had founded; they had not been properly educated for marriage by the women of their family.

Such an attitude is wholly destructive. It prevents continuity from generation to generation, and, like every form of isolationism, it suffocates the tight little clan that is formed. Family loyalty is a happy thing, but clannishness is an abomination.

In spite of high tempers there was usually courtesy at home. My mother has one story that starts with a statement. "Richard says that he never heard his father say a discourteous word to me. But he did say something sarcastic once, when I was a bride."

They had moved into their new house before it was finished; the screens weren't in. Mother, who had an obsession about flies, had all the shades pulled down in the kitchen where she was frying chickens. Father came in to the stifling kitchen, looked around, and said, "I see that I made a mistake in building a house for you. I should have built a cave."

Mother's eyes still flash when she tells it. "It provokes me so to think I let him get by with it. I can't imagine why I didn't answer him." Life's lost opportunities. Once I dared to say that I didn't think father's remark was so dreadful. There was another flash of her brown eyes. "I think it was pretty bad," she said with finality.

TV Notes and Gossip

EDGAR ALLAN JONES JR. . . . Judge of ABC-TV's "Day in Court," is professor of law and dean of the Law School at the University of California at Los Angeles.

BOB HOPE will be master of ceremonies of an hour show, "Exploring With Hope," on the NBC-TV network Nov. 29. The telecast, to be presented in co-operation with the Boy Scouts of America, is designed to encourage boys of high school age to join the new Boy Scout Explorer program.

THE FIRST ROCKET observations of a solar eclipse and the first above-the-atmosphere views of solar activity during an eclipse will be seen on Lowell Thomas's "High Adventure" program in January. Thomas and two cameramen made films of the eclipse on an expedition to the South Pacific recently. The findings of the rocket observations were announced a week ago by the Naval Research Laboratory, which launched rockets from a landing ship dock near the Puka Puka atoll Oct. 12.

BECAUSE of a change in the format of the NBC-TV "Today" show, the times of KSD-TV local newscasts have been changed. Instead of being presented at 7:05 and 8:05 a.m., they will be on at 7:25 and 8:25. The Wilma Sim homemaking show at 8 had to be dropped.

KMOX-TV from 9 to 10 tomorrow morning will carry films of the coronation of Pope John XXIII. The films also will be shown after the CBS-TV election coverage tonight.

'Other Side' of the Moon

By Ramon Coffman

THE "OTHER SIDE" of the moon holds keen interest for people. I judge this from letters I have received and from questions asked after my astronomy talks in schools.

Q. Why does the moon always have the same side toward the earth?

A. In ages past, it is likely that the moon rotated several times while making a single trip around the earth. If that was the case, the moon has been slowed down since then by the earth's gravity. The present rotation of the moon is very slow, only one rotation taking place during a complete trip around the earth. The period is about four weeks.

When the moon is full, we see just half of its surface. That, however, fails to tell the whole story. When we see the moon in a slightly tilted position, we may look across its north pole and see a bit of land on the other side. At another time, during an opposite tilt, we see some land beyond the moon's south pole.

Q. Does the moon have a "silver" coloring?

A. People speak of the "silvery moon," but often it has a golden color. Astronomers judge that the surface has about the same power of reflecting light as sandstone.

That may, or may not, mean that the moon's surface is composed largely of sandstone. It is likely that volcanic rock makes up a good deal of the moon's surface.

Q. Are there volcanoes on the moon?

A. No active volcano has been observed at work on the moon. Next time I shall discuss the moon's famous craters.
